THE Pennsylvanian has a long article in the nature of an inquiry into the causes which have operated to place or to leave Pennsylvania in commercial and manufacturing position unworthy of such a State. It says:

unworthy of such a State. It says:

"Had we fully availed curselves of our resources, we should have monopolized, by this time, the manufacturing business of the United States. The New England States could not have competed with Pennsylvania in industry; and the trade of New York would not have gained a preponderance over that of Philadelphia. For it is not alone the harbor, but the resources of the country in the rear of a sea-port, which determines its commerce. This principle is most convincingly and practically elucidated by the astonishing progress, and the immense trade of Liverpool. England has many harbors equally and more accessible than that of Liverpool, but the latter city commands, by its position, the manufacturing centre of England, and hence her commercial preponderance. Philadelphia is the Liverpool of the United States by pool; but the latter city commands, by its posi-tion, the manufacturing centre of England, and hence her commercial preponderance. Phila-delphia is the Liverpool of the United States by nature, though, and we regret the circumstance; not as yet by art. Had we paid more attention of the pressure of the work in this city is a treet, where subscribers may be usually and had been applied. This book, as is well known, is it not as yet by art. Had we paid more attention to manufacturing, the means would not have failed us to complete our railroad connections with the Lakes and the West. New York accomplished their purpose with the proceeds of her foreign commerce; Boston with those of New England industry. The foreign trade of these two ports depends solely on the railroad connections with the interior. We having failed to finish ours, our foreign trade declined. This would not have taken place, had we in time recognized in what the real vital force of our State

The very contemplation of his conduct is too much for our patience, and we therefore leave him to his new employment, earnestly trusting that he will be rewarded according to his deserts. A man who takes upon himself a dog's vocation deserves the fate of a dog.

"The democracy of the Borough of Lebanon are divided on the Gubernstorial question between Hazlehurst and Packer. The democracy held a meeting here a few days ago, which was addressed by Haslehurst. The friends of Packer are making efforts to heal the division in their ranks, but with poor success."

to finish ours, our foreign trade declined. This would not have taken place, had we in time recognized in what the real vital force of our State lies. The special aim of Pennsylvania should be the promotion of manufacturing industry, and it is the true policy of the United States to develope both manufacturing and agricultural industry simultaneously and harmoniously."

Yet it has always been the policy of the party which the Pennsylvanian has contended for through thick and thin, to keep this State just where she stands now in relation to the other States of the Union.
