PITTSBURGH:

FRIDAY MORNING, MAY 15, 1857.

BILLS SIGNED.—A private despatch to the Gazette last evening from Harrisburg informs us that the Governor signed the bills establishing the Citizens' Deposit, and Iron City Banks yesterday.

THE Spiritualists are in high favor at the Court of Napoleon the Third, and the wonders of their revelations have been expatiated upon in every department of the palace, from the porter's gate to the Provence chamber, by the courtly fire-flies who flutter and buzz in the royal vicinage. Circles, with their usual paraphernalia of "rappings and revelations," and so forth, have been all the talk in that neighborhood for the last six months, creating a sensation after the most approved French fashion. HUME, a Spiritualist by profession, and a Yankee by nativity, is the "medium" through whom Royalty and its gay throng of followers are initiated into the mysteries of the hitherto indefinable existence beyond the portals of the tomb, and enabled to hold converse with disembodied kings and prelates, soldiers and statesmen, in high courtly phrase. It is said that the Emperor and his beloved Eugenie are really delighted with Mr. HUME—which is saying a great deal—and not only permit him to bask in the sunshine of their smiles, but, what is more to his liking, they literally shower upon him substantial tokens of their high regard for his person, and their special admiration for his wondrous powers.—The Republican "medium" has no doubt, through his progress in good fortune, put many a luckless courtier's nose out of joint for the time being at least, and as the privileged inmate of the palace he must be an object of envy and detraction to those who deem "the limits of Versailles the boundaries of the world." Hence we have hints leaking through the Paris press that the "circles" and the paraphernalia of "manifestations" had made an impression on Her Majesty so unpleasant and disagreeable that it was necessary that the interloping "Yankee" should be banished from the Court. But this was all mere idle talk—weak inventions of Mr. HUME's enemies that leak the merit of truth.—The probabilities are—so the Spiritual papers say—that he will reside in Paris as the command of the Royal Pair, who now control the destinies of la belle France; whether he will fill the position of embassador from the "land of shadows," or enjoy a private station, our information does not enlighten us.

HUME, who is as weak as his royal patrons, was troubled with some compunctious visiting of conscience, with regard to his dealing with the Spirits, a year ago, and, although a Protestant, repaired to Rome and entreated to join the Catholic church, whose priests he subsequently declared, through their prayers and intercessions, relieved him from the influence of the Evil Spirit with which he was possessed. But it seems the efforts of Mother Church did not possess the efficacy attributed to them by their convert, as we find him at his old tricks again. Well, with all his folly, we doubt not his power to reap a rich harvest from the over-credulity or love of excitement of the French Court, but as royal fun is proverbally fickle he should remember the homely adage about making hay while the sun shines. His presence is very distasteful to an influential class of imperial attaches, in the persons of pet veteran officers, growling editors and learned doctors, who are scandalized at the folly of the royal master. He therefore should see to his laurels, for he knows not what day or hour his patrons may withdraw their favor from him, and leave him to his own resources. But as affairs now are he is the "observed of all observers"—a real Parisian lion!

THE LEGISLATURE.—The democratic journals of this State are abusing in round terms their political majority in the Legislature, accusing them of treachery to the interests of the Commonwealth, extravagance, corruption and evil practices generally. They are no doubt correct In these striking portraits of their friends, but their motive in thus rating them is apparent.—They desire to shield their party from the accountability to which it which it will be held by the deceived people at the next election. The sacrifice of a few individuals, who, no doubt, acted in accordance with the instructions of their leaders behind the scenes, will not save the party from the fate it deserves, as in its organized capacity it is alone responsible for the power which it has abused. The history of the present legislature will illustrate in strong colors, the unworthiness and want of faith of the Sham-Democracy. Let them, through their representatives on the State ticket from Governor to Canal Commissioner, be held to the reckoning.

Gen. Packer, should he muster courage sufficient to take the stump, will adopt the usual democratic mode of electioneering, by making great professions in favor of economy in the State government—short sessions, with other democratic catch-words, by which the people have been deceived for years. The usual professions of hostility to monster Corporations, Banks, &c., will be repeated again, with great unction, and considerable "flourish of trumpets." But we cannot see how they can have any effect, with the proceedings of the present "democratic" Legislature in the recollection of the people.

"MORNING SIDE."—The advertisement of the choice estate named as above, may be found in our columns this morning. We visited this property on Wednesday, walked over it in all directions and can say that all which is said of it in Mr. Semple's advertisement, and more than all is true.

