Witnesses were called for the defence to prove an alibi in the case of Mooney, and testified that they saw him in the city every day for the last six menths, as he was working in a rolling mill with them dyring that time.

The jury retired on Saturday, and not having returned when the Court adjourned, Judge Moc-Clare informed them that they might bring in a sealed verdict if they saw proper.

A LITTLE scene occurred in the Market House.

Baturday morning, which was very amusing. A woman came up to the stall of one of the butchers, who is rather a Yankee, always willing to "make o trade" and "so backing cout," and after examining his stock offered about one-third the salestie price for a large piece of beef. After some "saratching of his poli" and "counting of costs," he concluded to accept the offer if he lost money by it; and informed the woman necordingly. The butcher giving his consent so unexpectedly, the woman come to the conclusion that there was something wrong with the meat, unexpectedly, the woman come to the conclusion that there was something wrong with the meat, and wouldn't take it, much to the satisfaction of ement to bystanders.
