PITTSBURGH:

READING MATTER ON EACH PAGE OF THIS PAPER.

☞The communication of our friend "C" shall appear to-morrow.

Southern Commercial Convention.

The Governors of all the Southern States, and the Mayors of the principal Southern cities, having nothing else to do this warm weather, are busily engaged in appointing delegates to that greatest of all farcical movements, the Southern Commercial Convention—a sort of a permanent body, which meets annually, serving as an escape valve for the fanaticism and treason generated wring the year. We are not aware that the projectors of this scheme have any special object in view, farther than the indulgence in glorifications of the peculiar advantages of the institution of Slavery, and in visions of the ultimate establishment of a Southern Confederacy, with a steam communication with Europe, under the auspices of that hopeful builder of castles in the air, DUDLEY MANN—and that chivalrous champion of "Southern rights," Governor HENRY A. WISE. We might add, that in addition to these momentous and absorbing matters, the propriety of excluding from Southern Schools and Colleges, all text books, which are not conformable to the narrow standard adopted South of the Potomac, is very earnestly and feelingly urged upon the attention of the Convention by the fire-eaters and negro-drivers—the Buforts and the Legrees—who love the peculiar institution more than they love their children's welfare and their own future happiness. It will be thus seen that the pure fountains of knowledge are to be poisoned and defiled by that dark curse, which not content with blighting the happiness of millions of poor, down-trodden, and greatly wronged victims of tyranny, seeks to cast its shadow in the path of the student and the scholar. Church—State—and the halls of learning, all must bow to the dark spirit of Slavery; and even the literature of the country must submit to its Procrustean exactions. These conventions, composed, as they generally are, of Southern planters and professional men who have passed the summer in elegant ease at the fashionable watering places, are in themselves exceedingly tame and inactive bodies, the members of which expend all the remaining energies that they bring with them from the summer resorts, in high-toned and laudatory speeches, evidently designed to minister to the sectional pride of their brother slave-holders, and at the same time show off their own rhetoric and eloquence. The movement, which is the subject of the present notice, is very justly ridiculed by a number of respectable journals in the Southern States, and one of them intimates that if the railroad directors on the several lines of travel would refuse to pass the delegates free of charge, the Convention would not be attended by a sufficient number to form a "Corporal's guard." But as the railroads are very accommodating in this matter, the Convention will be fully attended, and as a consequence we may expect to hear loud thunder, some time during next month, from the vicinity of Knoxville, in the State of Tennessee—which is the place designated for the meeting of this great pro-slavery Sanhedrim. In the meantime the laws of nature will remain unchanged—the sun will shine—the rain descend, and corn and potatoes will grow as usual. The Union will survive, and we trust it will be all the better for the hard knocks which will be bestowed upon it by the holiday patriots and paper heroes, sitting in grave council on the solemn "affairs of State."

The Baltimore American—one of the ablest and most influential journals in the Southern States—in its issue for Thursday last, contains an article on the subject of these Southern convocations, which advances some very excellent views. We quote a portion of the remarks of the editor on this topic:

"For several years past we have been called upon annually to chronicle the assembling of another and another of these bodies. They have met, now here, now there—the prototype; which had no commercial pretext, where and with a purpose which it was thought might have made that grim old 'Union-Saver,' Andrew Jackson, turn in his coffin; and that the last, which followed up the 'commercial' idea, with a much softened tone and in quite as wholesome a latitude, in the mercantile emporium of the great Empire State and Union centre of the South. The next, now imminent, is to meet in Knoxville, Tennessee, on the 10th of the coming month.

Last year, we thought we discovered a very slight leaven of practical sense in some of the promises made before the meeting of the Convention at Savannah, and upon this very slight basis were content to intimate in advance a cordial support of any thing substantial, however insignificant, which should there be determined upon. With this view, we even sent a stenographer there to furnish us with an early rescript of its proceedings. These came, and it is little to say that, after all the self-glorification of its members and certain Southern presses excessively interested in the 'unity' and 'preferredness' of the Southern States, as against the North and the Union, they were but a tissue of frothy speeches, partisan manœuvres, and impracticable resolutions. This completed our distrust in these things from that time forth. We shall be glad to see something more effective started, at least, at Knoxville; we shall be still more glad, as furnishing ground for hope of such effective issues, to see men of common sense and means sent thither; and, above all, we shall rejoice exceedingly to discover that Southern commerce and not Southern isolation is aimed at, both in word and in deed—no jot the less in practice than in sentiment. Otherwise, we enter our protest against all such contrivances of self-sacrificing Southern politicians in the future, and against any Governor of Maryland hereafter sending thither a set of delegates to affix the State of Maryland to the tail-board of a cart-load of South Carolina secessionists."

