THE CENTRAL AMERICAN QUESTION.—The President, in his late message, states that an international difficulty with Great Britain exists, which cannot long remain undetermined without involving in serious danger the friendly relations of the two countries; and he appears to despond of a successful peaceful termination of the controversy. So grave a matter as this deserves the serious consideration of every citizen, as we can conceive of hardly any greater calamity that a war with Great Britain. The difficulty arises from a difference of construction of the Treaty in regard to Central America, ratified in 1850, and known as the "Clayton-Bulwer" treaty. We will endeavor to place the whole subject in as clear a light before our readers as the space at our disposal will permit.

Great Britain professes to have had some claim to parts of Central America, principally in the islands and territory of the Bay of Honduras, and on the Musquito coast. These rights if they can be called such, grew out of possessions obtained by the Buccaneers, and some arrangements or treaties with the Musquito Indians, which Great Britain alleges gave her a protectorate over that territory. These rights, however, were never recognized by Spain, which claimed the sovereignty over the whole country, and the seizures and claims of Great Britain led to frequent ruptures with that power, and to as frequent treaties, until finally in 1786 a treaty was signed with Spain, by which Great Britain agreed to evacuate the country, and an act was passed by Parliament to indemnify the British settlers for their losses. Thus Great Britain relinquished all her pretended rights to the territory and the protectorate over the Musquito Indians, and did not attempt to renew them, until about the time the treaty of peace with Mexico was signed, which annexed to this country the vast territories of Upper California on the Pacific, when an armed expedition was fitted out from Jamaica, which entered the San Juan de Nicaragua, took possession of the town of San Juan, and changed its name to Greytown, and re-asserted all her old rights in their original force.

Mr. Clayton in a speech in the Senate, calls attention to the fact, that just at the moment when we were about to acquire extensive territories on the Pacific coast, Great Britain seized the passages in Central America which gave us the best means of reaching our California possessions. Whether such was the purpose of the British Ministry it is not necessary to inquire.—Suffice it to say that the sudden revival of exploded claims led to remonstrance on the part of our Government, and to negotiations which finally resulted in the ratification of the "Clayton-Bulwer" treaty, in 1850, by which each of the high contracting parties bound themselves "never to occupy, or fortify, or colonize, or assume or exercise any dominion over Nicaragua, Costa Rica, the Musquito Coast, or any part of Central America; nor will either make use of any protection which either affords or may afford, or any alliance which either has or may have, to or with any State or people, for the purpose of erecting or maintaining any such fortifications, or of occupying, fortifying or colonizing Nicaragua, Costa Rica, the Musquito coast, or any part of Central America, or of assuming or exercising dominion over the same."

Notwithstanding this plain and unequivocal agreement, the meaning of which cannot be disputed by any candid man, Great Britain still maintains intact all the possessions and rights she claimed before the treaty, and has proceeded to colonize the Islands in the Bay of Honduras, called the Bay Islands, and still asserts her protectorate over the Musquito Indians. Our government has remonstrated, and has been endeavoring by negotiation for two or three years past to induce Great Britain to fulfill the treaty; but without effect. That government, in a despatch from Lord Clarendon to Mr. Buchanan, of Sept. 28, 1855, takes the ground that the action of the treaty was "prospective in its operation, and did not in any way interfere with the state of things existing at the time of its conclusion;" and he states in conclusion, that the British government is not prepared to contract the influence or the possessions now held by Great Britain in Central America, "in pursuance of the interpretation of a convention to which interpretation they cannot subscribe."

Thus stands the state of the question at this moment. The President declares that "it is impossible for the United States to acquiesce in such construction of the respective relations of the two governments to Central America," and in this position he is backed by the Senate, and the press generally.

