PITTSBURGH: TUESDAY MORNING, JULY 21, 1857.

READING MATTER ON EACH PAGE OF THIS PAPER. The Minnesota Troubles. The democratic delegates elected to the Conional Convention of Minnesota—some fortyseven in number-still persist in their rebellious and disorganizing course, in refusing to meet in convention the 57 Republicans, and in maintaining a separate and distinct organization. As a pretext is generally offered for any disreputable act, we need not be surprised in this instance find the Minnesota disorganizers with "reasons" all on hand, ready for the occasion. According to a correspondent of the Cleveland Leader, the democrats allege "that several of the Republicans have certificates wrongfully given them by the County Clerks or Recorders, and that the Republicans say they will refuse to admit aix democrats elected from the Pembina district, who are entitled to their seats." But, curred in the begus (democratic) organization to whose room the discomfited Secretary retired after his cool reception in the hall:

after his cool reception in the hall:

"A shuffling of feet was heard again in the direction of the quadrangular hole where the members make their lugress and exodus, and that point again became the focus of converging glances. Another mob, or the same one intensited, was observed moving to and fro in the carridor between the Halls, when suddenly Capt. Chase with his bungling army of volunteers made a balt at the door. Their commander addressed them as follows:—Delegates of the Convention. The Hall of the House of Representatives is in the possession of a meeting of the sentatives is in the possession of a meeting of the sentatives is in the possession of a meeting of the citizens of the Territory, who refuse to give it up. [A suppressed sigh was distinctly heard.]

The door was open, and Ex-Gov. Gorman, having backed cautiously through that orifice, thus responded in behalf of his illustrious peers outside: Mr. Secretary, I move we adjourn to the Council Chamber. Which motion being carried unanimously, the suggested by the occasion he concluded as follows:

"After armed contention had finally ceased between America and England, an abundant after-growth of animosities and disputes sprang up, which have been gradually and successively cleared away. [Applause.] We are ourgaged at this moment in the extirpation of a root of difference, which I believe to be the last. [Great applause.] It cannot be removed by one-dided and precipitate action. It will yield to the well-adjusted efforts of mutual good-will. The views of my government are conciliatory, their declarations are sincere.

"The same trust may be also de in the policy and to the well-adjusted efforts of mittial good-will. The reward of my government are conciliatory, their doctarations are einere.

"The same trust may be placed in the policy and cander of the American Cabinet. But, gentlemen, our relations are not affected only by the resolutions which are taken in the temperate atmosphere of the Council Chamber. They are exposed to the scrutiny and commentary of those virgiant organs of opinion, the legislature, the public meeting and the press. This is not to be deplored; these agencies are the noble and neful concomitants of a free constitution. But the powers which are retained by the people in our respective countries are accompanied by responsibilities of a momentous character.

"It would be a lamentable circumstance if the housest and salutary intentions of the two governments for the settlement of our last controvery should be embarrassed on either side, or in any quarter, by the aspertites of unreflecting discussion, or the impulses of wayward patricidem. I have nothing to sak from the society in which we are metror from the cultivated and opilent community of Boston, but the continuation of their favor. Sociation and communities such as these are always the great reserves of political prudence and conservative feeling; but I invoke the generacity: and moderation of those who are mixed in the tunuit, and embarked on the once mixed in the tunuit, and embarked on the once mixed in the tunuit, and embarked on the once mixed in the tunuit, and embarked on the once mixed in the tunuit, and embarked on the once mixed in the tunuit, and embarked on the once mixed in the tunuit, and embarked on the once mixed in the tunuit, and embarked on the once mixed in the tunuit, and embarked on the once mixed in the tunuit, and embarked on the once mixed in the tunuit, and embarked on the once mixed in the tunuit, and embarked on the once mixed in the tunuit, and embarked on the once mixed in the tunuit, and embarked on the once mixed in the tunuit, and embarked on the once mixed in the

We inquired concerning the hand cart trains, and the true reason of employing them. They said that it was the greatest piece of cruelty that was ever perpetrated—that it was at all times horrible to behold the condition of those who arrived in that way—that frequently their hands and feet were frozen, and their limbs, from the effects of fatigue and exposure, awollen to more than twice their natural size—that sometimes when they were able no longer to pull the carts, the women and children were loaded with the baggage, and proceeded thus until they fell down with sheer exhaustion—and that after arriving in this condition, they would die off like "rotten sheep," as they expressed it. They stated that one reason for forming hand trains was, that those who came in that way, on becoming dissatisfied, would have no ready means of returning, and that those in authority curse the emigrant trains which pass through on their way to the Pacific, as they afford means for dissatisfied persons to oscape.

THE FORSEY FIGHT .- The Pennsylvanian says that the party generally manifests "a manly in-dignation at the effort made by a few members of the party in this city to rebuke Mr. BUCHANax for his alleged ingratitude to Col. FORNEY. Among the number are several who, being the recipients of Mr. BUCHANAN's favor in the shape of the very best appointments in this city, owe ever, interfere with the regular Convention, fidence to take the responsibility of their posiwhich proceeds with its business in the manner tion." It then proceeds to continue its warfar upon Forney in this wise:
