"The Mill on Sabbath Morn;" "A Quiet Nook on Slippery Rock"—Landscapes by Geo. Hetzel.

MESSRS. EDITORS:—Since the question, Have we an artist among us? has been satisfactorily answered in your columns, it may not be amiss, since the announcement which followed its solution, to state the claims of another artist, with the impressions derived from a glance at the pictures which head this article.

Deeming the exclusive character of the notice to which we refer, an sufficient excuse for the detailed personalities to which we are obliged to indulge, we will premise your readers are already familiar with the axiom, "genius begins where rules end," with its qualification as to known vulgar and trite rules, and the limitation to those which, on account of their refined texture, words fail adequately to express—and rest the question with them, if it is not advantageous even to genius, that it have undergone the discipline of the schools?

We would not claim for the subject of this notice more than the ordinary share of the divine afflatus—indeed we almost tremble as we write lest even our allusion to this quality in connection with his name, should so shock his modesty as to bring upon us his lasting malediction.

But we may be permitted to state, that what talent he possesses (and of this we will speak hereafter) has been thoroughly developed by a residence of the usual length of time, at what is admitted to be the best elementary school in Europe—that at Dusseldorf. With considerable knowledge acquired by many years of untutored experience, he embarked for that place in 1847, and on his arrival there, at the instance of Leutze, the American artist, was admitted into the Antigue class, in which he remained but a short time when he was advanced to the painting class under Prof. Sohn. In this he continued until 1850, when circumstances of a domestic character principally, induced him to return.—During his residence abroad he was the intimate associate of such men as Achenbach and Lessing, of whom a faithful likeness of their warm commendation. Since his return he has devoted himself assiduously to his art. With the versatility of talent that never derogated from the fame of one whose name is a household word with artists, he has produced works in composition, Portraiture and Still Life that have extended his reputation. Of late he has devoted himself wholly to the department of Landscapes, for which his pure love of Nature peculiarly fits him.

The pictures under review evince most clearly the marked characteristics of the artist—a choice of subjects—"The Mill on Sabbath Morn," and "A Quiet Nook on Slippery Rock," displays the poet's love of the quiet and secluded in Nature; while the execution, necessarily requiring elaboration, exhibits the commendable features of Pre-Raphaelitism, conscientiousness and intensity—the conscientiousness that adheres rigidly to what is really seen in Nature, and to what is worthy of imitation by Art—the intensity of love for Nature which "clasps everything it embraces so hard, that it crushes it if it be hollow."

If our ipse dixit, backed by the assurance that we have used the selection and careful study of the original sketches from which these pictures have been painted were sufficient, we would not draw on their technical merits; but as the public may justly require a reason for the faith that is in us," and as these reasons are to be found in the pictures themselves, we will point to them for instances of correct drawing—in the birch in the left of the second picture, and ask if the anatomy of the trees is not made out with sufficient truth to satisfy the most exacting virtuoso—to the moss covered rock on the foreground, if it do not possess, together with this merit, that of fine color; we will point up the stream and as the objects recede in the distance, ask if the aerial perspective have not been well managed—to the trunks of the pines on the right hand bank, if they are not drawn with characteristic accuracy—to the accident of light on the right of this picture, where the pine stem growing from the rock is fully illuminated by a stray sunbeam—and in the first picture to the same effect under the bushes near the mill, where the ground is flecked with these spots, for instances of judicious selection. As to the point of color, any one may judge of their merit in this respect by a glance at them. The object of color in Landscape is always the same, to represent Nature as she is; and as these sketches were made but a short distance from our city, those familiar with the scenery here will, making the usual allowance for the difference in the atmosphere, judge of them as to their fidelity; we submit them unhesitatingly to popular judgment on this point. So much for their technical merits, which are the least in these pictures.

An authority in Art whom we have never until lately heard disputed, has reiterated again and again, that the imagination is the faculty addressed by Art, not the curiosity, and that nicely and accurate are presupposed of him who does not properly subordinate details to general effect. If on instance were wanted in our day of a reputation before which that of some whom we have named must recede apprehend as old masters, startling to most only mention Turner; and yet his pictures are more indications, vague, indefinite summonings to the uninitiated in Art.

George Combe in a lecture before our Mercantile Library Association, spoke of one such picture of Turner as containing no forms definitely made out, and yet he described its effect upon his feelings as fully equal to what he experienced in the presence of the actual scene.

We design not, however, to defend Sir Joshua, but to indicate the faculty to which these pictures appeal, and point out the manner in which they address the spiritual principle through the medium of imagination.

