PITTSBURGH GAZETTE

LONG AGO.

When at eve I sit alone,
Thinking on the Past and Gone—
While the clock, with drowsy finger,
Marks how long the minutes linger—
And the embers, dimly burning,
Tell of Life to Dust returning—
Then my lonely chair around,
With a quiet, mournful sound,
With a murmur sole and low,
Come the Ghosts of Long Ago.

One by one, I count them o'er,
Voices, that are heard no more,
Tears, that loving cheeks have wet,
Words, whose music lingers yet—
Holy faces, pale and fair,
Shadowy locks of waving hair—
Happy sighs and whispers dear,
Songs forgotten many a year,—
Lips of dewy fragrance—eyes
Brighter, truer than the skies—
Odors breathed from Paradise
And the gentle shadows glide
Softly murmuring at my side,
Till the long unfriended day,
All forgotten, fades away.

Thus, when I am all alone,
Dreaming o'er the Past and gone,
All around me, sad and slow,
Come the Ghosts of Long Ago.

Numerous letters have been received from the most distinguished characters in the country among which are those of several medical colleges, recommending in the highest terms the above preparations, and their superiority over all other proprietary medicines. Numerous preparations of Sarsaparilla with Buchu and various other ingredients have been given, all of which of course will differ more or less in the qualities of the remedy, according to individual merit. These medicines require considerable skill in their preparation and the employment of different menstrua in order to secure the active principles of the various ingredients, and are most frequently improperly made, and not unfrequently put up with the most worthless, which, in fact, by the injudicious and unskilful manner in which they are manufactured, with the most fanciful preparations, destroy the virtues of the articles, and render them entirely worthless. Two tablespoonfuls of either of these fluids added to a pint of water is equal to a gallon of the Sarsaparilla decoction, and is always in strength one gallon of Syrup Sarsaparilla or Genuine Sarsaparilla as usually made.
