PITTSBURGH:

THURSDAY MORNING, MAY 14, 1857.

We think it was BULWER, who, some years ago, in one of his excellent works, remarked that the commission of one crime was followed by a series of offences, similar in character, occurring in different sections of the country, within a comparatively brief period of time. In one instance society would be shocked by a terrible tragedy, and then suicides would become the topic in cities and towns until their very recital in the daily journals ceased any longer to attract public attention. Again, a peculiar and atrocious murder—probably a case of poisoning—or a horrible butchery of a helpless family—or a street assassination would burst on the horrified public, and then "run the gauntlet" until the criminal record would be surfeited with their multiplied similarity. The truth of this observation is fearfully verified in our own country at this very period, and we are reminded of it every time we open a newspaper. Crime, in all its phases, and with all its distinctive features, is alarmingly contagious, and, spreading like a pestilence, gives evidence of its horrible presence in great cities, in small villages, and by the secluded roadside. The imitative faculties of human nature are exercised as vigorously and as effectively in the pursuit of what is evil as in the accomplishment of great and laudable purposes. We will illustrate our remarks by a few instances.—The Bond street murder in New York, on which occasion Dr. Burdell was cruelly slaughtered in his private apartments, when about retiring to his bed, was committed in January last—only some four months from this time —and alas! how many poor victims in various sections of the country have since met a similar fate, within the walls of their own houses, in the seclusion of their own sleeping chambers, and at their very hearth-stones! This dreadful mania has left its bloody traces in Massachusetts —in Ohio—in St. Louis—in Philadelphia—in the immediate vicinity of our own city—and a number of other places that have escaped our recollection. Last summer deaths by poisoning, from the use of a peculiar kind of drug, which was previously unknown to a large class of persons, was almost an every day occurrence, from one extreme division of the Union to the other.

Our memory does not enable us to state that the writer suggested a cause for the existence of a feature in society that elicited from him the remark to which we have referred, in the commencement of this article, years having elapsed since it was forced on our attention, in the mere cursory perusal of a book, the title of which we cannot even now remember. But whether he suggested a cause or not, a cause exists beyond a reasonable doubt. The characteristic of society, pointed out with such startling accuracy, is not a mere phenomenon, having the effect only to excite our special wonder, without enlisting our higher and nobler faculties for its investigation. It is of recent origin, and is one of the few striking evils attending the grand progress of intellectual development, of which the present generation furnishes the evidence in its widely circulated public journals, that through the aid of steam and electricity, possess an influence and a power that never could have been conceived of or imagined by the philosophers and statesmen of a preceding age. It is from this mighty source that this periodical pestilence draws sustenance, and receives its dangerous vitality. Our leading journals, with a few worthy exceptions, bestow on crime its importance by spreading before the world all its shocking details, making heroes of its unhappy perpetrators, descanting upon the manner of its commission and suggesting improvements upon the mode, so that if there is "murder in the heart" of one of their million readers, it will soon find a pretext and a victim for its development in some unexpected quarter. And thus within their pages the embryo burglar, the paltry thief and the lumbering subject for suicide each find an incentive and an example to strengthen their wills and nerve their arms for the deed, that without these stimulants would not have been perpetrated.

Evident as the cause is for this great defect in our social organization, the remedy is equally apparent, and it needs but a few words to render it plain to every thinking person. There must be reform in this particular branch of journalism, which if not voluntarily adopted by those who have immediate control of the press, should be enforced by the great public who sustain these journals, and who suffer most from their dereliction. Let every good member of society endeavor to purify or eradicate the morbid taste that encourages, if it does not compel, such substitutions to its depraved appetite. Exclude from your parlors—your drawing rooms—and your family circle these minute details of crime and its wicked, and the great work will be accomplished without another effort.

The editor of the Journal, who is a walking exhibition of chronic peevishness and irritability, having transferred the scene of his petulancy from here to Harrisburg, came down on us, yesterday, in his choicest billingsgate. He calls us a "liar," a "wilful liar," and a "blackguard," displaying to the fill his aptness in the dialect of fish-mongers. If he were the courteous, finished, honorable gentleman he tries to make the public believe he is—if he were not, in fact, the veriest "liar" and "blackguard," he would not indulge in such slang.

Our offence consists in saying that this editorial Joseph Surface was at Harrisburg boring in the interest of the Pennsylvania road. We confess that our political authority for such a statement was himself. If is slander authority, we admit; and as he seems so free in characterizing it as untrustworthy, we are fain to censor with him, for once, and shall not dispute any terms of silence he may choose to heap on his own head.

As to the fact itself, that he is there boring in the interest of the Pennsylvania road, I. e. to procure the passage of the Main Line bill, and also, if necessary, the Sunbury and Erie bill, it is as patent as Monday is all who are cognizant of his presence there. We appeal for proof, not only to the dozens of our citizens who have been also engaged, there, in that business, but to the prevalent understanding in and about the Capitol.

