PITTSBURGH:

FRIDAY MORNING, FEB. 6, 1857.

AN ACT passed by the last Legislature and approved on the sixth day of November of the last year, extends the 30th section of the Act approved on the 16th day of April 1850 "to all "incorporated banking, saving fund, trust and insurance companies." Said thirtieth section relates to the issuing of bank notes, and all banks failing under the act of which this 30th section is a part are prevented "from issuing or paying out any bank notes other than those issued by itself, payable on demand in gold or silver; notes of specie paying banks of this State which are taken on deposit, or in payment of debts at par at the counter of the bank where paid out, or notes of banks issued under the authority of the Act of the fourth of May 1841, at the option of the person receiving the same," etc. By the passage of the Act approved by Governor Pollock and alluded to above, to wit: the Act approved on the sixth day of November last and which begins to take effect on the first day of July 1857, certain banks of deposit will lose their occupation. These institutions, such, for example as the Citizens' Deposit Bank of this city, which have heretofore taken currency and the notes of other States, and at the same time issued no notes of their own, will have after the 1st of July next to close their doors, for the penalty of the violation of the provision in the 30th section is an absolute forfeiture of charter.

These Banks of deposit received their charter and entered upon their business under the implied pledge of the State that they were to be protected in it, so long as they complied strictly with the provisions in the Acts under which they were created and now that they have become to a certain extent necessary to the business community and our citizens find them eminently safe and convenient in the transaction of their business it would be but an act of justice to said banks to extend to such as may apply for it the right to issue notes of their own.

As far as this community is concerned we think we are safe in stating that the banks of Deposit are held among the safest of the city.—They have inspired confidence by the manner in which they have transacted their business generally, carrying themselves and their depositors safely through a series of financial embarrassments which weighed upon this community in the latter part of the year 1854 and the beginning of 1855, when many who had placed their trust elsewhere were sufferers.

It was contended by some at the time when the Act of November 6 of last year was passed that its effect would be to stop the circulation in the commonwealth of other than our own safe bank notes, gold and silver. By others it was argued that the only effect it would have would be to remove all money except such as is made lawful issue by the 30th section of the Act of 1850 away from the Banks of Deposit to the bankers and brokers counters and vaults. We perceive that a supplement to the Act of Nov. 6 was read in place on the 12th of last month by Mr. Hancock, extending the provisions of the 30th section so often referred to above, to brokers, bankers, etc. What the fate of this will be of course we cannot pretend to say. If the Act of Nov. 6 remain intact, or if, in addition thereto the supplement now before the Legislature should become a law, we think that such institutions as may desire an extension of their privileges so as to enable them to preserve an existence by issuing notes of their own, should be empowered so to do, as a simple act of justice to them, and as an accommodation to the business men of the community who have confidence in their honest stability.

HONEST AND OUTSPOKEN.—To the race of doughfaces who have not pluck to stand up before a slave-holder and give words to their true sentiments respecting the institution of Slavery, "the sum of all villainies;" to the knock-kneed "sons of plunder," who choke themselves to silence with Treasury Spoils ladled out to the orthodox Democracy by Jefferson Davis and his man Friday, Mr. Pierce, we commend the following honest, outspoken and noble sentiments of Mr. Brown, Representative from St. Louis in the Missouri Legislature. In his speech a few days since he said:

"I am a freesoiler, and I don't deny it. No word or vote of mine shall ever inure to the benefit of such a monstrous and abhorrent doctrine as the extension of slavery over the patrimony of the free white laborers of the country. I am, sir, for the greatest good to the greatest number, and against the system which monopolizes the free and fertile territory of our country for a few slave-holders, to the exclusion of thousands upon thousands of the sinewy sons of toil, who in peace and war are the foundations and ramparts of the social edifice. The time will come, sir, and perhaps very soon, when the people will rule for their own benefit, and not for that of a class which, numerically speaking, is insignificant. In that near day Democracy will not only mean the rule of the sovereign people, but the rule of the sovereign people for themselves; and the dignity as well as the rights of free labor will be recognized. Therefore it is, sir, that standing here in the midst of the assembled Legislature of Missouri, I am proud to avow myself a FREE-SOILER. Let those who are scared at names shrink from the positions, if they will. I should never feel alarmed at meeting the issue under whatever name, or style, or title, or shape, or form it may come. And forthermore, I would add, sir, that whenever the question may arise, whenever the contest comes between the labor of the white man and the labor of the slave, I SHALL TAKE MY STAND IN FAVOR OF THE WHITE MAN. Here in Missouri I shall support the rights, the dignity, and welfare of the 200,000 non-slaveholders in preference to upholding and perpetuating the dominancy of the 30,000 slave-holders who inhabit our State. My sympathies are with the toiling masses and not with the privileged few, and while I shall be far from designing any violation of the rights of property of any class, yet I conceive his labor to be as much the property of the white laboring man, as the slave is the property of the slaveholder, and as much entitled to the fostering care and the protection of government as any vested right in the common wealth. I shall be glad to see both protested so long as they may be co-existent, but I shall earnestly look forward to the day when by a wise and salutary system of emancipation, Missouri may rid herself of the evils and curse of slavery, and open wide her rich harvest fields and unbosom her mineral wealth to the active energy of her free white population. Such are my sentiments, sir, upon this subject, and I scruple not to avow them openly and with no shadow of concealment."

