PITTSBURGH:
THURSDAY MORNING, JAN. 14, 1858.

REPUBLICAN NOMINATION.

FOR ASSEMBLY,
JOHN SCOTT, of Ross Township.

ALLEGHENY CITY ELECTION.—Our friends in Allegheny City, as we feared, suffered themselves to be distracted with ward fights, and allowed "old grudges" to work sufficiently to elect the locofoco candidate for Mayor. He received a great many Republican votes, and no one pretends to claim it as a locofoco triumph. The Republicans of that city ought to be ashamed to look the figures of this election in the face; for although it is not a democratic victory, it is not a Republican one, and they owed to their brethren elsewhere a different result. We trust it will teach them to forget their little personal animosities, hereafter, and redeem their good name from this reproach.

The fight in that city, our readers elsewhere must be told, was one about men and not about politics. It was a struggle on purely local and personal issues; and although there were party nominations made, democrats were found voting for Republicans and Republicans for democrats in the utmost promiscuousness.

The Republicans carry nearly all of their ward nominations, and the Councils will be almost unanimously Republican. Mr. Davidson, the Republican candidate for Director of the Poor, is elected by 353 majority over Farley, Mr. Buchanan's postmaster in that city.

ACCOMMODATION BILLS.—The English papers continue to discuss the financial crisis, and the late developments respecting "accommodation bills," which have shown a commercial rottenness far exceeding any yet developed on this side of the Atlantic, continue to receive severe comment. The London Times lays all the recent commercial trouble in that quarter at the door of trading in "fictitious or doubtful bills," and states that the fact being proved that these bills are called into existence by the demand of the joint-stock banks for some mode of employing the enormous deposits which by offering the security of the unlimited liability of their shareholders they attract from all quarters, it is easy to see that the question whether a few years will bring a repetition of the evil depends entirely on the contingence of the existing law. The State, says the Times, makes these banks what they are, and then taunts the victims for their folly. The Manchester Guardian also thinks that the time has arrived for imposing some check upon the manufacture of spurious credit by means of accommodation bills. The Guardian thinks, that getting some one to write a worthless name on a bill, betrays as great an intent to defraud, as to put down a fictitious name which is forgery. As an example to estimate the extent of the bubble credit that may be built upon a judiciously laid foundation of accommodation bills, the Guardian cites the case of Messrs. J. & D. MACDONALD of Glasgow, now under investigation in the Court of Bankruptcy in that city. When this firm suspended payment in October last, its accommodation paper had reached the enormous sum of £383,000, exclusive of a similar account of £60,000 between them and another house. At first the bills were drawn upon their agents; but, eventually they managed to get 75 persons—with 55 of whom they had no other business—to accept them. "Some of them," says Mr. D. MACDONALD in his evidence, "we did not know at all." The greater part had ½ per cent. commission for their signatures. With two exceptions, all these acceptors have stopped payment. "Did you make your banker aware that their bills were accommodation bills?" the principal partner is asked. "I did not," was the reply.

The London correspondent of the N. Y. Commercial Advertiser says:

"Meetings of creditors of failed houses continue to take place daily, and in a majority of cases the balance sheets are unsatisfactory and discreditable. The accommodation bill system seems to have been pursued to an extent little dreamed of even by the shrewdest observers, and it has been suggested that the best way to check it for the future would be by prosecuting the drawers and acceptors for a conspiracy to defraud. If two individuals combine to manufacture a bill representing nothing, but purporting to be for "value received," and to pass it to a third party as a genuine document, there could, it is contended, be no doubt in the mind of any jury as to the nature of the transaction. That a few months' imprisonment with hard labor, if it were inflicted even in but a single case by way of example, would do more to check the vile practice than could be effected by any other means, most persons are ready to admit."

REFORMATORY INSTITUTIONS.—A very interesting paper on "Reformatory Institutions at Home and Abroad," appears in the current number of the [illegible] Tales article is a review of the most recent works which have been issued from the French, English and American presses, upon the theory of punishment of crime and upon that system, now growing rapidly into favor, which sets the Reform School and the House of Refuge between the prong and the penitentiary. It is well to agitate the questions springing out of the comparatively new theory which sees in every youth, however vicious his proclivities, a subject for the forming hand of moral and intellectual culture to work upon. The result of the prevalent spirit of inquiry into the subjects involved in the establishment of reformatory institutions, is seen in the facts hereafter named.

The first establishment of the kind in this country was undertaken by the city of Boston in 1826, under the name of the House of Reformation, and its success as exhibited by its annual reports, has induced imitations and improvements upon it throughout and beyond the Northern States, until now they number nearly as follow: In Massachusetts, four; in New York, two; in Pennsylvania, two; and in Maine, Connecticut, Rhode Island, Ohio, Illinois, Maryland, Missouri and Louisiana, one each. The State of Indiana has three in process of erection; and a commission appointed by the New Hampshire Legislature has perfected its designs and commenced the buildings for a similar enterprise at Manchester.

Out of this score of houses, it is somewhat strange that there are but two which provide in the smallest degree for that class which most needs protection and reformation—the girls of the perishing classes in large communities. One of these is that built in the vicinity of this city. As far as our own observation extends, the good influence of this institution has been as strikingly exhibited in the case of unfortunate girls as in that of bad boys. We had much more to write about this matter when we began, but must reserve it for a letter opportunity than is afforded at this moment. The facts which we have in our possession bearing on this matter are not such as should be presented in a hasty manner, or without due consideration.