In the debate in the Senate, on the reception of the message, Mr. Clayton, Mr. Cass, Mr. Seward, and other gentleman, expressed their astonishment and indignation at the forced construction put upon the language of the treaty at this late day. Mr. Clayton, who negotiated the treaty, says he "never dreamed of such a construction," and Mr. Seward, in reference to such a perversion of the language of the treaty, says:

"Sir, the honorable Senator from Michigan, (Mr. Cass,) the honorable Senator from Texas, (Mr. Rusk,) and others will, I think, recollect, that, when that treaty was under discussion in the Senate, there was a criticism made upon the language of the treaty in regard to occupation, colonization and dominion. The suggestion was barely made that there might be an equivoke in that treaty; and the moment that it was made I remember the article was read, and every honorable member of the Senate agreed that it was impossible that a doubt could ever be raised on that question.

Sir, I am prepared to stand by the Clayton-Bulwer treaty, and insist upon its enforcement. If that will do. I give the honorable Senators constituting the Committee on Foreign Relation, and the President notice that I am ready to go further, if need be, but not any further unless need be; that is to say, if we cannot stand and hold the British Government to this treaty, I am ready then for the assertion and the maintenance of the Monroe doctrine. * * * *

I do not doubt, for one, that the country demands and requires peace. I believe that either of these two great nations that shall light the flame of war will call down upon itself the execrations of mankind. I am, therefore, for maintaining peace, but at the same time we must maintain the national rights, the constitutional rights of our position. I believe the Congress of the United States will be ready to take either form which, on due consideration, shall be found to be the one most practicable and most wise."

We have no doubt that Congress and the nation will insist upon the fair and honest interpretation of the treaty, and will resist to the last extremity the forced interpretation of the Palmerston Ministry. We have no fears, however, that the people of England will consent to be embroiled in a difficulty with this country on so untenable a ground, and for such paltry considerations. Lord Clarendon will be obliged to review his forced interpretation, or vacate his office.

MR. PLATT.—The Philadelphia News affirms that this gentleman, just selected by the democrats of the Pennsylvania Senate as Speaker of that body, is a Know Nothing. This we can hardly believe. That he worked hard for Mr. Cameron last winter is true; but others not in that category did the same. A more significant fact, in view of present events is, that he is an anti-Nebraska man; and if, in addition to this, he shall turn out to be a Know Nothing, and that the Democratic members of the Senate knew it, the party they represent is less strong than it boasts itself to be. A pro-slavery, anti-Know Nothing party would not have chosen such men as Mr. Platt, if it could have helped it.

NEW MUSIC.—"L'Innocence: Grande Galop de Concert. Dedicated to Mrs. Mary E. Schenley. Composed by H. Kleber. New York: published by Firth, Pond & Co. Pittsburgh; Kleber & Bro." This is an elaborate production of our talented tyrolean, suited to advanced pupils on the piano and those who are capable of mastering difficult compositions. It is something in advance of the usual range of such music, and worthy of study by those who are devoted to the art.

The report of the State Treasurer sets forth pretty much the same facts as the Governor's Message, and we do not therefore feel called on to publish it. On one subject, however, he ventures a suggestion of some importance. It seems that during a considerable portion of the year, a large amount of money accumulates in the Treasury, which remains unemployed and unproductive until the periods for paying the semi-annual interest. It has been proposed to put this money into the banks selected as public depositories in the principal cities—Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and Harrisburg, and allow them to discount paper with it for the benefit of the community, but this plan the State Treasurer disapproves of, and proposes the following substitute:

"The only feasible plan which has suggested itself to my mind, by which the Treasury might be benefited by this surplus fund, is by anticipating the payment of the interest on the public debt, and requiring from the loanholders a premium for such pre-payment at the rate of say four per cent. per annum. At the end of every month the balance remaining in the Treasury, after paying the ordinary current expenses of the month, might then be deposited with the agent selected by the Commonwealth for the payment of the interest, giving notice to the loanholders of the amount in his hands applicable to that purpose. Four per cent. being so much below the ordinary rate of interest, would induce the public creditors to come forward with alacrity to claim their interest in advance, deducting the premium or discount required. Judging from the large balance that have been, and most probably will continue to be, on hand, as well as the constant demand for money, the Commonwealth would, by the plan suggested, gain an amount equal to two per cent. per annum on the whole amount of interest paid by her, which, with very little additional expense in the payment of the interest, would be a clear saving to the treasury, of at least forty thousand dollars annually."

The "original" State K. N. Council met at Altoona on Wednesday. The delegation to the Cincinnati Convention was appointed to attend the special session of the National Council at Philadelphia on the 18th of February. Elections for delegates to the National Nominating Convention of the 22d February are to be held on the 4th of that month. The following slap was made at the rival State Council, lately in session at Philadelphia:

Resolved, That the Presidents of subordinate Councils throughout the State be instructed to withhold the new P. W. from all persons claiming to be with us, who have connected themselves with the seceders from the State Council of which J. W. Hunsecker purports to be the President, as in the opinion of this Council they have violated their plighted faith, and also that the President of the State Council be directed to withhold the P. W. from the Presidents of such Councils as have endorsed their action, and revoke the charters of all Councils who do not recognize the supremacy of this State Council.

"PANDERING TO THE FOREIGN VOTE."—The Native Americans on Saturday nominated Mr. Wm. Bingham for Mayor. One of the leading motives alleged for this choice is, that he can rally to his side the vote of the draymen, most of whom are foreigners. The great objection of this party to the old organizations was, that they pandered to the foreign vote; and now we have this nominally American party doing the same—at once confessing its weakness and imitating the practice which it condemns in others.

U. S. SENATOR.—Letter-writers from Harrisburg say that Gov. FORNEY's chances for election as U. S. Senator are daily improving, and that his success is more than probable.—The Governor is engaged in the iron business, and will take strong grounds in favor of a protective tariff; but on the Slavery question he will prove as subservient as any of his democratic predecessors. He is not, however, by any means a party hack.

OUR BOOK TABLE.

NAPOLEON AT HOME, or interesting anecdotes and remarkable conversations of the Emperor, during the five and a half year's of his captivity collected from his Memorials of Las Cases, Montholon, Gourgaud, Antommarchi and others. By J. S. G. Abbott, with Illustrations. N. Y. Harper.

Napoleon's genius and intellect were admitted to be of the very highest order, even by his enemies. But the Political, Military and Moral wisdom, displayed by the Emperor in his conversations with distinguished individuals is scattered in many volumes. Mr. Abbott has performed the labor of concentrating these gems of the Emperorin one beautiful volume uniform with his life of Napoleon, and we presume all who have bought the one will want the other also.

MISS BUNKLEY'S BOOK—The testimony of an escaped Nun from the Sisterhood of St. Joseph, Emmettsburgh Maryland, Mother Superior of the Sisters of charity in the U. S. Harper N. Y.

This is no Maria Monk book but a veritable narrative which might never have been presented to the world, but for the defamatory letter of the superior of the convent from which Miss Bunkley escaped. In this country we want no fellowship with deeds that must be performed in darkness, whether political or religious. Let us have light from every quarter.

THE Freeman's Journal argues from the recent murder in Connecticut that the common people ought not to be allowed to read the Bible, or at least only under the supervision of an infallible expounder of it. By, it will be recollected, murdered his victim by knocking him down with a stick of witch-hazel and then cutting his throat with a pocket-knife. What would be thought of an argument founded on these facts in favor of exterminating all witch-hazel trees, and of allowing no man to carry a knife in his pocket except under the supervision of a policeman? —*N. Dr. Hunter on Consumption.

LETTER NO. X.

TO THE EDITORS OF THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE.

GENTLEMEN.—There is another form of Consumption more insidious in its advance than either of those described in my preceding letters. It is called "Latent Consumption," because tubercles exist in the lungs for a long time without manifesting any of their usual symptoms. There is no cough, no expectoration, no spitting of blood. Most frequently, there are no symptoms that point to the lungs, and but few that indicate derangement of the general health. But there is something in the countenance which is readily detected by the practiced eye of the physician, and which is entirely overlooked by the nearest friends. The patient is evidently out of health, and failing; but since he never complains of anything in the lungs, the physician has rarely an opportunity to investigate the case until the disease is firmly established. The sufferer goes on, feeling weak and disponding—perhaps becoming thinner—and has little energy of mind, but still remains ignorant of the true cause of the mischief. He consults any number of "Doctors," and gets the most opposite opinions. Some treat the case very lightly, and promise a speady cure. Others advise "change of air, and quiet." One says it is all "stomach"—another that the liver is out of order. He tries the prescription of each in turn—the "Regular," the "Homœopath," and the "Water Cure;" but finds he gets no better. He can sum up the result of his experience by saying that his purse has been lightened by the sum of their bills. And yet he cannot see why he does not get well. Nor do any of the physicians enlighten him. Those who know the least about his disease promise the most—but accomplish nothing. Those who have discovered the true state of the lungs do not reveal their condition, because they do not wish to alarm where they know of no remedy.

