for a few days only. He has had the honor of appearing in principal towns in the United Kingdom, where he has experienced the most distinguished success in the treatment of all imperfections of the vision connected with the eye, and may be consulted with confidence that his advice will be strictly correct, and his spectacles the most scientific.

The powers of this valuable invention are unlimited, as in the case of deafness, where hearing is restored to the perfect and natural state, and to enable deaf persons to converse in ordinary conversation, to hear most distinctly at a place of worship, at the bar of any public assembly; the invaluable assistance of hearing noises in the air is rarely equalled.

"Nature finds no new enemy to combat, with this delightful tonic in the system. Its effects are almost magical, yet the cure is permanent. It communicates no violent action to the system, but by assuming its most energy to a natural action, enables it to throw off the cause, and thus to a normal action, enables it to throw off the cause, and thus to a normal action, enables it to throw off the cause, and thus to a normal
