PITTSBURGH:

THURSDAY MORNING, MAY 7, 1857.

THE "STRAIGHT OUT" PARTY TACTICS.—There are a number of small editions of Messrs. Sanderson and Flanegan scattered throughout the State, who have not the courage to openly avow themselves as allies to the Democrats, nor the inclination to give their support to the Union State ticket. They are extremely non-committal and provokingly captious at this juncture of affairs, being disposed to halt between Wilmot and Packer. They are "waiters on the tide," and, like Mr. Micawber, are very anxious indeed for something to "turn up" to their individual advantage. In the eastern section of the State they are in constant intercourse with the Democrats, and in local and municipal elections actually coalesce with them. And yet, when they appear in State Conventions, they profess great opposition to the Democracy, and to more effectually deceive a certain class of voters, affect a great anxiety for the defeat of that party. This was the system of tactics they pursued last year, which resulted in giving the State to Buchanan, and the same course defeated Messrs. Cochran, Phelps and Laporte at the October election. From these politicians we have very little to expect in the end, for the simple although with them overpowering, reason that the dispensation of patronage and bestowal of offices are entirely in the hands of our opponents.

We do not, of course, expect these gentlemen to pass body and soul over to the Democrats, as such a movement at this time would not fully accomplish their purpose. On the contrary, we look for the adoption of a different course of conduct. A third party will be organized for the purpose of drawing votes from the Union State ticket, although the ostensible object of the organization will be placed on more plausible grounds. The "Union" will be in danger again, probably, and great sacrifices will be required from the "straight out" patriots of the Flanagan and Sanderson school of politicians. This scheme, however, which was so very successful at the last Presidential election cannot succeed in the approaching contest. It is true, the scheming leaders are as earnest as ever in their efforts, but the dupes are wanting, the latter not being influenced by the "solid reasons" that have such a charm for their bold captains.

In this condition of parties the friends of the Union State ticket have but one, and only one, course to pursue—they must keep clear of all entangling alliances, and enter into no compromise with unreasonable and ungarrupulous factionists, organized as such. Our ranks are of course open to receive them individually, but we cannot with safety and honor meet them in conventions and committees, and thus re-open our nomipations, and allow candidates to be stricken off, and others substituted for no other reason than to gratify the vanity of a few corrupt and arrogant political dictators. Such a policy, judged from all past experience, would bring defeat with it on the second Tuesday of October. It would tend to alienate true and tried friends of our great cause, while it would not ensure an honest support from those thus sought to be conciliated. If these political disorganisers think it proper to boldly play into the hands of the sham-democracy, let them do it without restraint, as the sooner they take such a decided course the better it will be for the friends of the Union ticket. As we have before remarked, they will have but few followers, and thus they will be compelled to expose to their new friends their weakness, and consequently their worthlessness as allies. Let us, therefore, unfurl our glorious banner to the breeze of heaven—upon it inscribe principles that are as firm as the mountain rock, and pure as the stream that flows beneath it—and go to work with strong arms and patriotic hearts for the STATE TICKET as it is! To its support we can conscientiously invite every sincere opponent of Slavery extension within the broad limits of the great Commonwealth—we can invoke the aid, in all sincerity, of every friend of economy in the administration of our State government—we can seek the co-operation of all who condemn profligacy in our public offices, and the system of speculation and plunder on our public improvements—of all who desire to place a good man in the Executive Chair of Pennsylvania, pure men on the Judicial Bench, and an honest and trustworthy man in the Canal Board. Should this course be adopted—(and what other course can we honestly adopt?)—the prospects for the complete and overwhelming success of our candidates will grow brighter and brighter every day, until the campaign will close in as brilliant a triumph as ever crowned the efforts of a victorious party.

THE MAIN LINE BILL.—We have before us a copy of the Main Line Bill, with the amendments reported by the Senate Committee.

The first amendment alters the terms of payment, in case of a sale, so as to require the payment of $100,000 annually, until 1890, and $1,000,000 annually thereafter, until the whole is paid. This is an improvement.