This feeling of disrespect for these exclusive and sectional "commercial" movements has extended further South than Maryland, having reached the State of Georgia. The Cassville Standard, published in that State, manifests a very rebellious disposition, considering the latitude which it represents. It says:

"This Convention is soon to assemble at Knoxville, and its friends are already urging upon the people the appointment of delegates, and making arrangements for their meeting. We are opposed to these assemblages—because they do no good; and what does no good, when the great object is to effect good, must do some harm. This Convention has had annual meetings for several years, and we challenge any one to point out any advantage which the South has derived through their labors.

But our great objection to them is that they tend to the formation of sectional prejudices—which ought not to be cherished by any people living in such a country as ours. We love that sentiment—no east, no west, no north, no south. We love that sentiment which causes us to labor for the whole country. We live under one Constitution; we enjoy the same liberty; then let us share every blessing with our brethren from every section. As long as we live together as Americans, let us cherish a national feeling, and when it becomes necessary to look to something else besides the Constitution, and the assemblies authorized by that Instrument for the protection of our rights and interests, then let the Union be dissolved.

If then these Conventions have done no good, and tend to harm, ought we not to discountenance them, and turn our attention to something more practical and more profitable? The fewer gatherings of politicians we have, the better for us as a people."

We like the Tribune and we don't intend that anybody shall make us dislike it, but why the mischief it spells turkey, turky, we cannot conceive. Who wants to eat a turky? The next thing we know we shall have that journal spelling the great American bird, Egle, and then Train will doubtless assassinate one of the Editors. One would think that some of the New York teachers have been giving the Tribune a few lessons in the art of "spelling" made easy.—Newark Mercury.

FIRE PLACE SHUTTERS.—In many of the first class houses recently erected in England, fire-place shutters are provided, which, when partly drawn down, act as powerful blowers, and when wholly drawn down, so as to touch the hearth-stone, entirely close up the fire place, and instantly extinguish the combustion of the fuel in the grate, or that of the soot in the chimney, should it accidentally take fire.

☞AN ILLINOIS WHEAT FIELD.—On the farm of Messrs. Carle & Thomas, near Urbana, Illinois, there is a wheat field of one thousand acres, and in which one day last week there were twelve reaping machines at work! By the employment of the twelve reapers, the immense field could be put in shock in four or five days. It is thought the field will average twenty bushels to the acre.

"Why have you left the Democratic party?" said a Buchanan man to a Republican. "Principally on account of the Kansas outrages," was the reply. "Why! don't you know that nine-tenths of the Kansas stories are false," asked the Buchanier. "Well, suppose they are, what do you do with the other tenth? I go for the Republicans on the other tenth."

OUR BOOK TABLE.

The Professor; by Currer Bell. New York. Harpers: Pittsburgh, J. S. Read.

This book was written before either "Jane Eyre" or "Shirley," and consequently before Charlotte Bronte was a name to conjure with.—Now that her fame is assured—now that she has passed away beyond the sound of either praise or blame, and her account with time been sealed up, we have one of her first efforts which will be read by all the world. Her husband in a little supplementary preface says that the authoress made some use of the material of this volume in "Villette," but as the two stories are in most respects unlike, he has been advised to give "The Professor" to the public, and hence we have this book, printed and bound in the most tasteful manner. We have no doubt it will be found on the centre-table of every lady in town who loves to read an excellent tale, well conceived and couched in a style that is as attractive here as in Jane Eyre.

THE ORATION ON THE CROWN; Translated by Charles Rann Kennedy, New York, Harpers: Pittsburgh, J. L. Read.

This has always been considered the greatest speech of the greatest of orators; it is therefore in its conception and the elaborate finish of all its parts, perhaps the rarest production of man, and would so appear probably to the casual reader even, provided the full force of the original could be made to inspire the translation. Here was a man of great power and the carefulest culture pleading for a reputation which he had been all his life long building up; for, the bill of Ctesiphon which was laid before the council of Five Hundred, proposing to bestow upon the orator a golden Crown, expressly designated that gift as a reward for his general integrity and good conduct as a statesman. The indictment on the other hand, brought forward by Eschines, alleged among other things that it was unlawful to make false allegations in any of the State documents which raised the point whether a falsehood had been uttered in declaring Demosthenes a man of integrity. In such a state of the case with such inducements to effort, and before such an audience as listened to him, there can be no wonder that the "Oration on the Crown" is ranked among the greatest productions of the human mind.

