TEXT BOOKS.—We published on Saturday last an article referring to the action of the majority and minority of the Committee on Text Books, of the Central Board of Education, in relation to the continuance in use of Cornell's Series of Geographies, in which the following sentence occurs: "We are requested to say that several of these names were obtained by a misrepresentation; the signers were informed that a change of text books had been decided upon, and were asked for their preference," (referring to the names of certain teachers attached to a paper which was made a part of the minority report of the committee). We desire to say that in no way did we or our informant intend to connect Alderman McMaster, the minority of the Committee, with the "misrepresentation" alluded to, as the structure of the sentence might imply; and make this statement in order to remove any impression to the contrary. The Alderman had prepared a reply to that portion of our article, but withdrew it upon this explanation. We give below his concluding remarks:

* * * It was the desire of the minority, as I trust it was of the majority, of the Committee to give the subject referred to them a just and fair investigation. This could have been done without aid or interference from any quarter, it is modestly presumed, in a much better and more satisfactory manner. It is said, they were informed (the teachers referred to) that a change of text books had been decided upon." To this it is only necessary to reply that no sane man in his sober senses would even for a moment entertain the supposition that, such a contingency, under existing circumstances could possibly take place. There are other text books to the choice of which no objections can be made—Geography, but who dares to move a change—the member who would do so would have his trouble for his pains.

"With the action of the committee and its subsequent adoption by the Central Board, although disagreeing to its propriety, the minority of the committee is perfectly content, being fully satisfied that the members of the Board are all equally conscientious and disinterested in the discharge of their duties. It seems to be time, however, that the publishers of Cornell's Geography were willing to furnish the revised edition of the work "to the pupils studying Geography in the schools of the City of Troy gratuitously, thereby giving to each child a nice new book for a soiled or mutilated one." The minority would have been better pleased with the action had the committee recommended the introduction of the revised edition, even if the pupils in the Pittsburgh schools had to pay for it, but much better pleased if the revised edition had been recommended, upon the condition that the publishers would furnish the books to our pupils now studying Geography, upon the same terms as they were furnished to the pupils in the schools of the city of Troy, gratuitously, as we had greater claims upon their generosity than the schools of that city, inasmuch as the unrevised edition has heretofore been in use in our schools notwithstanding its admitted defects.

ASD. MCMASTER."

SUPPOSED MURDER OF HUGH CORRIGAN.—We find in The Westmoreland Argus, edited by J. M. Laird, Esq., the assertion that circumstances lead to the impression that Hugh Corrigan was murdered, and that the verdict of the jury indicated a doubt in their mind that he had committed suicide. He says the facts that Mr. Keenan was engaged in writing his confession, which was to have been finished the next day, and that he had written to Rev. Mr. Fulton to visit him the next week, justify the suspicion that he was foully dealt with. Mr. Laird held the inquest:

"The true intent and meaning of this verdict is that the jury were not satisfied that Hugh Corrigan committed Suicide in the legal acceptation of the word. That the poison was prepared by scientific hands all are satisfied, and that some of the poisonous substances found in his stomach are not to be had or kept by physicians, and all only in extensive drug stores. Any one of them was sufficient to destroy life, yet it was possible for one or more of the poisons to be taken into the stomach, and that organ to be in a situation to permit the poison to lie dormant for a considerable time, or be ejected without fatal effects.—Antidotes might have been applied and life saved. But with the compound of deadly poison found in his stomach death was inevitable and fearfully speedy.

"His will known that the deceased had told several gentlemen that he knew of several robberies and murders that had been perpetrated in this neighborhood, and that the guilty perpetrators were not far off, and were not suspected.—One was that of John Winn, who died many years ago in Blairsville, from the effects of arsenic administered to him by a person he refused to name. Winn was robbed of a sum of money.