We may as well call this Mr. Turveydrop that we know as much of the proprieties of life as he does, and that we are not to be lectured by him, nor scared by his expletives.—He may as well come down from his stilts, at once; for we intend to treat him as we would any other scurrilous assailant, in spite of his airs, his assumed self-consequence and his supercilious arrogance. We have been content, heretofore, to regard his flings at us as the pellings of a venom stirred up by Simmons; but henceforth he throws all such excuses aside he shall manifestly enjoy no further immunity from attack or retaliation than will grow out of a wholesome fear, on our part, of degrading ourselves by descending to his level.

MR. WILLIAMS being absent from the city we feel free to copy the following notice from the York (Pa.) Pennsylvanian:

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE.—This staunch Daily and Weekly journal—the official paper of Pennsylvania's industrious and enterprising western city—has admitted as one of its editors and proprietors, a sitting long and favorably known in this community. We refer to DAVID F. WILLIAMS, Esq., who, for a number of years, edited with becoming ability the "Democratic Press" of this Borough. The new proprietor takes with him into the "Gazette" establishment, a number of new friends, much political experience, and a share of talent which must add still more to the excellent reputation the journal had attained years ago: while connected with the press in this County, we frequently heard Mr. W.'s political opponents concede that his articles were both sound and effective.

It will be gratifying to Mr. W.'s numerous friends, to know that he has connected himself with one of the best and most influential papers in the State.

KITTANNING BANK.—Books for subscription to the stock of this bank will be opened in Kittanning on the 4th of June, and continue open one week.

MARSHAL HEINZELMAN AND THE SLAVE TRADE.—We did not expect, when we announced Captain Bynder's appointment as Marshal of the Southern District of New York, that we ever should have occasion to speak of him in terms of commendation for any of his official acts. But we feel disposed to rub "him with the grain" for his conduct in regard to the slaver, mentioned in the annexed extract from the New York correspondence of the Baltimore American, under date of Friday last. We do so the more readily because we fear, incorrigible sinner as he is, that it will be a long time before he will give us another opportunity for the indulgence of such amenities in his behalf. It is true, in this case he did nothing more than his duty—but then, for the ex-President of the Empire Club, and chief of the "shoulder hitters," to do his duty on any occasion, is something to talk about:—

"The examination in the slaver Merchant case was commenced yesterday before United States Commissioner Morton. Capt. Faunce, of the revenue cutter Washington, who seized the vessel, and Marshal Rynders, were the only witnesses called. Of the Marshal's mode of doing business the following, from his testimony, is a specimen: I received information that the Merchant was intending to go on a slave expedition. I placed a watch upon her and watched her myself; the vessel lay at pier No. 48 East river; I got a pea jacket, and went to the dock and passed myself off as a sailor looking for a brother, I went on board a schooner at the end of the wharf where the Merchant lay; they told me about the vessel and her intention to go to Africa on a slave voyage; I did not go out on the Satellite, but waited her return, in order to take the men in custody; most of those arrested told me they were going to Africa, but would not tell the nature of their business; Capt. Jones said he did not know the names of the owners of the Merchant, or what trade she was intending to engage in.

Suspected slavers is now a ruling feature of our marine affairs. The newest case is that of the schooner Evangeline, which has been the past week lying off the Battery. On Wednesday, the United States District Attorney notified her Captain of his being suspected as a slaver, and gave him instructions not to leave port until adequate bonded security was given that she was going on a legitimate voyage. All efforts to obtain satisfactory security has thus far failed.—Yesterday Captain Pittman, of the Evangeline, called on Mr. McKeon, and promised that if he would allow the vessel to proceed to sea, she would abandon her intended voyage. He did not keep his word, however, but cleared for Africa, but rather than have her seized, or any litigation concerning her ensue, he would prefer to sell the vessel at once. The District Attorney expressed no objection to the sale of the vessel, but before such sale took place, he should insist, he said, that the contents of the schooner, which seemed to indicate her intentions to go on a slave expedition, should be disposed of. The Captain gave no promise as to this, and thus the matter stands at present.

THE CITY TAX BILL.—The bill to enable the city to raise taxes sufficient to meet the interest on its railroad debt, was killed yesterday in the Senate, as we learn by a private dispatch. The bill, after passing the House, had been amended in the Senate, and the House refusing to concur in one or two of the amendments it went to a Committee of Conference. The Committee reported the bill to both Houses yesterday, and the Senate refusing to adopt the report, the bill fell.

If this bill, or some other bill of the same purport be not passed, the city will be forced to repudiate its railroad debt. Its present means of revenue will not suffice to pay any part of the railroad interest; and unless new sources of revenue are provided by the legislature, the interest cannot be paid.