MADELEINE SMITH.—The English and Scotch papers contain many articles about the late poisoning case. Madeleine Smith was thought to have taken passage in the Asia for America, but this proved to be a mistake. Still it is believed that she has left the country. One of the papers says her father has refused to see her since the trial. An Edinburgh letter says that her training as a young girl had been very severe. Her father kept her secluded from the world, and suffered her to read none but religious books. When she grew up and entered the world, she began immediately to read forbidden books, including the worst kind of novels. Of course she had to practice deceit, and live in truth two distinct lives, passing for very religious at home and with her pastor, and really holding all morality and religion in scorn.

THE events which have recently taken place in Italy must necessarily have their consequences in the European Cabinet. Therefore, we should not be astonished to learn that the Austrian Cabinet is about to demand of Prussia that that government should address a note to England praying her to exercise an active surveillance over the refugees who have sought an asylum in the British Islands—that is to say, to modify the English regulations relative to foreigners. It is not yet known how Prussia will reply to this demand; but it is certain that there is in preparation a united assault upon Lord Palmerston by the Italian powers, to obtain the expulsion of Mazzini and his confreres from England.

THE Chicago and Detroit papers containing the sickening details of a hideous case of incest and subsequent abortion. The victim was a young daughter of Rev. Mr. Fay, a Baptist preacher in Troy, Mich., and the seducer was her grandfather, named Daniels, a rich citizen of Chicago. After she had been nearly killed by the effort at abortion, she was spirited away by an agent of Daniels, who kept her concealed that she might not testify against him; but her mother succeeded in ferreting out the hiding place and there is now a prospect that the old villain will be brought to justice.

THE Commissioner of Patents has made arrangements with Major H. C. Williams to proceed to Arkansas and Texas, for the purpose of making selections of grape vine cuttings, noting the character of the soil and the aspect in which such cuttings are found—their local names and the period at which the fruit is matured. Major Williams is also instructed to collect the seeds and stones of any other native wild fruits.

A NEW MOTIVE POWER.—Dr. Carbia, of Cuba, has invented a new system of propelling vessels. His plan proposes the building of Windmills on the decks of his ships, with great wings, from which the motion is communicated to side wheels similar to those of steamships. The models it is said have been successfully worked.

OLD WINES.—Bayard Taylor, in a late letter from Germany, mentions having drunk wine two hundred and thirty-three years old, it having been gathered in 1624, just four years after the landing of the Pilgrims at Plymouth! He says its taste was oily and otherwise disagreeable.

A CRAZY SLAVE REFUSES HIS LIBERTY.—A slave named Henry Dixon, in Alabama, recently refused his liberty when offered to him, and the southern people were much tickled thereat. It turned out upon subsequent examination that Henry is as crazy as a loon.

OREGON.—The Constitutional Convention of Oregon consists of 42 locofocos and 18 Republicans. The locofoco papers announce it as the intention of the majority to submit to the people a separate clause in the constitution establishing Slavery.

The Southern Convention of last year appointed a committee of learned men to prepare a series of text-books for use in southern schools. The committee was called to meet at Columbia, S. C., on the 18th of May last; but not one of the members attended.

A school teacher named Moore, was attacked and cut to pieces while in school, in Greenville, Ann Arundel County, Md., by a family named Howard, for chastising one of the children of that family who had written some indecent language in a young lady's copy book.

The coins, papers, &c., deposited in the corner stone of the Philadelphia High School, in 1842, were found upon a recent examination to be in a corroded and decayed condition. They were deposited in a glass jar sealed with wax, but the water had filtered through the wax and saturated the papers completely.

As the 6th of September next is the centennial anniversary of the birth of La Fayette, it is proposed in the Boston Post to celebrate it with deserved honors.

THE ALDANY BRIDGE.—Judge Nelson, of the U. S. Circuit Court, has granted a preliminary injunction against the building of the railroad bridge over the Hudson at Albany.

