CHARLES GIBBONS,
Chairman of Stato Executive Committee.

An Apology.—To such of our subscribers as failed to receive the Gazette yesterday morning, which was received upon us.

It has suffered much from official default; and from the fact that a large part of the road was bilt and running without any inportant point at night, and no other person about the establishment could ourry his route. We treat the like may not occur again for the sake of all particle.

The House of Rayue.—There are many institutions which ceems before an editor in their reports for consideration and notice which he calles attending to, more as a matter of course or from considerations of duty, than because or from considerations of duty, than because and their chiefest. The House of Refuge is not one of these. It is an lostitution which every humane heart feels a deep and abiding interest and whore objects are among the noblest that of packaged whore objects are among the noblest that of packaged whore objects are among the noblest that of packaged whore objects are among the noblest that of packaged whore objects are among the noblest that of packaged whore objects are among the noblest that of packaged whore objects are among the noblest that of nature and of human skill. From them, the Superintendent, Mr. Rutherford, receives many testimonials of their kind remembrance and regard in the shape of letters like those of children to a parent. In one or two instances where these children had unfortunately fallen into the hands of unkind persons they have returned of their own accord into the welcome asylum where the learned their first lessons of good. The testimony of persons with whom both boys and girls from the institution have lived or hern indentured is in a wast majority of cases favorable in the highest degree. On page 16 of the Report the reader will learn that during the month of December 1856 alone, "22 letters in answer to "queries having reference to the honesty, truth "falness, obedience, industry and health of ap" "prentices were received all of which with two "staceplions have been decidedly satisfactory "axceptions have been decidedly satisfactory of the satisfactory and the cases of exception were of smaller "obliders and not seriously discouraging."

Now the whole state of the case is this, that the inetitution which has done and it doing so wast an amount of good is embarrassed; it asks that those counties which are at perfect liberty to profit by its advantages will come up to its aid; it asks of the legislature that the commendation which this school of reform has received from the Chief Magistrate of the State may direct their attention to this matter and that legislators will look to it that the noble schemes cite surprise that with a total expenditure of may direct their attention to this matter and that legislators will look to it that the noble schemes of benevolence which are in comtemplation here may not be nipped in the bud nor dwarfed in their unfolding beauty by the unwise parsimony of the State. Could every legislator, every citizen of the State make an hour's visit to the House of Refoge and thereafter have the question of its support submitted to them, we are sure it would never more stand in need of necessary funds.