The second amendment releases the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, in case it becomes a purchaser, from the payment forever, of the tonnage tax, and from all other State taxes upon the bonds, stocks and property of the company, reserving the right of local taxation. So far as this reservation is concerned, this is an improvement upon the House bill; but the great objection to it remains—and it is an insuperable one—that it commits the State to an abnegation of its sovereignty. The right to levy taxes is one which the State should never surrender (if indeed, "it can legitimately do so). It is its life-blood—its vital power. There may be occasions and instances in which it may properly waive the exercise of this right, either temporarily or for long periods; but it should never enter into a compact to surrender, to a subject, that high attribute of sovereignty, the right to levy upon all its citizens and corporations, equally, the cost of maintaining its credit and existence.

The third amendment reduces the amount of security that shall be required from purchasers other than the Pennsylvania railroad, from $8,000,000 to $1,900,000. This is an amelioration, but not the amendment that should have been reported. The whole amount should be struck out. Why should such security be required from one company and not from another?

The fourth amendment retains the provision to which we so strongly object, authorising the abandonment of the Western division; but adds a provision that, if abandoned, the purchasers of the line shall take the canal boats, &c., that may be on the western division at a fairly appraised value. This, while it seems just, is only adding force to what we so strenuously oppose. It not only takes for granted that the Western Division will be abandoned, but gives legislative sanction to the abandonment. Against this we protest indignantly. If there is any sense of justice left in the Senate they will not permit the Western Section to be abandoned at all. Why should the bill require the purchasers to keep open the eastern division, and leave the western end to be closed? Are not the rights of the western people of as much value as those of the east? We know it is said that the western end is not to be closed until a railroad is constructed along it; but is there not, now, a railroad along the whole line of the eastern division of the canal?

These are the main amendments of the Senate Committee. They slightly improve the House bill; but they leave it still open to all the objections that were urged against the original bill, but one. If these objections are not altogether removed, the bill ought to be defeated.

☞Some idea may be formed in regard to the strength of the "Straight out" organization in the south eastern section of the State, from the fact that at the Corporation election held in the borough of York, on Saturday last, they polled only sixteen votes. This county at the last Presidential election cast over twelve hundred votes against the Union Electoral Ticket. STRAWS show which way the wind blows.

A PROGRESSIVE AGE.—We live in an age of new doctrines—new inventions—new discoveries and new lights. Theories, astounding for their boldness and delightful at least for their freshness, crowd on us in rapid succession, coloring the very age with their peculiarities.—Doctrines that are now advanced with great ingenuity, and enviable sang froid, would have shocked all the tender sensibilities of the people of even the last generation. The traditional faults of our fathers, the frivolous propensities of our mothers; their foibles, their excesses and their weaknesses, sought no fine-spoken apologists, who, in studied phrase and "honied words" could make the worse appear the better side. In their times the votaries of the pleasures of the world, and the worshippers that crowded Vanity Fair indulged themselves in the conscionsness that they had no scriptural justification to sustain them; they had no splendid "chapels of ease" in those days, where strict piety and latitudinarianism could meet on common grounds without even compromising their relative enjoyments. Men and women in the last and preceding generations frequented the play-house without dreaming that the practice was an act of religious devotion on their part—they rendered obedience to parental authority, stern as it was, without supposing that they were recognising a principle which would affect for evil the destiny of their race. Yet in those "latter days" we have among us philosophers and essayists who, in labored homilies attempt to show that our "representatives in the past," were the victims of error, caused by a false state of society. We have all read Mr. Bellows' sermon or lecture on the subject of theatres, in which he recognizes the drama not only as a legitimate amusement for devout churchmen, but recommends it to the special favor of the moral and the pious. It is true, he gently reproves the theatrical corps for some of their faults—peccadilloes which can be lopped off the first time the pruning knife is employed by a dramatic reformer—but he bears no harder on the disciples of Thespis than any secular admirer of the "legitimate drama." Indeed it is not so much at what Mr. Bellows says in defence of the theatre that surprise of not mortification is expressed, as it is at the circumstance that he is a christian clergyman by profession—a clergyman, too, who has an eminent position in the country.—The fact that the drama, which has been in the keeping of editors, literateurs, etc., has found an advocate within the very bosom of the church has created a sensation throughout the country, which will not be allayed for some time to come.