Men of a purely imaginative temperament consider as to the tranquillizing effect of scenes in Nature. Lake scenes, secluded vales, the quiet of the Sabbath, have all been the theme of their poets. Many of their poems are records of the subduing of passion quelled by these scenes. Now we claim for these pictures that they have precisely this tranquillizing purifying effect on the spiritual nature, through the medium of the imagination. Assuming that our premises is in regard to their technical qualities have been admitted, we dwell with particular emphasis on their merits in this respect; and also upon the healthiness of sentiment by which they are characterized. They do not lull the senses to sleep or induce that feeling of sensual apathy expressed in the actions of those who would

"live and be satisfied."

On the hills, the gods—together, emblems of mankind, but excite a feeling of renewed purity, that puts us again in sympathy with nature, and qualifies us for a more noble intercourse with men.

FISCH & CO.

RESPECTFULLY inform Druggists and Dealers in Varnishes generally that they have for some time been engaged in the preparation of all descriptions of Japan and other Varnishes, &c., which they are prepared to supply their friends and the public generally with equal to any manufactured in the country, of the best material, and selected with the greatest care and on the most favorable terms.

FISCH & CO. intend to devote themselves to cultivating a first class trade, and have no doubt that a trial of their goods will be found equally low with any of the eastern manufacturers, and being entirely free from adulteration, they only ask works on of approved and tested quality, they only ask a trial to secure a portion of the business.

To our fine BODY COACH VARNISH we would call particular attention. The article is equal to any Coach Varnish of the very best brand, being made essentially after the process of the first class English houses, by a practical varnisher of experience, and has proved a favorite in some of the most extensive establishments in England and this country.

Our Anti-Corrosive BLACK VARNISH we would particularly recommend to Founders, Machinists, Iron Railing Manufacturers of iron generally. Its peculiar qualities prevent vitrification or rusting, while it is a perfect protection to those using varnish for iron, and preparatory to asphaltum and other compositions.

MEDICINE.

Health and Strength must Inevitably follow its Use

BOERHAVE'S

HOLLAND BITTERS

THE CELEBRATED HOLLAND REMEDY FOR

DYSPEPSIA,

DISEASE OF THE KIDNEYS,

LIVER COMPLAINT,

WEAKNESS OF ANY KIND

FEVER AND ACUE,

AND the various affections consequent upon a disordered Stomach or Liver. Such as Indigestion, Acidity of the Stomach, Colicky Pains, Heartburn, Loss of Appetite, Nausea or Sickness, Costiveness, Bilious and Bilious Fever. In all Nervous, Rheumatic and Neuralgic Affections, it has in numerous instances proved highly beneficial, and in others effected a decided cure.

Nature finds no new enemy to combat, with this delightful tonic in the system. Its effects are almost magical, yet the cure permanent. It communicates no violent shock to the system, but by arousing its vital energy to normal action, enables it to throw off the cause, and the disease disappears.

When its medicinal virtues are so extensively acknowledged, it is a matter of surprise to many why it becomes so popular a family medicine, that it is sold by many of the principal Grocers, as well as the Druggists in the country, but to offer further evidence, yet as there are doubtless many who have not yet used it, and many advertised remedies, and still suffer from Dyspepsia in one or more of its dreadful forms, we subjoin the following certificates, the authority of which will be given if desired, coming as they do from persons so well known.

What it is doing for the Sick.

Wm. Schuchman, Esq., the well known lithographer, says: "I have frequently seen Boerhave's Holland Bitters used by my family with extraordinary relief in indigestion and debility."

Rev. Samuel Babcock says: "I found special relief from its use for a severe headache, with which I had been afflicted for years."

J. W. Woodruff, Esq., says: "I have used Boerhave's Holland Bitters myself, and recommended it to others. In my family it has proved a valuable medicine."

Adj. Jonathan Seely, of Lower St. Clair, says: "I have derived great benefit from its use for a severe pain in the head and indigestion."

James Fr. Murphy says: "I am a practical physician and find Boerhave's Holland Bitters removed the pain from my heart and side, arising from indigestion."

The editor of the Hillsanning Free Press says: "After cases of the best physicians in this place had failed, Boerhave's Holland Bitters effected a perfect cure of dyspepsia."

Prepared only by PEMBERTON'S OLD ROCK DRUGS.

Mrs. Hannah Seely, of Lower St. Clair, says: "I have derived great benefit from its use for a severe pain in the head and indigestion. Added to the advantages possessed by it over all others, it is the purest and surest cure of the most inveterate dyspepsia, by which its possessors are rendered a blessing to all around them, and save long suffering, misery, and kindred ills, by bestowing or calling her a bottle of this Popular Remedy. Prepared in the form of a cordial, it is pleasant to the taste, and so harmonizes, is perfectly pleasant in its taste, and so harmonizes, as not impede in the least, conveying the highest testimonials of approbation.
