himself improperly by going into the fallers cabin and there making successful to the fallers. The clerk of the boat informed this man, in as mild language as he could under the circumstance command; that he must leave that part of the boat where no gentlemen are allowed except those who have ladles in charge. The fallow with curses refused to do as requested, and the surpon was walked out to that portion of the boat sate part for the men. When meal time strived he took his place at table with his bat on and in his shirt bleeves. He had not yet paid his fare and when summoned from the table for that purpose he came up to the captain and struck thim. The crops, the boat was indeed and uncleded was made to put him on shore. He draw a knife upon the mate, and out his arm quite badly, but was overpowered and threats on shore as he richly deserved to be Whilette contest was going on at the gangway one of the passengers recorded to be the contest was going on at the gangway one of the passengers recorded to be the contest was going or at the gangway one of the passengers recorded to be the contest was going or at the gangway one of the passengers recorded to be the contest was going or at the gangway of the fall. and thrust on shore as he richly deserved to be. While the couriest was going on at the gangway one of the passengers rushed in to said the fellow who as he (the passenger) declared was not fairly used. From certain things subsequently observed the officers of the boat believe that one of the passengers at least was in colleague with the fellow thrust out as above related; that they halve to regard of constructions.