The next "new light" who demands a notice from us is a writer in the Foreign Quarterly, who, on the occasion of reviewing a new French publication, entitled the "Unknown of Europe," takes a position, which, at first glance is very plausible, and we suppose, would be captivating to "Young America;" but the tendency of such an article is reprehensible in the highest degree. Stripped of its sophistry, it is revolting to our most sacred feelings, from the circumstance, that when reduced to plain English, it is nothing more nor less than an open attack on parental authority, which in our estimation is the basis of a good and safe government. But as the publication is before us, we have no desire to anticipate its perusal by remarks of our own, and we therefore submit to the reader the following extract, which we think will justify us in the interpretation of the views of the writer, which we have given above. With this quotation we will close the article, accompanied, however, with the simple explanation, that the article in the Review takes decided grounds in opposition to the work it criticises:

"In all that he says of the exorbitance and value of family ties, M. Le Play speaks well and sensibly; laying too much stress, though, on certain favorite virtues, some of which, however admirable in the individual, would not be so advantageous in the mass. For instance, he upholds parental authority as a bewildering and unbending extent, and confounds the rule of the old and the rule of the best literal y together. Filial obedience he ranks as the highest virtue known, carrying it down to the simple obedience of all youth to old age. He is wrong in this—lamentably wrong, indeed. To be old is not necessarily to be wise and virtuous. However great the honor proper to be paid to parents, this honor is to fall on mere length of years, without natural claims if the young want the experience of age, the old want the vigor of youth; if the young commit follies, the old never attain success. This great country of ours would never have risen to its present height without the emancipation of our youth. Had a rigid system of parental authority subsisted, our colonies would never have been founded, India would not have come, our trade would not be so adventurous, our national prosperity not so extended. Had we been ruled by our old men, we should not have shared in the triumphs of our young ones. To the blood and sinew and daring of youth must countries owe all that they possess; and those who would repress the freedom of youth, would put out the fire of a nation."

KANSAS.—The N. Y. Times has hitherto advised the Free State men of Kansas to vote at the approaching election. Speaking of the propositions made to Gov. Stanton by the Free State men of Lawrence, as the conditions on which they were willing to vote, (published in our telegraphic columns yesterday,) the Times says:

"The propositions they have made to the acting Governor are eminently reasonable and just. If he has any power to modify the regulations prescribed by the Legislature, he cannot but be experienced much relief from its use for headache

The Best Cough Medicine—A Man 80 YEARS OLD CURED.—Some time ago, an old neighbor of mine was very ill with a bad cough, which every one supposed to be consumption. His relatives told me that he had taken every remedy they heard of without benefit his brother came on to see him die, and all were convinced in the belief that he could not live. I had about the third of a bottle of your Pectoral SYRUP, which I gave him, and it entirely cured him to the astonishment of all.—What makes the case more remarkable is the extreme age of the man, he being about eighty years old. I have no doubt the Pectoral saved his life.

Great Cure of Piles.

CAMDEN, N. J., March 12, 1855.

Dear Sir—It is with much pleasure I take this opportunity of informing you of the great benefit I have derived from the use of a few bottles of Hoofland's German Bitters. For a number of Years I have been sorely and severely afflicted with pain in the stomach, attended by severe attacks of the Piles, for which I tried a great many remedies, without affording me any relief. Being advised three months since to use your German Bitters, and in connexion to use the German Bitter's, I did so, using in connexion for the Piles, your Spleen Ointment, and I now inform you that they have entirely cured me and restored me to health, and I would advise all the afflicted to use your valuable medicines, &c.

Respectfully, yours,

MARGARET REPSHER.

A CARD TO THE SICK.

