PITTSBURGH GAZETTE

THE INQUISITIVE YANKEE.—A gentleman riding in an Eastern Railroad car, which was rather scarcely supplied with passengers, observed, in a seat before him, a lean, slabsided Yankee; every feature of his face seemed to ask a question, and a little circumstance soon proved that he possessed a more 'enquiring mind.'' Before him, occupying the entire seat, sat a lady dressed in deep black, and after shifting his position several times, and manœuvering to get an opportunity to look into her face, he at length caught her eye—

'In affliction?'

'Yes, sir,' responded the lady.

'Pa-rent—father or mother?'

'No, sir.'

'Child, perhaps?—boy or girl?'

'No, sir, not a child—I have no children.'

'Husband, then, I expect?'

'Yes,' was the curt answer.

'Hum!—cholery?—I cradle man may be!'

'My husband was a sea-faring man—the captain of a vessel; he didn't die of cholera, he was drowned.'

'Oh, drowned, eh!' pursued the inquisitor, hesitating for a brief instant.

'Save his chist?'

'Yes, the vessel was saved, and my husband's effects,' said the widow.

'Was they?' asked the Yankee, his eyes brightening up.

'Pious, man!'

'He was a member of the Methodist church.'

The next question was a little delayed, but it came.

'Don't you think you have a great cause to be thankful that he was a pious man and saved his chist?'

'I do,' said the widow, abruptly, and turned her head to look out of the window. The indefatigable 'pump' changed his position, held the widow by his glitter eye once more, and propounded one more query, in a little lower tone, with his head slightly inclined forward, over the back of the seat, 'Was you calculating to get married again?'

'Sir,' said the widow, indignantly, 'you are impertinent!' And she left her seat and took another, on the other side of the car.

'Pears to be a little huffy!' said the ineffable bore, turning to our narrator behind him.

'What did they make you pay for that umbrel you've got in your hand?'
