Carriages.

JOSEPH WHITE'S Carriage Repository.

JOSEPH WHITE NOW CARRYing on business in his spacious premises recently built expressly for the purpose, between Penn and Liberty streets, next to the Mansion House, most respectfully invites the public to inspect his stock of FASHIONABLE CARRIAGES, which for particularly intense workmanship, material, finish and style of ornament, are unsurpassed by any establishment in the country. Parties in search of carriages, whether for pleasure or business, would do well to call and examine the large and well selected assortment of Carriages, which in many cases for the same money, can be obtained at this establishment than at any other in the city. The subscriber is a practical workman, and has been for many years connected with some of the most extensive and most celebrated Eastern Manufactories. The success of his business will amply testify to the correctness of his statements—will supply the best and most fashionable carriages to purchasers at moderate prices.

Unencumbered by those heavy expenses which fall so much for decorating Houses of Business, he is enabled to sell upon the principle of supplying to large extent. Eagle Wagon will sell on ready money only, and can afford to do less than the usual profits.
