LOUISVILLE.-If ever a city had reason to pray for deliverance from an ovil which is sapping with a very attractive table of contents. "The Kane Relief Expedition," written by some mems the unfortunate city of Louisville. The press ed to selfish and personal purposes, it is equally potent for evil. The press of Louisville seems bent on the ruin of a city which, although magnificently located, has had enough to contend suffer the interest to flag. "Scampavias" is with in the incubus of elavery, without having continued, and "Our Relations with England" its vitals rent by the gril passions of her own is discussed, with various other articles, render-ing this number more than usually attractive,

The samous mat. ward murder and trial originated a fierce newspaper warfare, which was almost as discreditable to Louisville as the murder and its disgraceful issue; but this was nothing to the madness which has ruled the hour since the awful election riots last August. Although that terrible and bloody tragedy was a though that terrible and bloody tragedy was a lesson which would have awad almost any other. though that terrible and bloody tragedy was a lesson which would have swed almost any other community into stillness and humanity, yet from that day to this the press of that diy has teamed with the most bitter and discreditable pursons which were and blackguardism, which results abuse and blackguardism, which with the most bitter and discreditable personal and political abuse and blackguardism, which
