Probably there is no man conversational powers were of a high order.

Her last work, "Ernest Limwood," is one of in the North more unpopular with the masses, and there is not the slightest probability that he to enter the slightest probability that he to enter the scenes possess sufficient interest to command the attention of the reader to the tion is received with icy coldness by the members of the party which nominated him, and we do not believe they will support him. The Republican party can, under no circumstances unite in his support, so that there is now an end to the doubt as to the number of candidates. There will certainly be three in the field, if Fillmore does not decline. Looking at the question with such lights as are now before us, we incline to the opinion, that the South is playing a deep game. We do not believe they will give Fillmore and Donald-son one Southern electors and Southern alestors and Southern alestors and Southern alestors are some of Southern alestors and Southern alestors are some southern alestors and Southern alestors are some southern alestors and Southern alestors are some southern alestors are some southern alestors are some southern alestors. By dividing the North Life of Southern Life are, according to the North Pennsylvania and addition. By dividing the North Pennsylvania and additionable of the North Pennsylvania and the No North, Pennsylvania, and probably one or two other of the Free States, may be carried for slavery. This would secure the triumph of the slave-power, and devote Kansas, New Mexico, and Utah to slavery. Such is the programme The picture is dark, but it is best to look it fair ly in the face. There is hops in one quarter, and only one, and that is that the great Republican party which is now organized, may attract to its broad and liberal banner, a sufficien number of the voters of the Free States to nullify this deep laid scheme. There is a widepread feeling in the North, in opposition to the encroachments of slavery which only needs to be united to be victorious. We do not despair of this union. We trust the people of the Pree States, will not submit to be dragooned into obeying the beheats of the slave power for-

THE REPUBLICAN CONVENTION. - The New York Commercial, speaking of the doings of the Republican National Convention, says:

York Commercial, speaking of the doings of the Bepublican National Convention, says:

"And what was done during the whole first-day? Precitically nothing at all. Not a single new idea was broached; apparently not an address was made worthy of a ward meeting, and some were delivered that cught never to have parsed the lips or been conceived in the hearts of those who uttered them. All that was done was the keeping up of excitement to the feverpoint. Something was cald at the commencement about caution, but it fell idly upon the hearers, and agitation and discontent and angy feeling were the natural consequence of the speeches that were made. There was neither solidity, nor depth, nor grandeur, nor permanency, in anything that was said or done."

We have been sorry to observe the course pursued of late by this paper, which is not only in opposition to its past history, but manifests a weakness and ignorance on political questions which must be very damaging to its reputation. In its attempt to revive the old Whig party on its old iscue, or rather on no issues at all except that of ignoring all questions of practical and visid interest, and its solemn editorial platitudes about moderation, harmogr, and mothers have well assent of the press." But the Convention during its whole proceedings, and we pronounce the above description as false in every particular, a mere caricature of this highly respectable and noble body of men. We have attended many Conventions, bug never see where there was more diguity, more elevated patriotism. There was neither of the convention during its whole proceedings, and we pronounce the above description as false in every particular, a mere caricature of this highly respectable and noble body of men. We have attended many Conventions, bug never see where there was more diguity, more elevated patriotism. There was neither the convention during its whole proceedings, and we pronounce the above description as false in every particular, a mere caricature of this highly respectable and noble b of men. We have attended many Conventions, but never one where there was more dignity, more ability, more elequence, nor a spirit of more elevated patriotism. There was neither agitation, discontent, nor angry feeling, but the utmost heartiness, fraternal feeling and harmony. Men of grey hairs, of national reputation, of distinguished ability, took an active part in the proceedings, and all the excitement manifested did honor to the heads and hearts.

The citizens interested and a course laid down to be acted upon.

Harrowing cases of this kind are common in the South, so that if it were even true that the ignorant negroes are as well off as if in Farmers' and Mechanics' Fire & Marine freedom, these exceptional cases are attended with an amount of distress and injustice suffi cient to condemn the whole system to universa detestation.

To Correspondent "M," complains of the treatment the Stockholders of the Allegheny Valley Railroad received at Logan's and Panusseus stations, on the day of the opening. They were invited to attend the opening, but the care passed ou without admitting them, alleging a want of room. This was no doubt the true reason, but we think it would have been better to have stopped and taken on some as delegates for the rest, and apologized for want of room. He also complains of the Directors have endeavored to decide to the best of their ability. They may have made mistakes which experience will remedy. We have stated the subject of his grievences. "Tyzurar" has been received, and carefully considered. The position of affairs at present render the publication of his remarks incapedient. Parties are at present in a transite state. Those who have been against us may soon be with us on the great subject of opposition to the most randed, and we doubt not there will be only two parties in Western Pennsylvania, at the next Presidential election—the Pro-Slavery Demogracy, and the Republicane.