M. Price, of Green. It is time to begin now.

Mr. Brown. Neither am I tremulous upon the point, sir. Let it begin when it will, and now as well as any time."

PROSPECTS OF A CLEAR RIVER.—The rain of Wednesday, ceased during Wednesday night, and yesterday was as warm and pleasant as May. The river at noon showed nine feet of water, and the ice was rapidly decaying under the rays of the sun. At the landing a spirit of activity prevailed among the boatmen, preparing for a sudden release from their long embargo. Although at noon the water was no longer rising, every one was looking hopefully for what is to come down from the head of the Alleghany, provided the rain and warm weather extended there to melt away the snows. At the time of this writing we have heard nothing from Brownsville and up the Monongahela. Down the river the ice had given way at Chartiers Creek and gorged at the head of Long Island, leaving a space already clear.

Even if we should have no more rain a day or two more like yesterday will set the whole body of ice in motion down the river and give new life to all the springs of Pittsburgh prosperity. The amount of goods which will find their way down the river the instant it becomes navigable is astonishing and their returns would be felt at once in every department of business here.

CANE SEEDS.—We have received some half dozen letters from subscribers requesting us to send them some of the Sugar Cane Seeds of which we acknowledged the receipt from the patent office last month. We regret that the supply we obtained is gone and has been for a week or more. We went upon the principle of "first come first served," and not having any left, those who do not hear from us may know the reason. We hope to have more seed soon, when we will distribute to those who have applied and to others who may wish it, so long as it holds out.

IMPROVEMENT OF THE OHIO.—We have received from Hon. Wm. Bigler, a report made by him from the Senate Committee on Commerce to whom was referred the memorial of the Board of Trade of this city, asking for an appropriation of public lands, to enable a company chartered or to be chartered by the States bordering on the Ohio river to improve its navigation. The report gives some highly interesting statistics bearing upon the question under consideration. We make an extract or two:

As for the extent and value of the tonnage of this river, the committee do not deem it necessary to illustrate its magnitude by an array of details; nor, indeed, could they conveniently do so with reliable accuracy. The most of the statistics they can find on the subject are largely conjectural. In a report made to the Secretary of War in 1848, by J. J. Abert, Esq., chief of the Topographical Bureau, we find the steam tonnage of the western rivers estimated at 426,278 tons, and the floating value of the commerce put down at $296,613,000; but what portion of this can properly be claimed for the Ohio does not appear. Mr. Abert's estimate of the present value of the tonnage of the western rivers, as stated to a member of the committee, is six hundred millions!

A report of Captain Palmer, a topographical engineer of good abilities and experience, on the commerce of the Ohio river for the year 1856, is perhaps the most authentic and direct information that can be had at present. In that report we find the whole number of steamers on the Ohio proper, put down at 400; the annual voyages at 8,642, and the freight at 2,592,600 tons; the whole number of flat-boats at 6,000, the voyages at 9,000, and the freight at 450,000 tons, making a total tonnage of 3,045,600 tons, which is valued at $134,130,000. In this estimate the commerce of the two greatest branches of the Ohio, (the Cumberland and the Tennessee) is not included. Were this added it would swell the aggregate to near two hundred millions of dollars. The number of passengers moved by the steamers for the year 1856 Captain Palmer has put down at 1,150,453, exclusive of those carried on ferry and canal boats; and he has valued the total commerce of the Ohio valley, moved by land and water for the same year, at the enormous sum of $371,255,836.

