Detailed Account of Walker's Surrender.

ASPINWALL, Saturday, Dec. 19, 1857.

The Wabash arrived off Greytown on the 9th. The next day Commodore Paulding hoisted his flag on the Fulton, and immediately set about his preparations to capture Walker and his men, whom he found encamped on Punta Arenas. It appears that the Commodore had received by the Fashion, before he sailed from Aspinwall, which was on the afternoon of the 3d, a most presumptuous letter from Walker, in which the writer styled himself "President of Nicaragua, and Commander-in-Chief of the Army of Nicaragua." This letter complained bitterly against Capt. Chatard and his officers, for presuming to question his rights as sovereign of the country, &c., and among other things asseverated that he threatened Lieut. Culley, of the Saratoga, that he would hoist him if he came near his head quarters, the Lieutenant was without his uniform, and consequently he had no right to claim that he was a United States naval officer. In this letter Walker avowed his intention of asserting his rights as President of Nicaragua by force of arms, if necessary.

On the 18th Commodore Paulding sent, through Captain Engle, of the Wabash, his reply. This reply was a model of brevity, but was couched in language so plain and pointed as admitted of only one interpretation, and invited no rejoinder. The Commodore bluntly disputed all his facts and premises, plainly telling him that his expedition was an illegal and wicked one, and that he had come there to break it up. As regarded the threat to Lieutenant Culley, he could only say he had the Lieutenant's authority for saying that he was in uniform, and it concerned Gebernador Walker to know that any violence used by him towards an officer of the United States would result in an ample retributive justice towards the offender. The dispatch concluded by commanding General Walker to lay down his arms, and surrender himself and his men to the United States forces.

Commodore Paulding had previously blockaded the mouth of the River San Juan, so that there was no chance for the escape of the filibusters. On the 9th the boardside of the Saratoga was brought to bear on General Walker's camp. Captain Engle had the day before received his written orders as to the arming and disposition of the launches. He was directed to land, when he should be at a convenient distance from the shore, with a small force, and, in case of resistance, he was directed to seize the principal officers first, using only just so much force as was necessary to accomplish his purpose. Everything being ready, 100 marines from the Wabash, and 250 sailors from the Wabash and Saratoga, jumped into the launches, a tremendous sea making the feat very difficult of accomplishment—yet the utmost regularity and the most perfect discipline were observed throughout. The scene, with the many boats dancing on the waves, full of armed men, the launches, with the Stars and Stripes floating proudly, the men-of-war of the United States, and the British line-of-battle ship Brunswick in the harbor, was magnificent. The landing was effected without the slightest opposition. There was no appearance of any contemplated resistance on the part of Walker. When Capt. Engle stepped forward, and presented his demand for the surrender, General W. replied at once: "Captain Engle, I am under your orders."

Some 200 men were immediately embarked on the Fulton and Saratoga—Walker on the former vessel. Some 20 or 30 slid away into the bushes. Captain Engle at once placed a marine guard over the stores and munitions of war, and then sent out men to hoist the flag and bring in the fugitives. Notwithstanding the care used to secure the arms and stores, the straggling filibusters got a considerable quantity of them into the bush, and hid or buried them. Among the plunder of the camp a few barrels of liquor of whiskey had not been forgotten. "Jack" could find all sorts of things in the bush, but, strange to say, he always reported "no whiskey there." It was very amusing, however, to see "Jack," driving in his prisoners. Every little while a sailor might be observed emerging from the thicket, pompously, with cutlas and pistol in hand, driving before him a poor, chopfallen filibuster, both as drunk as Julius Cæsar, from the influence of the whiskey that "Jack" could not find.

Just as Walker hauled down his flag, the river steamer Charles Morgan hove in sight. She was immediately taken possession of by Commodore Paulding. She was under the command of one of Walker's officers, who went up the Colorado, with Col. Anderson, and had on board about 40 men, women and children, found in Fort Castillo at the time of its capture a day or two before, by Col. Anderson. She also had on board two deserters from Anderson's force, one of whom was under sentence of death and who would undoubtedly have been shot had Walker not been compelled to surrender.

It appears that Anderson, after encamping on the Costa Rica side of the Colorado with the San Juan, dispatched 20 men of his 47 five miles up the river, where they landed on the Costa Rica side on the place of a Costa Rican by the name of Lino Palacio. Here they were joined by Anderson, and the whole force ascended the river to the vicinity of Castillo in the flat-bottomed boats brought out by the Fashion. Landing, they marched on the fort, which was taken by surprise, and with little or no resistance. It is said that two of the garrison were killed. It was under command of Colonel Alvarado, and was nearly deserted, on the 30 persons named being found in it, the main portion having gone up to Fort San Carlos.

On Saturday, the 12th, 98 men were dispatched to Norfork in the Saratoga, and Gen. Walker, with his Secretary, Mr. Tabor, were received on board the Wabash. He says that Anderson can maintain his position at Castillo for three months, if he wishes to. It is said that he took all the steamboats on the river, four in number, which he holds now, with the exception of the Charles Morgan, which Commodore Paulding placed in charge of Consul Corbett at Greytown. The Fulton had orders to return at Greytown to receive Anderson's force when it should come down the river. On the 13th, after the Wabash left Greytown, the United States steamer Susquehanna, Captain Sands, arrived there, where she will remain for the present. The Fulton, under command of Capt. Almy, will guard the mouth of the Colorado.

Commodore Paulding, I have good reason to believe, in taking the extreme measures he did acted entirely on his personal responsibility. This is the honest, energetic conduct will be indorsed by every right-minded, honorable man in the United States, I fully believe. The Administration at Washington has always professed to be opposed to filibusterism, and the Commodore has merely taken it at its word. All honor to the gallant officer, then! He has shown himself worthy of the name he bears, and has proved that the Navy has at least one man in it who does not fear to shoulder any responsibility, who does not fear to lean upon him both by his conscience and ardent patriotism.—N. Y. Times.

BURNING OF LAFAYETTE COLLEGE.—A Canadian gentleman, Mr. Isaac Buchanan, who has just been elected a member of the provincial Parliament, has created a sensation among his constituents by declaring himself in favor of the form of government existing in the United States, and this avowal of republican sentiments did not in the least diminish his popularity. Mr. Buchanan's partiality for republican institutions may be accounted for from the fact of his being a son of the late James Buchanan, of many years British Consul by this city, where the liberal Canadian spent the early part of his life.—N. Y. Times.

ALABAMA.—The telegraph announces that this faithful Democratic State has legalized the bank suspension until the 15th of next November. Also, that South Carolina and Georgia have legalized the suspension of their banks, but to what time is not stated.—Wash Repub.