The responsibility of repudiation, if it be forced on the city, will lie at the door of the legislature. The city cannot levy additional taxes without legislative authority; and if this is withheld, the legislature must shoulder the responsibility. The city has done all it could in the premises. Its handsare tied. The railroad subscriptions were made by warrant of Acts of Assembly; and if the same warrant cannot be had to provide for meeting the interest on them, let the blame rest where it truly belongs.

HARPER'S WEEKLY.—This wishy-washy concern, which bears upon its brazen front the lying title of "A Journal of Civilization," appears to have no other mission than fight the battles of the South. It devotes its leading articles to defences of slavery, sneers at the free state men of Kansas, defends the Dred Scott decision, and heartily advocates southern interests. Whether those who are silly enough to read it are likely to heed it, we think extremely problematical; the bulk of them, probably, buy it for the children to look at the pictures from second hand wood-cuts and pore over the stale Joe Millers it devotes such industry to hunting up. A really new joke is it, as well as in its congener, the Monthly, would create as much astonishment among the readers thereof as a drink of cold water would in the stomach of a confirmed drunkard.

THE Governor on Tuesday sent to the Senate vetoes of the following Bank bills:—To incorporate the State Capital Bank, at Harrisburg; the Farmers and Manufacturers Bank of Centre Co.; the Schuylkill Haven Bank; and to increase the capital of the Columbia Bank. The vetoes were sustained by almost a unanimous vote.

The Governor has also signed the following Bank bills:—To incorporate the Central Bank of Pennsylvania, at Hollidaysburg; to increase the capital of the Farmers and Drovers Bank of Waynesburg; and a supplement to the Bank of Pennsylvania.

MINNESOTA.—The Republicans swept the city of St. Paul at the late municipal election, electing two of the three Councilmen, the Treasurer and Marshal. The Mayor elect was on both tickets. The whole number of votes was 1922. On the leading office the Republicans polled 1122; the locofocos 755.

Fort Wayne, Ind., heretofore locofoco, elected Republican officers on Tuesday last by from 200 to 300 majority.

We have neglected to acknowledge hitherto, the reception from the publishers, Messrs. Reid & Barnes, of the first two numbers of their new monthly, "The American Protestant Union." It is neatly printed in pamphlet form, and is published simultaneously at Blairsville and Pittsburgh, at the low price of $5 in advance for a club of ten; $7 for a club of fifteen; or $9 for a club of twenty. The object of the work is opposition to Political Romanism, and it is conducted with zeal and ability.

Special Correspondence of the Pittsburgh Gazette.

HARRISBURG, May 12, 1857.

Editors Gazette:—The Main Line bill passed the House finally this morning. It goes hence to the Governor, who I think is certain to sign it.

The McKeesport Bank bill was lost to-day in the Senate by a tie vote of thirteen to thirteen. It may be revived.

The Governor has approved and signed the following bills, in which your western people are interested:—A bill to authorize the erection of a bridge over the Redbank Creek, in Clarion Co; a bill to prevent the killing of insectiferous birds, and for the better preservation of game in your county; the bill increasing the salaries of your judges; relative to the laying out of a state road from Shannon's hay house, in your county, to McNeil's saw mill, in Washington county; relative to the erection of a bridge in place of the old St. Clair, over the Allegheny river; the bill to incorporate the McKeesport Railroad Car Manufactory; the bill to permit the Pennsylvania Railroad to subscribe to the stock or endorse the bonds of the Hempfield Railroad; and the bill to remove the arsenal from Meadville to Philadelphia.

This comprises all the local business, or business of a general character, which has been done in either house up until noon to day.

The Sunbury and Erie bill has not been acted upon in the Senate to-day, as yet. It may be, however, this afternoon. S.

WITNESSES IN CONNECTICUT.—The Hartford Free Press says: "It is many years since Connecticut admitted to testify in courts all persons of no matter what religious belief, or even of destitute of any creed. Neither is any person now excluded here by reason of any pecuniary interest in the result of a case, or on account of having been convicted of any crime. The interest of a witness, or the fact of his conviction of an infamous crime, may be laid before the jury, and they are then to give such weight to the testimony of the witness as they see fit."

BALTIMORE, May 11.—Rev. Benj. N. McPhail, Pastor of the Presbyterian Churches at Snow Hill, Newtown and Pitts' Landing, in Worcester county, committed suicide about 9 o'clock on Saturday night, by jumping into the bay from the hurricane deck of the steamer Wilson Small. His health had been bad and his mind impaired for some time. He leaves a wife and five children at Norfolk.