The land is exceedingly fertile, lies to the rising sun, commands charming views of the valley of the Allegheny River, the village of East Liberty, and the fine scenery beyond; is most generously supplied with living springs from which water can be carried to any and all parts of the land, and to the top of the house, and is easy of access by the Allegheny Valley railway, by the road passing the estate of Mr. Schlosky, or by a road coming in by East Liberty. These are decidedly the most eligible lots of land for country seats that we have seen in the neighborhood of this city. The property is free from all incumbrances, the title undoubted, and the terms most liberal. The gentleman who offers them, moreover, is one with whom all our citizens are acquainted, and with whom they will be pleased to deal. Those who would secure a lot of this land will do well to be in season as there will be no lack of purchasers.

An accurate plan of this valuable land, made by B. E. MCDOWELL, ESQ., may be seen in the counting-room of the Gazette.

REV. SIDNEY A. COREY, of the Fifth Avenue Baptist Church, on Sunday night preached a discourse in reply to Dr. Bellows' address on the influences of the stage. Mr. Corey condemned the theatre in toto as influencing those who frequented it only for evil; and, to prove his assertions, traced the history of the drama back to the earliest mention made of it. The brightest names connected with the theatre, he said, condemned it, and he mentioned James Sheridan Knowles and Spencer H. Cone, both once actors, but subsequently most eloquent Evangelical preachers. Mr. Corey is himself an ex-actor, formerly connected with the theatres in Philadelphia.

THE State of Michigan has established a College of Agriculture, on a farm of seven hundred fertile acres, near the city of Lansing, where the State Capitol is located. Joseph R. Williams, late editor of the Toledo Blade, is President. It has an endowment of $56,000, the proceeds of the Salt Spring lands, originally donated to the Territory of Michigan by the Federal Government. The Legislature has appropriated $20,000 per annum for two years to the support of the College. There are already accommodations for eighty students.

THE Republican County Committee of the county of Mercer, will meet at the Court House, in the borough of Mercer, on Saturday, the 30th day of May inst.

THE ANNIVERSARIES.—The May Anniversaries to which so many persons look forward with pleasure, are now proceeding in New York, having commenced on Monday. On the first day the Anniversary of the American Seaman's Friend Society, the Union Theological Society, the N. Y. Society for promoting Education among colored children, and of the Young Men's Christian Association of New York were held. The reports, which we have endeavored to read with some care, are encouraging, but quite tiresome to the casual reader, being for the most part an array of figures.

Tuesday was a day of more exaltement. On that day the American and Foreign Christian Union, the New York Sunday School Union, the New York Colonization Society and the American Anti-Slavery Society held the prominent meetings of the day. From the report of the A. and F. Christian Union we make the subjoined extract:

"The receipts of the year were $76,226, and the expenditures $72,122; balance in hands of the Treasurer, $4,174. Five thousand dollars worth of periodicals on the subject of Romanism have been gratuitously distributed. The number of laborers in the home field of this Society is 71 and it has 70 in the foreign departments. This aggregate of 141 persons is an advance of 22 over last year. The Report looks upon the Church of Rome as the grand obstruction to the progress of the Gospel, and warns the Protestant community to see that the statute law of the land is made to guard the rights of the citizen, no matter what his religious faith may be, in the following particulars: the public school system, the tenure of ecclesiastical property, and the due inspection of convents. The Society acknowledges its indebtedness to the Bible and Tract and other benevolent Societies, for aid furnished it in the course of the past year.

The Sunday School Union is said to have had an exceedingly interesting meeting, with its thousands of innocent children to testify to the good work the Sabbath School has accomplished.

The American Anti-Slavery Society was, of course, a great feature of the meetings. The men engaged in that movement have been so often "banned," so often excommunicated and anathematized as fanatics, infidels, traitors, madmen and fools that they appear to half believe themselves so. The result is, that having no friends to make or lose, they have ransacked all our copious language for epithets and have reduced denunciation to a science. The scathing satire of Phillips has a freshness about it which smacks of the Phillipics with which Demosthenes served the Athenians.

Mr. Francis Jackson, the Treasurer, made his report. The receipts have been $19,800, and the expenses $16,048, leaving a balance of $3,-252. The receipts of the Auxiliary Societies have been $18,862, making a total of $38,162.