In such a case, if we carefully examine the state of the lungs, we find dulness in the upper part of one lung, generally below the collar-bone. This dulness is occasioned by tubercles. If, at this stage, the physician in attendance fails to discover the real condition of the lungs, and to adopt the proper means to arrest the progress of the disease, the patient is irrevocably lost. This kind of Consumption is far more common than is supposed; but, when judiciously treated, is the most curable of all.

Speaking of the frequency of this form of the disease, Laennec remarks: "We may, indeed, say that the greater number of cases of Consumption are latent, since nothing is more common than to find tubercles in lungs otherwise quite healthy, and in persons who have never shown any symptoms of phthisis. It has frequently appeared to me, from carefully comparing the history of my patients, with the appearances on dissection, that the greatest number of first attacks are mistaken for colds." The Queen's physician, Sir James Clark, in alluding to the liability to mistakes of this character, observes:—"We have known more than one example of extensive tubercular disease of the lungs discovered on a post-mortem examination, when during life, the disease was looked for in the stomach, liver or bowels."

With the melancholy experience, which all must have had, of the folly of allowing Consumption to become firmly seated before it is discovered, every person should make it a point to have the lungs carefully examined, every few months, by some physician in whose skill and experience he can place the fullest confidence; and by so doing many will happily realize the wisdom of the old adage, "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure."

Consumption is sometimes attended and masked by fever, to such a degree as to be mistaken, for remittent fever, or for a kind of dumb ague. This is called by physicians, for the sake of distinction, "Hybrid Consumption"—and is very fatal, and in general rapid in its progress.

Having now called attention to all the kinds of Consumption, describing the symptoms and peculiarities of each, I shall, in my next letter, speak of "Tubercles," as the immediate cause of ulceration and destruction of the LUNGS.

THE Maine Legislature assembled at Augusta on Wednesday. The Senate elected Lott M. Morrill, (Dem.) President, and Wm. G. Clark, (Straight Whig) Secretary. The House chose Isaac Reed, (Straight Whig,) Speaker, and David Dunn, (Dem.) Clerk. The union between the Old Line Democrats and the Straight Whigs seems thus to be completed.

THE BURLINGTON ACCIDENT.—The engineer, Israel Adams, of the train in August last when the dreadful catastrophe occurred, has been tried for manslaughter, at Mount Holly, and acquitted. He has been in the employ of the Camden and Amboy Company over twelve years, and has always been considered a careful and competent engineer.

GREAT SNOW STORM.—On the 27th ult., the western States on the Michigan and Southern and Northern Indiana Railroads were detained about twenty-four hours, by the immense amount of snow which fell along the line. At Laporte it is said to be about two and a half feet in depth.

The Greatest Medical Discovery OF THE AGE.

Mr. Kennedy, of Roxbury, has discovered in one of our common pastured weeds a remedy that cures every kind of Tumor, Scrofula worst Scrofula in a common People.

He has tried it in over eleven hundred cases, and never failed except in two cases (both thunder humor.) He has now in his possession over two hundred certificates of its value, all within twenty miles of Boston.

Two bottles are warranted to cure a nursing sore mouth.

One to three bottles will cure the worst kind of pimples of the face.

Two to three bottles will clear the system of biles.

Two bottles are warranted to cure the worst canker in the mouth and stomach.

Three to five bottles are warranted to cure the worst case of erysipelas.

