The State Convention met to-day, Hon. John Allison was elected President. The State ticket. adopted at Harrisburgh, by the Union Conven tion, last March, was adopted with only one or two dissenting voices. Senatorial Delegates to the National Convention were appointed, con sisting of Hon. D. Maxwell, of Northampton; and James Verere, Esq., of Philadelphia as delegates at large, with J. W. Morehead, of Indiana, David Taggart, of Northumberland, J. H. The six delegates are well-known and excellent men and the content of the state were selected with great prudence and care. 1 think the list could not have been bettered .-Five of them are for Mr. M'Lean and one for

The Pennsylvania delegation, I may say in

Mr. Taggart, of Northumberland, offered a resolution recommending the delegates at ingre to support McLean; amendments were offered to substitute the name of Fremont, and Seward, when a motion was made to lay the whole subject on the table. A rambling debate followed; indicating the various preferences of the mem-bers, when the vote was taken by your and nays, and the motion to lay on the table was carried; but before the vote was announced, the moves had leave to withdraw the resolution, and the the right to transport Slaves through Pennsylsubject was informally passed over by general

The feeling shown in this debate showed a pretty strong (though not dominant) feeling for Fremont; but every one said, and the convention grew enthusiastic over the announcement that no matter who was the nominee, we would take him and do our best to elect him.

The Convention then authorized the President to appoint a State Committee of twenty-seven, and adjourned to meet again on Wednesday. I am much encouraged by the hopeful feeling provalent on every hand. I repeat my opinion that Fremont will be nominated, but the only wided both geographically and politically, and trouble that the Convention will have, will be to all the candidates are eminently worthy of our find a proper candidate for Vice President. z.
