holding on to their lots. They have land to sell, and it is the look-out of themen of the future that they do not hold the lands when the jig is up and the land-end of the scale begins to kick the beam.

In the midst of this game of battle-dore and shuttle-cock, with all its incidents of papertowns, paper-mill privileges, city sites, river improvements, etc., what can be expected but a restless spirit of activity, without any permanent results? Everybody is flying and fitting hither and thither, as if issues of life and death hung in the balance; as if untold fortunes depended on each moment. It is the eager activity in real trath, which a man discovers when doomed to the treadmill. Most assuredly, he is nective; he misses no step; he cannot miss one: he toils with unremitting assiduity, but does he make any headway? Do those weary men, in the new world of the West, produce anything? Is not the State or the country where they play

Such is the result now seen in the West. All the products of the soil, such as grow in the fat lands of lows with very little labor, are at starvation prices. The country languishes for the careful hand of industry, and broad fields even yet out of the reach of speculators, invite to toil.

The object of the institution of this fund is to raise the wages and otherwise better the condition of poor families in the poorest districts of Ireland by the sanisted emigration to the United States or Canada of one member of each family, specially selected on secount of good character and industrous habits, in the expectation that the property of the republication of 46,000—the highest ever the property of the republication of the States or Canada of one member of each family, specially selected on secount of good character and industrous habits, in the expectation that the property of the republication of 46,000—the highest ever their own condition, but will according to the usual generous practice of frish emigrants, also send for, or otherwise generally help, the rest of that family in Ireland.

There is sufficient white force in our city among the young men who spend days and months on the street corners, to do more good in the West than all the speculators that are or ever have been in that country.

There are so many things to be said about the West, so many arguments to be urged against the present anomalous state of affairs that one scarcely knows where to begin or end in smak.
