PITTSBURGH CHEMICAL AND VARNISH WORKS.
FINCH & CO.,
RESPECTFULLY inform Druggists and Dealers in Varnishes generally that they have for some time been engaged in the preparation of all descriptions of Copal and other VARNISHES, and are now prepared to supply their friends and the public generally with articles of the very best manufacture, made of the best material, and well suited with the art, at the same and on the most favorable terms.
FINCH & CO. intend to devote themselves to cultivating a first class trade, and have no doubt that their efforts in this direction will prove satisfactory. Their tariff prices will be found equally low with any of the same's manufacture, and, being determined that no article shall leave their works but of approved and tested quality, they only ask for a trial and a share of public patronage.
To one line Body COACH VARNISH we would call particular attention. This article is equal to any English similar attention. This article is equal to any English Coach Varnish of the very best brands, being made exactly after the process of the first class English houses, by Mr. Thomas Douglass, who for many years was engaged in some of the most extensive establishments in England and Scotland.
Our Anti-Corrosive BLACK VARNISH we would particularly recommend to Founders, Boat-builders, and Manufacturers of iron generally, its peculiar qualities prevent oxydation entirely, which is a great desideratum to those using varnish for iron, and prefers it to all other asphaltum and other compounds.
All orders left at Messrs. JOHN IRWIN & SONS' Front street, will be punctually attended to, or with J. FINCH, 127 Third st. jn20-dewly

U. S. PATENT MARBLE COMPANY,
90 Thompson street, N. Y.,
MANUFACTURERS OF MARBLE MANTLES, TABLE TOPS, COLUMNS, PEDESTALS, Marble Paving Tiles, Italian Marbles, Fire Proof Marble, &c. &c. The Company are the sole owners of the Patent Right for the preparation of Marble Dust, chemically combined with mineral colors, so as to be moulded into any form or color, by which a marble can be manufactured at less than half the cost of its common material. Besides this it is durability, and beauty of finish. Unlike that of bleached Iron and Slate, there is no surface work, the coloring running to the mass of the material, while the variable quality of their being improved so that boats may pass them, and they be no longer the head of navigation on the Mississippi.
The entire fall, from the head of the "sunk" to where boats can easily, and sometimes do, run, is 73 feet; the length nearly 1½ miles, divided as follows: From the head of the sunk to the perpendicular fall 400 yards, fall 15 feet. In this portion the bed of the river is solid rock, the greater part of it smooth, with a gradual descent, down which the water glides smoothly, but with amazing rapidity. A little more than a hundred yards above the main fall the water strikes a comparatively level bed, where it is deeper. The reaction caused by the change of grade throws up a heavy wave or breaker, which extends nearly across the river. Thence the water passes on to the main fall in a rather gentle current.
The perpendicular fall is 18 feet, divided into three nearly equal parts by two masses of rock a few rods in extent, over the tops of which the water breaks when high.
For three hundred yards below the perpendicular fall the water is very rough and rapid, pitching and breaking over the rocks, and lashed into foam. The fall in this distance is 20 feet.
In the remainder of the distance—nearly a mile —10 feet. To this point boats can easily run at any stage of water. It is all a mistake about St. Paul being the head of navigation. A few years ago almost every boat ran to Fort Snelling, ten miles above St. Paul, and six below the falls, and they are now about putting on a line of boats to run to that point.
The banks, for some distance below the main fall, are solid and perpendicular rocks, from sixty to eighty feet high, on both sides of the river, but on the Minneapolis or Saint side they do not extend far down. On that side, at what may be called the head of navigation, is nearly a mile below the perpendicular fall, there is a strip of bottom land some fifty or sixty yards in width, which becomes wider as it goes up, and ascends in a uniform grade for 600 yards, where it attains the height of the river above the sunk. From that point to the perpendicular fall, 750 yards, there is a strip of low land, 100 yards in width, and about the same distance from the bluff along the river, through which part of the river evidently flowed at one time, which is in no place more than ten feet higher than the river above the sunk, and some two hundred
