PRICE OF THE PROPERTY OF THE P

again, he wanted to know of Mr. Aiken whether be had made any pledges satisfactory to the Southern wing of the National American party. This wasn't the right time, and Mr. Rust objected to the gentleman's proceeding; but he made no objection to letting Mr. Aiken answer that he was not a candidate for the Speakerahip—which was the only answer he made to Barclay's very pertihent interrogatory.

The fact was that Mr. Aiken had authorized the assurance to the South Americans, that he had never opposed the sentiments of the American Party, and the intimation that he socuid not. He could not think of desping this and so he wisely said nothing on the subject, and lost Mr. Barclay's vote, which he certainly equid not have got if he had answered.

Several "South Americans" now came in, one by one; and voted for Aiken, natwithstanding their repeated declarations that they would never yield to an opponent of Americansism. But they stood out to the last, and then surrendered, unconditionally, wretched prisoriers of war to the enemy they had so long and so gallantly defied. The Clerk and the Tellers case up the vote.

The Gewitten will assure a subject of the propositions submitted to Bagain in order to enable her to complete her preparation.

At use tail the ammunition seemed to be exhausted. The Clerk and the Tellers case up the vote.

Meantime Broom and Millward, of Pennsylvania, collect, of Delaware, and others, who had voted for "filer to the lart," as Callen said when his name was called, were hesisged by an anxious host who, with arms around their necks, eloquently besought them to vote for Alken, and save the Union Yorm.—Banke! "Il' be — if I do!" was the emphatic response which rolled across to my corner of the Hall from one of the number—and "50 asy they all!"

After several minutes delay, the Clerk called to order. Mr. Benson, of Maryland, rose to announce the result, as one of the tellars. It was now nearly 7 o'clock, and the great chandeller, cast its glare over the intensely excited controls are to be greated as cittisms (cast its glare over the intensely excited one of the chivalry through his set teeth. "Got 'em, boys," said Matteson, as he cavorted around in "alcopy hollow," and rolled his eyes from Pather Giddings to one and another of the "old guard," who had fought battles, but never won such a viscory before. And the densely crowded galleries looked down upon the seque in an agony of supense, and hope, and fear. "Order!" "for der!" shouted the Clerk—and sleene like death end and the of the Clerk and sleene like death end and the of the Clerk and sleene like death end when the moment they contend in the super form and the part of the death and the order when moment they enter the indiana, and the part of the contend of the chivalry through his set teeth.