To trace the influence of this channel of trade through all its ramifications would be a difficult, if not an impracticable task. It is felt with peculiar force at all the ports on the Southern and Western rivers, covering a connected steam navigation of more than sixteen thousand miles, the most widely separated, exchanging their products at short intervals. The city of Pittsburgh alone, situate at the eastern extremity of the Ohio, to say nothing of her vast manufactures, sends out annually on this line of travel from fifty to sixty new steamers, to trade alike with Louisiana, Arkansas and Texas, in the south, as with Iowa, Wisconsin and Minnesota, in the west, their pilots becoming equally familiar with the channel among the stumps on Red river, or the rocks of the upper Mississippi.

May it not be safely claimed, then, in view of the foregoing facts, that if the navigation of the Ohio river be not national in its characteristics and consequences, and its improvement be not a fair subject for national care and aid, then no such object can be found within the broad limits of the United States of America.

That this navigation ought to be improved all must agree; that the work is too great for individuals, even if possessed of the right to do it, is clear; and no State possesses the necessary jurisdiction over the river, if otherwise prepared to accomplish the end; hence the application to the general government.

The report then proceeds to glance at the various plans proposed for the improvement of the River—the wing dams, the cutting of channels through shoals, the slack water and finally the reservoir scheme of Eliet. In view of the various schemes proposed as above the Committee recommend first an appropriation for the survey of the River. Mr. Pugh is the author of the bill accompanying the Report. We think the Ohio Senator rather favors Eliet's plan, judging from the bill which he has drawn up.—That, however, is of small moment. The better plan is to be decided upon after the survey shall been made. The bill proposes an appropriation of $50,000, "or so much thereof as may be required, for the purpose of making topographical and hydrographical surverry, and other examinations, on the Ohio river and its tributaries, to determine the practicability of establishing a system of reservoirs on said tributaries, for the purpose of improving the navigation of the Ohio and its principal branches by reserving the excess water, to be supplied to the channel during the dry season of the year, on the general plan heretofore submitted to Congress by Chas. Eliet, junior."

The 3rd section proposes an appropriation of $20,000 for the survey of the river to ascertain and determine the practicability of improving the navigation of the river by means of a series of dams or "slackwater."

The history of the legislation upon the subject during the present Congress thus far is soon told. On the 11th of December, 1856, this bill was read twice, referred to the Committee on Commerce and ordered to be printed. It was reported on the 23d of January, 1857, with an amendment striking out all after enacting clause and leaving in substance what we have given above. Whether we shall hear of it again during the present session remains to be seen.

THE NEW YORK TRAGEDY.—The examination of witnesses before the Coroner still continues in the case of Dr. Burdell, whose mysterious murder in his own residence in New York on Saturday night, is the absorbing subject of interest. Mrs. Cunningham, who was occupant of the house where the Dr. was found murdered, Mr. Snodgrass, Mr. Eckel and a servant maid, Donahue, all occupants of the house have been examined. Others whose business or pleasure may have brought them to know the persons in the house of death have also been upon the stand. No evidence has yet been adduced sufficient to fasten the crime upon any of those persons most naturally open to suspicion.

The Coroner seems to have made up his mind upon the question of the guilt of somebody. His questions to the witnesses, particularly to the serving maid, are of the most disgusting kind, and put in such a leering style as would well become a dweller of the "Court of Short Boys." The Coroner has, of course, no business to have a theory so fixed in his own mind as to give shape to questions bearing thereon and thus as it were to prepare a case for the Courts beforehand. It is certain that the public mind has fixed upon the woman Cunningham and Mr. Eckel a suspicion, but justice demands that they shall have fair play in the case.

A surgical examination of the body of the murdered man disclosed no new facts. The details of the trial occupy the New York papers almost to the exclusion of every thing else.

OUR BOOK TABLE.

Mr. E. C. Cochrane, Allegheny city, has laid upon our table, several new books. "MORSE'S GEOGRAPHICAL WRITING BOOK," which we are informed has been adopted in the public schools of Allegheny city, seems to be a new scheme by which writing and geography are taught at one and the same time. The maps are drawn but the names of rivers, continents, etc., are not on them, while an excellent chance is given for the pupil to put them there with his pen.

BEARD'S UNITED STATES—a small book of history for the use of little people, is written by a women, and very well done too. It is published by Copperthwait, and for sale as above.

JAMES' RIVER GUIDE—an almost indispensable hand-book and pocket companion for all voyagers upon our western rivers. Every village, town and city from head to mouth of all the great rivers and their principal tributaries are laid down in this book and may be studied with interest and profit. Also for sale by Cochrane.

THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS.—We have seen an abstract of the annual report of the State Superintendent of Public Schools for the State of Pennsylvania. He shows that the severe weather, last winter, damaged the schools, so that the average time during which they were open was less than the year previous. About half the teachers are inexperienced and incompetent, but have to be retained because no better can be obtained to supply their places. Still, the improvement over previous years in condition of things is very marked.

THE CREDIT OF PENNSYLVANIA.—The Pennsylvanian says that all remember the bitter taunts which Sidney Smith hurled upon Pennsylvania during her temporary suspension of the payment of the interest of her public debt. A striking proof of how completely her credit has recovered from the shock it then suffered, is furnished by the fact that a daughter of Sidney Smith, not long since, invested $30,000 in the same stock her father had so bitterly denounced, in preference to an investment in any other class of securities.

In the State Legislature, Tuesday, bills were read in both houses to consolidate the Reading and Lebanon Valley Railroads. The Senate refused to take up the bill fixing a time for the election of a State Treasurer. In the House, the resolutions relative to the improvement of the Ohio river were discussed.

Come ye Disconsolate.—How many are there now tiring upon beds of sickness, bolstered up in arm chairs, or creeping about their houses from the effects of Rheumatism, Scrofula, Canker, Erysipelas, or some other ill that "flesh is heir to," when they might be enjoying a pleasant ride or an agreeable walk, and breathing the fresh and invigorating air of heaven instead of the stifled atmosphere of the sick chamber, if they would but use a bottle or two of Kennedy's Medical Discovery.—We would not make so confident a statement were we not fully prepared to substantiate it by personal observation and the testimony of those whose word can not be disputed; and under these circumstances we feel constrained to speak in favor of this great Medical Discovery.

It may be taken without disrelish by the most delicate patient, and retained without effort on the most sensitive stomach.

Its superiority in this and other important characteristics, has guaranteed for it the commendation of the most eminent of the Medical Faculty throughout the States.

It is the most effectual remedy for consumption, bronchitis, rheumatism, scrofula, &c., and may be had in bottles of the druggists in this city, or of the manufacturers,

JOHN D. BAKER & CO.,

The only Medal Awarded by the New York Exhibition to the English of twice Gauze Manufacturers has been obtained, amongst numerous competitors, by LEA & PERRINS, or their whereby further testimony is adduced of its being the best Sauce extant.

The popularity of this Sauce has extended to every quarter of the globe, and its efficacy in promoting the general health is becoming daily more observed and acknowledged.

In the United States it is held to be the most agreeable condiment, and delicious relish to hot and tur-y-eating properties, it has at last one enabling the stomach to digest the food

In the Continent of Europe, these qualities have been testified to by a gentleman, who writes to LEA & PERRINS thus: "I have carried a bottle of your Worcestershire Sauce in a tour I have just completed through Spain and Portugal, and believe I owe my present state of health to its use; your Sauce is stomachic, and I think medicinal.

Even with tenth rate there is nothing in a traveler's baggage so essential to his comfort, at least in those countries, as your Sauce.

In India, also, where it is found at the mess of every regiment, a medical gentleman writes from Madras to his brother in the same profession at Worcester, in the following terms: "Tell Lea & Perrins that their sauce is highly approved in India, and that it is, in my opinion, the most Palatable as well as the most wholesome sauce made."

This sauce is suitable for every variety of dish, and a universal demand which its excellence has created has led to many imitations being offered to the public, under a variety of names, but the genuine may be known by the names of "LEA & PERRINS" being impressed upon the patent metallic capsules, or patent glass stopper of the bottle, as well as the labels and wrapper.

Important Notice to those Afflicted

WITH CHRONIC DISEASES. by Dr. A. S. HEATH, New York City. Finding it impossible to attend personally to all my patients, and being unwilling to trust such responsible duties to assistants or students, and for the purpose of suppressing the sale of worthless and injurious quack medicines, as well as the impositions advertised under fictitious names, offering to send recipes gratis; or on receipt of letter stamps or one dollar, &c.—to obviate the above, and to accommodate patients in all parts of the country, I send medicines, with full directions, to cure any disease, for $5, unless treatment is required for a longer period than one month, when the fee is the same for each month. The fee for all surgical operations, including that for the radical cure of hernia; will depend upon the peculiarity of the case. Patients will give a full statement of all their symptoms, as the remedies are prepared with an especial reference to each case. All money letters should be registered.