The N. Y. Colonization Society held its 25th anniversary on Tuesday. From its report we clip the following:

"Since the last annual meeting, two large Companies of Emigrants have been sent to Liberia by the American Colonization Society, the first in the ship Elvira Owens, conveying 321, and the second, the Liberia packet Mary Caroline Stevens, carrying 217. The Society had prepared two large buildings, 100 feet by 50, and one at Cape Mount.

The Treasurer of the American Colonization Society reported at the Annual Meeting in January the receipt of $31,902 22 in donations; $24,716 84 in legacies; and from emancipation of slaves for their emigration and settlement, $22,635 09; this, with the sum donated to construct the packet ship Mary Caroline Stevens, $44,000, makes a total of $123,254 35.

Subsequent to their Annual Report, besides the ordinary income to that Society, its Treasurer has received from one generous donor, in Mississippi, $45,000.

The actual contributions to the Colonization cause from the State of New York have been $32,278 40, exceeding those of any former year.

The 465 slaves taken over by the two vessels were emancipated by forty owners, and their average was twenty-one years. At a moderate estimate their value, under the Southern laws, was fully $250,000, or over five times the sum of all donations received from the States united-ly."

In addition to the above, the Young Men's Christian Association held meetings of much interest on Tuesday. All the Societies, financially at least, appear to be in a flourishing condition.

The anniversary meetings will continue through the entire week. The meeting of the American Tract Society, held on Wednesday, decided one important point, viz: that the moral aspect of Slavery shall be discussed in their publications.

Epidemic Murder.

Messrs. Editors:—The community owe you thanks for your leader of yesterday. You state most truly that the present Murder Epidemic prevailing over the land, may be largely, if not mainly, attributed to the newspapers. We have journals of crime published and sold in all our cities, which the laws should condemn as nuisances, even at the risk of abating the liberty of the Press. But limitations such as this are compatible with its most jealous guardianship.—Liberty and license have no necessary compatibility. The morbid taste which seeks chronicles of crime, elaborate details of villainy, can be gratified sufficiently by the journals which professedly are established to cater for it. But there is no need that the papers which daily enter the merchants' counting-room, and the family circle, should be thus gratified. The New York Tribune, deservedly a high authority in matters of public morals, has unhappily been foremost in the manifestation and advocacy of this great evil. I read its arguments when published, but they so failed to impress me, that in view of my frequent disposal of the publication and argument of that Press, I am compelled to conclude that they were without value.

The evils of such publications may be easily perceived. In this manner the young and innocent are familiarized with the disgusting details of the horrible, details of crime even in families with whom morals and religion are paramount considerations. The untried and unknown has always an attraction for the human mind, in its inexhaustible thirst for knowledge; and who shall say in what degree this desire, united with the various other motives of human action, has resulted in the commission of murder, by those who were trained in rectitude.

But in the vast majority of families, morals and religion are not of supreme importance.—The acquisition of wealth, position, pleasure, are the chief incentives of action. The passions are not repressed; on the contrary, the sense of injury is taught to nourish in too desire for retaliation. War and its glories are added to familiarize the mind with bloodshed and to divest murder of its horrors. To this condition of society, add the universality of newspaper circulation.—Consider crime elaborated in its columns, thus grafted upon the human mind, soon, we may almost say, in the human heart; and we may safely conclude, that the narrations of murders, rapes, robberies, arsons and burglaries, are but as seed planted now in young minds to produce a plentiful harvest in coming years.

But we need not wait years, nor even months, for the results of such publications. At this very hour there are certainly hundreds, and very probably thousands of persons, scattered over our country, who are morally on the verge of murder, and of every other crime recorded upon the dark page of human depravity. Persons of this stamp need but the incentive, to the commission of deadly crimes. Injuries real or fancied, sensuality, the desire for money, and the thousand other evil desires to which the perverted human heart is prone; these, stimulated by their natural concomitants, evil companionship, late hours, and drugged liquors, cause the criminal to hover, yet in darkness, over the deadly crime to which he is bending. Then comes the newspaper to enlighten and confirm him. The murder of yesterday pushed in its columns, clears away the mists that impede his vision; the end which his mind had not yet framed into intention, becomes defined, and leads him to commission. It is but a fulfilment of the old adage, that "birds of a feather flock together." The good deeds of men are provocative of their like in men of similar affinities. We need not wonder, then, that the rule should work both ways, and that the statement and details of crimes in our newspapers should provoke their repetition by those who have a leaning towards them.