Dyspepsia and Debility Cured.—Theodore Frank, Esq., of Pittsburgh and Steubenville Railroad Office says:

"For years I have been an invalid from Dyspepsia. With a hope of relief, I resorted to many advertised remedies, but failed in deriving the benefit sought for, until I tried your HOLLAND BITTERS, the happy effects of which upon the digestive organs, and in restoring a debilitated system, causes me to recommend it confidently to all suffering from Dyspepsia."

For sale at $1 per bottle, or six bottles for $5, by the proprietors, HENLY PAGE, Jr., & CO., Manufacturing Pharmaceutists and Chemists, Pittsburgh, Pa., and Druggists generally. See advertisement. jy31:d&wtf

How often do we hear the inquiry made, what can I get to cure that violent cramp I am slightly subject to? I well know the cause to be my too frequent indulgence in eating the vegetables and fruits of the season, besides taking a dozen or more glasses of ice-water during the day—consequently, must pay the penalty. Our advice to such would be, always to keep a bottle of Hostetter's Celebrated Stomach Bitters in the house, as it will afford a sufficient relief to any person having Cramps, Spasms, Cholera Morbus, &c., which are generally the result of overindulgence in vegetable diet. In fact, when interest is committed no family can afford to be without these Bitters. They can be had of any of our druggists for one dollar per bottle, containing a full quart, which will last the season. Sold by all druggists and dealers generally. jy29d&wtf

A RETIRED PHYSICIAN

Whose sample of the heavenly run-all discovered while in the East Indies, a certain cure for Consumption, Asthma, Bronchitis, Coughs, Colds, and General Debility. The remedy was discovered by him when his only child, a daughter, was given up to die. He studied hard and successfully in making a remedy. His child was cured, and is now alive and well. He has since administered to the wonderful remedy to thousands of sufferers in all parts of the world, and he has never failed in making all perfectly healthy, sound and happy. Wishing to extend it as much as possible, he will send by mail, to any who will address him, post paid, a recipe for making the remedy, with full and explicit directions for making it up, and successfully using it. He requires each applicant to enclose him one shilling, to defray the cost of the return mail, postage on the recipe, and the remainder to be applied to the payment of this notice when next seen. DR. KEYSER'S SHOULDER BRACES—From Pittsburgh Dispatch, April 18th, 1856—for more than 3 years past, we have constantly worn the Washington Shoulder Brace, manufactured by Dr. Geo. H. Keyser, of No. 140 Wood street, in this city, and would heartily recommend it to all who are compelled to follow a sedentary occupation. As we have before remarked, in calling attention to such instruments, it answers for a brace and suspenders, the weight of the pantaloons being supplied as to continually tend to keep the shoulders to their natural position and expand the chest. Women, hundreds of whom are annually injured by the weight of enormous skirts, should also procure the brace. Be particular in procuring the kind recommended, as many of the brace sold are humbug. Sold at Dr. GEO. H. KEYSER'S, Wholesale Druggist, 140 Wood street, sign of the Golden Mortar. je1 tawly

All persons, therefore, who wish to consult Dr. Fitch, must do so before that date. Rooms, Nos. 2 and 3 of ST. CLAIR HOTEL. Office hours, 10 A. M. to 4 P. M., daily. No calls received on the Sabbath, except in cases of extreme urgency. Dr. Fitch will accompany all he absent from the city on Saturday and Monday of each week, and when in town wishes to divide those days to visiting, and would prefer to receive no calls from those on Tuesday as well call on any other day of the week. On TUESDAYS, WEDNESDAYS, THURSDAYS and FRIDAYS, of each week, Dr. Fitch will always be at his office.

Patients desiring to consult Dr. Fitch should not defer till the last few days of his appointment, as they will incur great risk of not being able to obtain the attention desirable, the throng before leaving being frequently such as to preclude the possibility of giving each case the requisite attention, and occasionally even preventing his examining them at all. Consultations and Examinations of the Chest FREE, but, as Dr. Fitch does not pretend to raise the dead, he does not wish to treat any in the last stages of consumption, or where a curative treatment cannot be adopted, and he desires none to apply to him who do not wish to hear the truth, as he is accustomed to tell those consulting him what he considers their real situation, or the actual condition of their Lungs, and those who have delayed till their lungs are destroyed cannot hope for any encouragement.

Dr. Fitch would also add, that he may be consulted for Affections of the Heart, (sympathetic,) Nervousness and General Debility. Also, for Dyspepsia, Female Diseases, and all other derangements of the system predisposing to Asthma or Consumption. jy15:atawtitle:F