"Another was a pedlar murdered in Derry township and five hundred dollars of money taken from him. He denied all participation in the murders, but said he knew the perpetrators. He said that if he must be hung, there were three or four in the county that ought to share the same fate. Mr. Keenan had written in his own lips a history of his early life, and he had made arrangements to make a clean breast to Mr. K. on Sabbath and Monday. Our own opinion is that the deadly compound was prepared for him by some skilful hand, at the instance of some one who dreaded further developments, and to whom it was important that his lips should be more speedily sealed in death than the law contemplated. The deadly compound was surreptitiously conveyed to him by some one permitted to visit him in his cell, and who told him that it would soothe and calm the nervous excitement under which he was laboring."

This is very startling and we hope that, if the suspicion be correct, no means will be spared to discover the perpetrators of the deed.

THE PITTSBURGH AND STEUBENVILLE RAILROAD.—Mr. Latham arrived here on Monday last, in company with Mr. Jno. S. King, one of the contractors, to complete the Pittsburgh and Steubenville Railroad.

At a meeting of the Board on Wednesday, in accordance with a previous arrangement, Mr. Isaac Jones, the President of the Company, voluntarily resigned his office, to take effect on the 1st October, and Mr. Latham was unanimously elected President of the Company. We learn that Mr. Latham has been acting as an assistant in the Banking House of Jno. Thompson, Esq., New York, nearly ever since the failure of the House of Selden, Withers & Co., of Washington City.

Mr. Latham will occupy a position as a Director until the date above named, at which time, Mr. Jones, will exchange with him. The work will be pushed vigorously.

PUBLIC HEALTH.—Much credit is due Mr. George Fortune, the very efficient Health officer and to the Board, for their unceasing exertions to secure a full compliance with the laws of health. Mr. Fortune brought before Councils, at their last meeting, the condition of the Ninth Ward, and the probable sickness that will result from the stagnant ponds of that district.—When that communication was pending in the Common Council, Mr. Little, member for the 9th ward, stated that already there has been much sickness there on that account—fever and ague, and dysentery. We hope that the Committee to whom the matter was referred will be prompt in devising and authorizing a way to remove the nuisances complained of.

Our attention has been directed to the fact that the Dog Law is disregarded altogether. If there be such a thing as hydrophobia, which many doubt, our citizens will stand a fair chance of suffering its consequences.

THE United Brethren in Christ, whose church on Hand street, Pittsburgh, is to be dedicated next Sabbath at 10 o'clock, though not much known in this city (on account of being quite lately introduced in Pittsburgh), are a people orthodox in doctrine, Republican in government, and strictly anti-slavery in principle. They originated under the Rev. Wm. Otterbine, A. D. 1774, in the city of Baltimore, and at present number one hundred thousand communicants in the United States.

They will no doubt be successful in their undertaking in this city.

ELECTION OF PRESIDENT.—The newly elected Board of Directors of the Pittsburgh, Fort Wayne and Chicago Railroad, organized yesterday, and elected Geo. W. Cass, Esq., the late President of the O. & P. Railroad, the first President of the Pittsburgh, Fort Wayne and Chicago Railroad Company.

J. K. Elgerton, Esq., of Fort Wayne, Ia., was elected Vice President. The organization will not be completed for several days.

MONETARY AND COMMERCIAL.

The money market continues to be abundantly supplied with capital, and parties who have good paper to offer experience no difficulty in obtaining discounts at 6 to 10 ₩ cent; indeed it may be said the demand for first class paper exceeds the supply. We heard of sales of mortgage notes to a moderate extent at 10@12 ₩ cent. The demand for this class of securities continues limited compared with the offerings. This does not arise from any doubts as to the security, but capitalists prefer short investments. Views with reference to the future have not settled into a conviction that there is a smooth and easy market ahead, and lenders are therefore desirous of keeping their funds within reach.

The demand for Exchange has increased some what as compared with last week, but there has been no variation in prices, which we continue to quote at ⅛@¼ prem.—Banker's checks in some cases selling at ½ prem. New Orleans Exchange is quiet at par@300 prem. We hear of only occasional transactions. Bills on the East are in good demand, at rates equal to 6@10 ₩ cent ₩ annum interest.