FOREIGN FRUITS.—The West India fruit trade is increasing in importance every year. This season, both coconuts and bananas are expected to be more plenty than ever before. The first cargo of Mediterranean figs, numbering 40,000, has just been received, and sold for eleven dollars per hundred. Cocoanuts are very plenty, not less than 200,000 having been received last week. They sell for $25 per thousand. Bananas are very backward, and such as have been received are generally very green, and, consequently, deficient in flavor. Another cargo, numbering 40,000, is soon to arrive, will be more thoroughly mature. At the present time, five cargos of West India fruit are discharging. More than half of the entire receipts are packed in hogsheads, and forwarded with despatch to the East and West. —Jour. of Com.

DAYS OF GRACE ABOLISHED IN NEW YORK.—The Legislature of New York has abolished the custom of days of grace on commercial bills, to take effect on the 1st of July next. All bills of exchange, drafts and checks shall then be deemed due and payable on presentation, without any days of grace being allowed thereon. It has also been enacted that notice of non-payment and of non-acceptance of promissory notes, checks, drafts, on bills of exchange may be served through the post-office, with the postage thereon prepaid.

DIED—On Tuesday, 12th inst., Mrs MARTHA ANN CRAWFORD, daughter of William and Ann Hazill.

Her funeral will take place from the residence of her father, on Logan's street, second door from Franklin street, Sixth Ward, this [Thursday] morning, at 10o'clock. The friends of the family are respectfully invited to attend without further notice.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Chronic Diarhœa—We have in our possession the certificate of a respectable citizen, testifying that he was cured very soon of this dreadful disease by using BORRHAVE'S HOLLAND BITTERS.

To Consumptives and Other Invalids.

EXTENSION OF APPOINTMENT.

DR. J. W. SYKES,

ASSOCIATE OF

DR. CALVIN M. FITCH,

WILL REMAIN AT THE ST. CLAIR HOTEL, Pittsburgh, Pa., until SATURDAY EVENING, JUNE 20th, where he may be consulted by those wishing to avail themselves of Dr. C. M. Fitch's system of treatment.

The combination of remedial measures studied by Dr. Fitch and Dr. Sykes has been to amply tested, and to abundantly proved to be in practice all that it claims to be in theory, that its originators do not hesitate to assert, that by their system, relief may be obtained in all cases not absolutely beyond the reach of remedies.

By this plan of treatment the advantage of Medicated and Distinctive Inhalations is added to that of appropriate internal remedies, to renovate and sustain the system in all of the general system, and these with such means as the case may indicate, joined to chemical means at the case may indicate, joined to chemical means at the case may indicate, to secure proper attention to exercise, diet, bathing friction, &c., will not only afford more or less relief in almost all cases, but will effect permanent cures to many cases, in which entire partial and temporary relief could be obtained from any one of the above measures singly. But although many otherwise fatal cases of consumption may be thus relieved, there are still many which have passed beyond the reach of these and those who are in any way inclined to a disease so insidious, and so fearfully fatal as consumption, cannot be too careful to give their cases favorable attention. The delay even of a few weeks may, in many cases, turn the scale against the patient.

Where it is impossible for us always to refer to make a personal examination, and thus ascertain the precise condition of the Lungs, we wish to undertake no case without a personal examination, as long as there is a reasonable hope that we can be of doing good; and we wish no one to consult us who is not willing to hear the truth.

Those unable to visit us, will, in writing, be carefully questioned as to their case by a series of questions, at length, our patient to answer, as which will be sent to any one calling at the office, or sent by mail, on receipt of a three cent stamp. The questions are so framed as to be easily understood.

Consultation free. Office hours, 10 to 4 o'clock daily.

To the Public.

AN ATTEMPT HAS BEEN MADE BY interested parties to induce the public to believe that the Pianos which Mr. Thalberg uses at his concerts in the West, are not Jewett Pianos, but Pianos made to order for him solely on that account and from disinterested motives. Now this statement is entirely untrue, and contrary to fact, it unnecessarily calls for a refutation. Mr. Thalberg has purchased of me many Pianos, and of his own choice, as he makes no secret of his preference for the Knabe Grand Pianos, and it is only because Knabe's Agents were unable to furnish them on the last limited time of his visit, that he was obliged to take two of the others of other makers. It is not that Mr. Thalberg cares to take advantage or a case of simple necessity, to do the slightest amount of injustice to other and worthy manufacturers, while it is no compliment to the makers in whose behalf it is done, Mr. Thalberg's high estimation of the Nunns & Clark Pianos, and his very favorable mention of them during his visit here, seems to have provoked considerable clamor in certain quarters.

Call at the Great Piano of Sthan, Pa., it is quite visible to concert and other rooms in the city, and is above all censure. A splendid lot will soonly arrive in Wood street, in addition to their manufacturing establishment, No. 62 Irwin st., where they will be pleased to receive their friends. ap27;1ydh