FROM DR. S. S. FITCH, OF NEW YORK

(Author of "Six Lectures on the causes and cure of Consumption," and Founder of the system of Medical practice therein explained, by which Consumption, Asthma, Heart disease, and all Chronic diseases, are declared to be perfectly Curable.)

DR. S. S. FITCH, desires to say to invalids that he continues his practice at his Office, 714 Broadway, New York, where he may be consulted either personally or by letter.

All questions to be answered by invalids—Those who write will state name, age, occupation, post office and State.—Where have you been? family complaints? strong or clear? color of hair, whiskers, eyes, complexion? Have you ever had a cough? If so, how long? Is there trouble, cough expectoration, raised blood, sore throat, hoarseness, loss of voice, chills and fever, night sweats, fever, pain in the side disease, scrofula, spots, blotches or eruptions on the face, nose, or body, rheumatism, bloating, palpitation, stoppage or fluttering of heart, disturbed sleep, dyspepsia, bad digestion, sour or sick stomach, sick headache feeling, biliousness, costiveness, diarrhœa, worms, piles, kidney troubles, pain in the back, pain anywhere. Add all the particulars. If a lady, married? had children? female complaints, irregularity? Notice stamp for reply, and direction where the letter is returned, giving all necessary instructions.

A personal interview with the patient is desirable; but if the sick at a distance find it inconvenient to visit New York for the purpose, treatment may be conducted successfully by letter, and remedies sent by express or otherwise to any part of the country.

Dr. S. S. Fitch's "Six Lectures" explaining his treatment, 300 pages, 20 engravings in muslin, sent by mail, post paid, on receipt of forty cents.

Dr. S. S. FITCH is never absent from his own office in N. Y., in the paper in which it first appeared, which was doubtless well known to parties interested. The object of these attacks must be too obvious to any candid reader to comper about the subject.

I have been the agent for the Messrs. Chickerings in this city, upwards of twenty years, and I consider the members of that firm (assisted by the ingenuity of the father in the manufacture of their instruments) as the means used in promoting their sale. I have sold in this time, probably one thousand of their Piano Fortes—the sale of their Grand Pianos in the city has been equal to any of any other make—and of Grand Pianos, and so far as I know to the entire satisfaction of their numerous purchasers.

Some of the most expensive Foreign Pianos have been brought here, and upon trial, have not been found to stand our variable climate. When a better article than the Chickerings makes its appearance, or a prudent delivery of the Latest Patterns and most approved style.

Chandeliers, Girandoles and Lamps repaired and re-gilded.

To the Public.

AN ATTEMPT HAS BEEN MADE BY interested parties to induce the public to believe that the Pianos which Mr. Thalberg uses at his concerts in the West, are the best in the world; that he made use of them solely on that account, and from disinterested motives. Now this being simply untrue and contrary to fact, it imperatively calls for a refutation. Mr. Thalberg never thought of said any such thing. On the contrary he makes no secret of his preference for the Mason Grand Piano, and it is only because Messrs. Mason's agents were unable to supply him—the last instrument of that make having been sold, many weeks ago—that he was obliged to make use of the offers of other makers. It is neither fair nor generous to take advantage of a simple accident of this kind, to the disparagement of other and superior manufacturers, whilst it is no compliment to the master in whose behalf it is done. Mr. Thalberg's high estimation of the Nunns & Clark Piano, and his very favorable mention of them during his visit here, seems to have provoked considerable chagrin in certain quarters.

As to the Grand Pianos of FRANZ, Paris, it is quite ridiculous to compare any others with them. They are above all concurse. A splendid lot will shortly arrive in this country, when wealthy constantly keep them on hand and for sale. In conclusion we will in connexion with all that has been advanced we will say that we have the personal remarks of Mr. Thalberg, as made to the reporters of the Concerts to his tuner, Moos, Hady, and by the latter repeated to half a dozen gentlemen of this city, they tell quite a different story, and warrant all that we have said. But we forbear, in recognition of the principle of "live and let live."
