From a paper on "Domestic Manufactures" in the South and West, published by M. Tarver, of Missouri, in 1847, the following extract is taken.

"The free population of the South may be divided into two classes—the slaveholder and the non-slaveholder. I am not aware that the relative numbers of these two classes have ever been ascertained in any of the States; but I am satisfied that the non-slaveholders for outnamber the slaveholders—perhaps by three to one. In the more Southern portion of this region, the non-slaveholders for outnamber the slaveholders possess, generally, but very small means, and the land which they possess is almost universally poor, and so sterile that a soanty subsistence is all that can be derived from its outlivation; and the more fertile soil, being in the possession of the slaveholder, must ever remain out of the power of those who have none.
