OUTRAGEOUS ASSAULT.—Two men, one named Daniel Barber, (who formerly kept tavern in Jacksonville, in this county, but now in Pittsburgh,) and the other ——— Baker, were committed to jail on Sabbath last, by Justice McCormick, of North Huntingdon township, for an outrageous assault and battery on Mr. John Cavett. The defendants had a quarrel with Mr. Cavett, and beat him cruelly. After they left him, he went to Squire McCormick's to make complaint, where he was followed by the prisoners, who again commenced a brutal assault upon him in the magistrate's office. The Squire and his family, by interfering, when they were also assaulted, and a daughter of the Squire's was pretty roughly handled. After gratting their vengeance they made their escape, and were followed to Allegheny county, where, after a stout resistance, they were captured by a posse of sixteen men. They were committed to the jail of Westmoreland county, but the jail not being suitable to their need, they were about to be removed to the jail in Pittsburgh, on Monday, which they very much disliked, and were finally permitted to remain until next Court in an unfinished cell, on their paying all expenses for boarding and guard. Mr. Cavett is a very peaceable and unoffending citizen.—Greensburg Argus.

ASSASSINATION.—The Greensburgh Intelligencer of Wednesday has the following:

Letters were received in this place on Tuesday morning from California, conveying the melancholy intelligence of the assassination (in his own house) of Mr. George Kettering of this place. The particulars are not fully given, save that three men came to his door where he was seated in conversation with a friend, and desired to speak to him privately. He retired to an apartment, whence in a short time the report of repeated discharges from fire arms was heard. Several persons rushed to the spot, and a night bell, had ventilated Mr. Kettering's body, and that he had also been beaten on the head."

O, THOU INVISIBLE SPIRIT OF WINE.—Harrison Taylor, once an industrious respectable citizen, was sent to jail yesterday by Ald. Steel, on the complaint of his mother-in-law who deposes that he had while drunk threatened to take her life, and had long been in the habit of abusing and maltreating his wife and family. Since Taylor has become an intemperate man, his whole nature has changed for the worse, his circumstances have changed for the worse, his hopes have no bright beacon—he is a drunkard, and the happiness of his family destroyed. When will men learn the fearful lesson taught by such daily examples occurring about them!

COWS KILLED.—The night trains on Friday last killed three cows a short distance west of the water station, at Greensburg; belonging severally to J. Barber, H. Row, and ——— Loughner. Persons should keep their cattle in an enclosure at night and not subject themselves to loss, and the risk of throwing the cars off the track and jeopardising the lives of many persons.

KILLED.—A boy named Davis, who was selling apples on a train on the O. & P. R. R., jumped from the train three miles this side of Mansfield on Monday last, fell upon a wood pile, was thrown back against a car and had his left foot cut off. He died on Wednesday from the effects of the accident. His parents reside at Lenox, O.

BEAVER COUNTY FAIR.—The Annual Fair of the Beaver county Agricultural Society is to be held at Beaver, on the 25th and 26th of September.

THE body of George Fields, the lad drowned on Wednesday, was recovered yesterday afternoon, on a sand bar below the Canal, Allegheny.

TWO cows were killed on the Penna R. R. at Mount Liberty last evening at five o'clock, by the train going east.

ACQUITTED.—Judge Lowrie on Saturday last acquitted Tamsel Baldwin (colored) to bail in $500, on a charge of whipping his wife.

MORE EULOGIES ON
Cone Cut Corners.
BY BREMAKER.

456 pp. Illustrated. cloth. Price, $1.25.

From the Mississippi Sentinel.

The writer, whoever he is, writes a good pen. His hits at characters of various sorts are admirable.

From the Cincinnati Daily Times.

It has real humor, sound satire, and a good moral. It has been pronounced equal to Dickens' best effort.

From the St. Louis Evening News.

The writer is a shrewd judge of human nature, and a marvellous mimic of some of its melancholy eccentricities, though without bitterness, for he is as much a humorist as Dickens.

From Norton's Literary Gazette.

There is a naturalness about the descriptions and the characters introduced, which, in the literary line, is really refreshing.

From the New York Express.

Admirably fitted for domestication in that stronghold and citadel of public opinion—the home circle.

From the New York Times.

The writer is more successful with his New Englanders. His descons, parsons, old fishermen, and all such are drawn to the life.

From the Wilmington (Me.) Mail.

It is a capitally written book.

From the Akron (O.) Gazette.

The characters are drawn to the life, and by a master hand.

From the Lancaster (Pa) Examiner.

One of the best pictures of village life we ever read.

From the Keokuck (Iowa) Register.

Written in a style of charming originality—ease and the general tone of the work reminding one of Dickens' writings.

From the Boston Traveler.

It is the work of a master. The characters are most graphically drawn.

From the Pittsburgh Daily Gazette.

One of the very best American works recently issued.

From the Columbus (Ohio) City Post.

The style of the book is peculiarly fresh, humorous, and enchants with a magic spell that tempts us ever onward.

From the New York Tribune.

A very natural and extremely interesting story.

From the Boston Daily Atlas.

The book, we must say, will maintain the author's reputable one it will be, too, to American literature.