One to two bottles are warranted to cure ringing in the ears.

Two bottles are warranted to cure running of the ears and blotches among the hair.

Four to six bottles are warranted to cure corrupt and running ulcers.

One bottle will cure any eruption of the skin.

Two to three bottles are warranted to cure the most desperate cases of rheumatism.

Two to three bottles are warranted to cure the worst case of ringworm.

Three to four bottles are warranted to cure salt rheum

Five to eight bottles will cure the worst case of scrofula.

A benefit is always experienced from the first bottle, and a perfect cure is warranted when the above quantity is taken.

Nothing looks so improbable to those who have in vain tried all the wonderful medicines of the day, as that a common weed growing in the pastures, and along old stone walls, should cure every humor in the system; yet it is now a fixed fact. If you have a humor it has to Cure. There are no ifs nor ands, buts or ha's about it: smiting cases cases and not years, is peddled over a thousand bottles of it in the vicinity of Boston, and it has the effects in every case. It has already done some of the greatest cures ever done in Massachusetts. I gave it to children a year old; to old people of sixty. I have seen poor, puny, scrofulous children, whose flesh was soft and flabby, restored to a perfect state of health by one bottle.

To those who are subject to a sick headache, one bottle will always cure it. It gives great relief to catarrh and dizziness. Some who have been costive for years, have taken and been regulated by it. Where the body is sound, it work quite easy, but does not leave it. Where any derangement of the functions of nature, it will cause very singular results, but you must not be alarmed—they always disappear in from four days to a week. There is never a bad result from it. On the contrary, when that feeling is over you will feel yourself like a new person. I heard some of the most extravagant encomiums of it that man ever listened to. No change of diet is ever necessary. Eat the best you can get. I have likewise an herb, which, when steamed in sweet oil, dissolves scrofulous swelling of the neck and under the ears. Price 50 cents. Price of the Medical Discovery $1 per bottle.

DIRECTIONS FOR USE.—Adult, one table-spoonful per day. Children over eight years, dessert spoonful; children from five to eight years, tea-spoonful. These doses are adapted to all constitutions, take enough to operate on the bowels twice each day.

DR. KENNEDY gives personal attendance in bad cases of scrofula.

Sold, wholesale and retail, at Dr. KENNEDY, 140 Wood street, corner of Virgin alley, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Speaking What They Know.

These gentlemen take pleasure in testifying in regard to R. A. Fahnestock's Vermifuge, because two of the firm have used it in their private practice as physicians for a number of years, and they have known it, by observation, to be good.

DR. R. A. FAHNESTOCK & CO.

DR. A. ALEXANDER, of Albany, Ind., July 6th, 1855.

GENTLEMEN—Having sold your valuable Vermifuge for some time, and having seen it used for many years, we would recommend it to all as a safe and efficient remedy for all cases of worms. In no instance have we known it to fail, any still results following its administration, but always have it to unravel the worm for which it was intended, and been entirely satisfactory.

Believing that everything that has been set forth in regard to its virtues is strictly in accordance with our observations not only as practitioners, but as men of business, we would enthusiastically say to all who read this, that it is the best Vermifuge now in use, and that its virtues are best known when tried.

Sold by WILKINS, KELLY, HOOVER & RILEY, wholesale and retail by the proprietors, and by druggists and country merchants throughout the United States, Canada and Cuba.

Depot for Pittsburgh, at R. A. FAHNESTOCK & CO., corner of Wood and First sts.

Nelson's Ambrosyne.

The Ambrotype is decidedly the most pleasing, beautiful and durable style of Portrait ever known to the art. Their tone is of velvety and flesh like appearance never obtained by the old process. Being taken on glass, they are exceedingly brilliant and retain a likeness like the Daguerreotype, they are perfectly distinct in any light, while children are pleased and delighted with the likeness they see in almost inappreciable point of time by the Ambrotype. By no other process can pictures be made so perfectly beautiful. We respectfully request our friends and the public generally to call and examine specimens and judge for themselves. Remember the place, NELSON'S GALLERY, old Post Office Building, Third street, near Market.
