Lost! Lost!—Almost every day, of late, the "lost child" bell rings upon our streets. Little urchins, on these glorious Spring days, feel like exercising their limbs which have been pent up and housed for a long and dreary winter, and ere they know it, they have wandered too farmay have trod unknown parements and out-of-the-way places, until the little pratiters, ecarce able to lisp their own names, are "lost."

What a throbing of hearts—what wild, acute mentions of alarm—what instant deputising of sundry messengers to all the ntighbors' houses, when "little Charley" or "darling Mary" is missing! The mother is anguished to wailings and tears, the father has fearful forebodings of a delicate form fished up from some fatal cisters for might with Liverpool dates to the l4th.

"Charley" is questioned and cross-questioned, but he can only answer that his name is "Tarley" and weep for his mann." A gentle-hearted house-wife, whose soul is all pity, receives him into her home, combs his ourly head and "wipes all tears away." By and-by, the "lost child" bell is heard, and "Charley" and his big brother are soon "face to face." Big brother feels a sense of thrilling about his heart, smiles many, thanks to "tharley's kind protector, and away he goes home wards!

A LARGE LOG.—We have seen some pretty big specimens of the genus log, in the Allegheny, litely, but the following story from the log book of the Warren Ledger, beats them all:

Last Thursday we saw a log manufactured into the lumber at their Siber 8 Mills, on Tones to a bout to quit Vienns, but the report is followed at Hall & Fisher's Mills, on Tones to a bout to a given the allowed feet of common. The lumber at the mill, from that one log is worth a bout one hundued feet of common. The lumber at the mill, from that one log is worth a tone worth about $20,00. The tree from which this log was taken will probably make about $100,00 worth of lumber. There is no need of going to California while such trees are plenty here.—
They say that there are two or three logs in their pond that will beat this one.
