Liencent.—Two Irish individuals, a man and wile, samed Michael and Honora Shea, were before Alderman Major yesterday on a charge of stealing a pair of shoes from the store of Mr. Others on Wylie street. It appeared from the ovidence that an arrangement had been made between them to take the goods. The plan was as follows: Honora entered the store first, and priced some sheer, while she was trying on a pair, Michael who pretended to be a stranger to the woman, entered and examined the stock, and while doing so he secreted a pair under his store that the price was too high, and walked out, some followed by Honora, who had by this time some followed by Honora, who had by the some followed by Honora, who thought it better not to make a court case out of the affair, and sent them both to jail for three days. The above plan has been practised to a great extent in the Isroeny of small articles, and we describe it for the purpose of putting store-temper on their running the states:

the Legislature with a speech from the throne, amidst great pomp and enthusiasm. The Emperor referred to a peaceable solution of the recent difficulties amongst the various European powers, and considering that the best under-standing now prevails between all the great powers, he thinks the time auspicious to on-deavor seriously to regulate and develops the strength and resources of the nation. He re-ligious over the preserves condition of the strength and resources of the nation. He rejoices over the presperous condition of the country as evinced by the largely increasing revenue, and regrets the suffering caused by the deficient crops and recent inaudations.
He says the expenitures will be reduced and the war tax abolished from January next. The annual army contingent is fixed at 100,000 men. He says an appropriation is made for a trans-Atlantic line of steamers, and after referring to sundry local topics, winds up with a panegyric upon the state of the empire.
