A SERMON.—Rev. Dr. M. W. Jacobus, of the Allegheny Theological Seminary, who for nearly a year past has supplied the pulpit of the Third Presbyterian (N. S.) Church, of this city, preached a sermon there on Thanksgiving day, which the Society requested and procured for publication, a copy of which we have received from the author, and read with much pleasure. Those who desire it may find it at the store of Mr. Albree, corner of 4th and Wood streets, and at the book stores generally, we presume, but as they very seldom publish anything now about their new books, we are unable to say positively.

Dr. Jacobus has presented some views in this sermon that are so sensible as to commend themselves at once to the reader, without the necessity of assuming a great mystery in the dealings of providence, without which assumption the Deity is made to appear the author of all our miseries, mishaps and misfortunes. Is it not true that men sometimes work themselves out of the current of God's providences; float their own boats into their own dark and dangerous seas and go down among the waves as a result of their own folly, as a consequence of acting in the very teeth of God's warnings and commands.

We do not know that our readers will under stand us, but the following quotation from the sermon in question cannot be misunderstood:

"There never was such an ingathering (of crops) in the history of the land. In the last year, ending June 30th, 1856, there was a total of breadstuffs and provisions exported of over seventy-seven millions of dollars, and less than thirty-nine millions the year previous—nearly doubling the last year. There was for the same period, an export of cotton, of one hundred and twenty-eight and a half millions of dollars against eighty-eight millions the year previous. And the grand total of exports from all sources, exclusive of specie, was two hundred and sixty-six and a half millions of dollars. But our imports, for the same period, were TWO HUNDRED AND NINETY-FIVE AND A HALF MILLIONS, about thirty millions excess of imports above exports. From the beginning of the government we have imported eight hundred millions more than we have exported. And since 1821 we have exported one hundred and forty-three millions of the precious metals more than we have imported. I regard it, then, that God has given us the immense crops of this season, to obviate, so far, the serious consequences of our own folly. He has given us extravagant harvests, just to keep us from being utterly crushed under the load of our own extravagant expenditure. And yet some are this day withholding their thanks to God, because trouble of some sort is upon us. Let it, then, be distinctly and publicly acknowledged here, that God was done well his part toward us. The Lord is good. Whatever are calamities in the financial world—if commerce is embarrassed—if confidence is shaken to its very centre—why, both plone in? What is the matter? What have we done with God's gifts? How happens it that with the most unparalleled lavishing upon us of all the material resources from the lap of God's bounty, there is all this revulsion and catastrophe? Whence cometh all this cry of want from so many thousands of operatives suddenly thrown out of employ, and from the drying up of so many channels of industry and trade in the land? Is it from the pestilence stalking among us? No! Is it from war? No! Is it from famine? No! Is it from the rot in our fields, or the drought, or the blight upon our great staples? No, no, no! Then God, into whose ears this cry of destitution comes, points to the exuberant bounty which His good hand has lavished; and does He not call upon the heavens and the earth, the mountains and the valleys, to bear Him witness that this is none of His doing? We shall not properly estimate our grounds of thanksgiving, unless we take account of this fact—that God has done nothing toward us but good, and that all our troubles have been of our own procuring. Some have even quarrelled with any such appointment as this of thanksgiving at this time, when there seems so much distress around us calling for lamentation."

Let this sermon be read by all who can get it. It is worth a dozen financial reports, and reams of weak wailing over "afflictive providences" which men have invited by their own folly on their own heads, and which come just in good time, as the rod which the unruly child procures for his own back.

CHRISTIANITY NOW TO BE PROPAGATED IN INDIA.—The virtual re-establishment of British supremacy in India, and the prospect of a reformed organization in all the departments of the British Eastern Empire, have naturally opened the springs of religiousness well as political agitation.

The Bishop of Oxford has delivered at Reading, Eng., a long lecture in support of foreign missions. With respect to India, he strongly denounced the sanctioning and maintenance by the British authority there of the native superstitions, affirming the true interpretation of the cause of England's recent disasters to be that England has been false to England's faith, and timid of avenging England's God."

LATE letters from one of the members of Dr. Quincy's family speak of the great writer as being in perfect health and seemingly a much younger man than he appeared 40 years ago. He is at present residing in Edinburgh, on a visit. He has two sons in the army, one daughter married to an officer in India, another married to a gentleman in Ireland, and the third and youngest, is the housekeeper at the cottage at Lapwade. The "old man eloquent" is now between 70 and 80, and still uses opium as in former days. Boston Transcript.

A GENTLEMAN in Terre Haute has a map of Mexico drafted by Aaron Burr himself, in contemplation of his expedition against that country, when he was arrested for treason. The different points on the gulf, and the location of the principal places in the interior, are delineated with a minuteness and fidelity seldom met with in productions of this character.

INDEFINITELY POSTPONED.—The Senate of the State of South Carolina, on the 8th instant, without debate, disposed of the report and resolutions in favor of re-opening the slave trade, by indefinite posponement. We cannot but express satisfaction with the removal from the council of the State of a proposition fraught with so much danger to Southern union and harmony at a period requiring every influence to promote them.—S. Carolinian.

WHO GEN. DENVER IS.—Denver, Secretary Stanton's successor, was despatched to Kansas some time since to await the contingencies. He was a member of Congress last session from California, and since then has been an Indian agent. He acquired notoriety in California by a duel in which he killed Gilbert, the editor of the California. It was thought that his conduct was heartless and bloodthirsty in that affair, by the people of California.

THE appellation of "Anti-Buchanan Democrat" is said to be creeping into use, and those to whom it is applied are already speaking of us as a distinct combination. Douglas is regarded as its leader.
