BELTING
Patent Riveted and Stretched
LEATHER BELTING,
From the Manufactory of Hoit & Brothers, NEW YORK.

THE Belting of this manufacture has been awarded the Gold Medals and Diplomas from almost every Fair and Institute throughout the United States for the last ten years, at the American Institute, New York, at their last meeting in the Fall of 1855.

Their Belting has received much of the attention of the Engineering profession, which has resulted in the adoption of it by the principal manufacturing establishments in the country, after the trial by themselves at their own receiving house, in preference to all others. Those who have used it for their own tannery, after the hollow and shoulders have been worked out, pronounce it the best Belting they have ever had from the vats, curried immediately, wet and dry stretched on separate frames, and the improvement commenced and rivited with their patent copper rivets, and the whole then put in a peculiar press, even surface on both sides and edges, causing them to run true, and not jump or heat, and giving a power of more than 20 per cent. over those made in the usual manner. To the attention of all kinds of machinery, but more particularly to cotton and woolen manufacturers, rolling mills, paper, grist mills, cotton gins, flax, hemp and hackling machines, and all other machinery, this Belting is specially recommended, as the best of city reference can be given for the quality of the Belting. From the Manufactory of Hoit & Brothers,
NEW YORK.

THE Belting of this manufacture has been awarded the Gold Medals and Diplomas from almost every Fair and Institute throughout the United States for the last ten years, at the American Institute, New York, at their last meeting in the Fall of 1855.

Their Belting has received much of the attention of the Engineering profession, which has resulted in the adoption of it by the principal manufacturing establishments in the country, after the trial by themselves at their own receiving house, in preference to all others. Those who have used it for their own tannery, after the hollow and shoulders have been worked out, pronounce it the best Belting they have ever had from the vats, curried immediately, wet and dry stretched on separate frames, and the improvement commenced and rivited with their patent copper rivets, and the whole then put in a peculiar press, even surface on both sides and edges, causing them to run true, and not jump or heat, and giving a power of more than 20 per cent. over those made in the usual manner. To the attention of all kinds of machinery, but more particularly to cotton and woolen manufacturers, rolling mills, paper, grist mills, cotton gins, flax, hemp and hackling machines, and all other machinery, this Belting is specially recommended, as the best of city reference can be given for the quality of the Belting.
