He hoped that no occasion would ever arise, while either he or the bonorable judge before him were alive, of accretising the power of the Court for the maintenance of the constitutions and the Union; but as in these days of fanaticism there was no talling what might happen, he felt sure that the Court would discharge its duty fairly, impar-tially and fearlersly. Judge Lawin expressed his entire concurrence in the remarks of the District Attorney. There being no case ready to proceed with, the Court adjourned till 10 o'clock this moring. Rur. Mg. We hear of him in New Orleans fleecing cotton merchants, in New York guiling the fancy broker on Well street, and in Boston demonstrating to the Yankee pediar—that threw-dest of all specimens of humanity—that even he has not yet had his sys-teeth fully out. He seems, however, to have bestowed unusual attention up-on our smoky city of late. Various possessors of aundry substantial amounts, such as $50, $150, and $200, can testify, confidentially, of course, to his bland, affable and winning presence. We have chronioled half a dozen confidence "sells" of vari-ous kinds within a month or two past, and it is now, our mournful duty to add another to the melancholy list. On Sturday s. man named James Tindle, recently from Ohio, stopping at some obscure house in the Fifth Ward, met and made the ac-quaintance of them wearing accast of blue cloth and brassbuttons, et a silling, who represented to him confidentially, that they ware of the look-out for stout, able-bodied men like himself, to enroll themselves under the banner of St. George and go to the Grimes to assist in capatring that ihus far most untakeable city of the Russians, Sebastopol. Naturally fond of adventure and just lasy enough for anything that he thought would not require any extra amount of physical exertion, Tindie caught at the idea. The offer of $20 bounty money was also very alluring and he soor accepted the proposition, announcing him.

The offer of 350 bounty mony was also very alluring and he soon accepted the proposition, aimouncing him-self ready to receive the bounty and go. The peudo-officer accepted his man, remarking that he would defer paying the money till Monday, as the bank was closed, and he (Tindle,) appear-ed to have plenty about him to answer all pur-poses until then. To this Tindle agreed on the same evening, Tindle was drinking with one of the secret service men, when the in-dividual in blue coat and brass buttons came in in a great flurry, called them outside and remark-ed that he had got another recruit up strest but that the obtinate follow would not "list" unless he paid him the money dawn. It was then suggested to Tindle that he land the imcey ma-til Monday. No sconer said than done, and blue coat and brass buttons was off in a twinkling-not to ascure his recruit but to await the arri-val of his accomplice and join in a hearty laugh over the seriansy of their dupe. Shortly after Tindle, who had been drinking more than was good for him, found himself solve, and minus $30.