Let the Christian merchant, or father, carefully consider, before he introduces such journals into his counting room or dwelling, whatever may be their commercial or general value, and by their rejection, let him contribute his proportion towards the suppression of one of the great incentives of human crime. D.

THE vote of St. Paul on Tuesday week was an increase of six hundred over the municipal election of last year. Taking the common estimate of the population to be seven to a voter, we have a total increase of 4,200; considering it five, which is the lowest ever made, it shows an accession of three thousand people in twelve months—which will do.

IF the Philadelphia Times is published daily, we should be pleased to have some evidence of the fact. It comes here, on an average, about once a fortnight.

ONE of the Judges of the N. Y. Supreme Court decided last winter that municipal rails and subscriptions were unconstitutional. Judge Hubbard, of the same Court, has just decided the other way. He says:

1. It is no objection to the validity of such bonds, that the act authorizing them made their issue depend upon a popular vote of the municipality.

2. The ninth section of the eighth article of the Constitution does not prohibit the passage of laws by the Legislature authorizing municipal corporations to use their credit for the purpose in question.

3. The Legislature does not exceed its jurisdiction in passing laws authorizing cities and villages to subscribe for railroad stock and issue bonds, &c.

THE York (Pa.) Advocate thus notices the connection of Mr. Williams with the Pittsburgh Gazette:

On the first instant, David F. Williams, Esq., formerly one of the editors of The Democratic Press of this place, associated himself with Messrs. S. Riddle & Company, in the editorial management of the Pittsburgh Daily Gazette. Mr. Williams is favorably known in this vicinity as a forcible and finest writer, and as a gentleman of mature and well tempered judgment, and of courteous and agreeable manners. He represented York county three years successively in the House of Representatives of this State; and his intimate acquaintance with the politics of the State and of the Union at large, will render his accession to the Gazette establishment one of the utmost value. He carries with him the best wishes of this community for his success.

THE Democratic candidate for Governor, is said to be a contractor on the Sunbury and Erie Railroad, and is very anxious for the passage of the bill, authorizing the giving of three millions to this road by the State.

The Best Cough Medicine—A Man 80 YEARS OLD CURED.—Some time ago, an old neighbor of mine was very ill with a bad cough, which every one supposed to be consumption. His relatives told me that he had taken every remedy they heard of without benefit; his brother came on to see him die, and all were confirmed in the belief that he could not live. I had about the third of a bottle of your Pectoral Syrup, which I gave him, and it entirely cured him to the astonishment of all.—What makes the case more remarkable is the extreme age of the man, he being about eighty years old. I have no doubt the Pectoral saved his life.

ASSOCIATE OF

DR. CALVIN M. FITCH,

WILL REMAIN AT THE ST. CLAIR HOTEL, Pittsburgh, Pa., until SATURDAY EVENING, JUNE 20th, where he may be consulted by those wishing to avail themselves of Dr. C. M. Fitch's system of treatment.

The combination of remedial measures adopted by Dr. Fitch and Dr. Sykes has been so amply tested, and so abundantly proved to be in practice all that it claims to be in theory, that its originators do not hesitate to assert, that by their system, relief may be obtained in all cases not absolutely beyond the reach of remedy.

By this plan of treatment the advantages of Medicated Inhalation and Stomach Medicines is added to that of appropriate external remedies, to renovate and sustain the strength of the general system, and these with such mechanical means as the case may indicate, joined to proper attention to exercise, diet, bathing, friction, &c., &c., will not only afford one or less relief in almost all cases, but will effect permanent cures in many cases of which only partial and temporary relief could be obtained from any one of the above measures singly. But although many otherwise fatal cases of consumption may be thus relieved, there are still many which have passed beyond the reach of remedy, and they are invited to a direct and candid consultation, by which they may learn whether such is the case. Those who are truly desirous of relief will not delay to use the means (under advice) in the early stage of a new attack, as in many cases, turn the scale against the patient.

Where it is possible, we always prefer to make a personal examination, and thus ascertain the precise condition of the lungs, as we wish to undertake no case where we have not a chance of doing good: and we wish no one to commence, unless he is determined to fight the battle through.

Those unable to visit us, will, in writing, be careful to state their age, sex, occupation, habits of life, &c., and will receive a full description of their case, with all the necessary directions, as well by letter as if present.

Consultation free. Office hours, 10 to 4 o'clock daily.