THE New York Herald, in a review of the late financial crisis, sets down the failures in Pittsburgh at 26, with liabilities amounting to $1,153,000. This aggregate is taken from the books of the Mercantile Agency, and embraces, probably, the failures, large and small, of an entire year. Every body knows that there were not 28 failures in this city during the late crisis, nor anything like it. In fact, it was a matter of general remark that the crisis passed over us without producing any failure of note; and if there have been 26 failures in the city during the year, they have been generally of inconsiderable parties, whose failure attracted no attention. Our business community, we are happy to say, has been remarkably free from failures, and presents a condition of soundness equaled by no other city in the Union.

CORRECTION.—In the tabular statement of Pittsburgh banks, published yesterday, an error occurred respecting the Allegheny Bank. The "amount due Banks" should have been $7,78, instead of $37,602, and the Capital Stock $252,000, instead of $251,500.

All the successful candidates are Republicans, except two or three.

REPUBLICAN MEETING IN ST. LOUIS.—Two conventions were held in St. Louis on the 8th of Jan.; that of the National Democracy, and that of the Free Democracy. The latter was immense in numbers and full of enthusiasm. The other was a slim affair, poorly attended and cowardly in utterance. Of the Republican meeting, the Democrat says:

"The crowd has been variously estimated.—The more moderate of those present, place its number at two thousand. The Rotunda, including stairs and galleries, was jammed full. We are assured the crowd was three times larger than any congregation at an 8th of January meeting in that place for years past."

THE Lecompton Constitution is doomed. Mr. Brown, of Mississippi, yesterday formally abandoned its advocacy in the Senate, and the country will not be troubled with it much longer. Mr. Buchanan and his fire-eaters are broken down. Walker, Douglas and Wise carry the day, and remain the leaders of the National Democratic party. Thanks to them, the people of Kansas are saved from the continuance of a usurpation under whose bloody and outrageous sway they have suffered from the beginning. We say thanks to them, but in reality the thanks are due to the great and formidable Republican party, and not to any number of frightened Democrats, fearful not only of the annihilation of their party, but of their own personal annihilation as well. But for the enormous majorities rolled up for Fremont in most of the Northern States, and the compact and united front and growing power which the Republican organization continues to present, who can suppose that the authors of the Kansas-Nebraska bill, and the apologists for all the outrages of 1855 and 1856 in Kansas, would ever have thus reversed their previous course and lent themselves to the objects, if not to the principles of the Republicans? It is a magnificent tribute to the truth of the doctrines and the wisdom of the policy on which the Republican party is based, that its most vehement enemies are thus forced substantially to do its work.

—We say that the usurpation of the Border Ruffians in Kansas is practically at an end, and we congratulate the country, and above all the gallant Free State men of that Territory, upon the fact. It is true that the Federal troops are still there to sustain the Border-Ruffian rule, and that the disposition of the Federal Executive is as hostile as ever to the Free State cause. But when the Mississippi Senator declines to continue the war on the floor of the Senate, it cannot much longer be kept up on the plains of Kansas. There may still be individual cases of official wrong, and of fanatical Pro-Slavery usurpation, but the system is at an end.

Where stands the Democratic party after this momentous intestine struggle, and after the triumph—for the first time sincerely can fully declare—is, certainly, there is no reason for Republicans to doubt as to the future when the party against which they are contending is thus obliged to choose between destruction from without and exposing itself to destruction from within by the adoption of one great Republican measure, in the erection of Kansas into a Free State.—N. Y. Tribune.

BY THE ARRIVAL of the Africa we have three days later intelligence from Europe. Apart from the details of the news, given elsewhere in our columns, our English files contain several features, a glance at the spirit of which will be found interesting.

As is natural, the English press rejoices over the relief of Lucknow. The Indian Mutiny is virtually ended, the soldiers of Great Britain are covered with glory, and Great Britain's rule will doubtless soon be more firmly established than ever in those possessions which a short time since seemed in some danger of passing from her grasp. Great Britain has reason to be proud of her victorious arms; has reason to shout aloud for joy; for in this warfare her gallant men have contended against fearful odds, and against a savage enemy, whose deception and ferocity have no parallel. From all parts of the civilized world Great Britain will find her rejoicing answered, and laurels awarded to her military prowess. But she raises the shout of joy through blinding tears. Other groups besides those of the brave soldier falling in battle has the cruelty of the Sepoy made graves for the living as well as the dead. Touchingly the London News brings a fearful phase of this Indian Mutiny before the reader. Says the News: "It is understood on unquestionable authority, that there are several ladies now in Calcutta who have undergone such unspeakable degradation that they obstinately refuse to give their names, preferring that their relations in England should suppose them dead." And on these words, the News founds an earnest entreaty to the sufferers to come home. It says that it would change the word "degradation" into "courage," for it is not in the power of man or devil to degrade the innocent. "When we tell them," says the News, "that there is no one here who does not regard them with cordial respect—with a reverence which almost absorbs comparison; when we tell them that; all unknown as they are, we pass sleepless nights on their account; that tears fall and prayers go up for them through the silent night—surely they will not refuse to come home." Can there be a more awful phase of war than this which renders such an appeal necessary?—N. Y. Cour. & Enq.

THE receipts of the Pennsylvania Railroad from freight and passengers for the year 1857, over the same amount of road as they had in 1856, amount in round numbers to five millions, or to speak exactly, to $4,986,015 23, being an increase of $185,946 49 over the year 1856.—This is the best exhibit made by any road in the country, and for a year of commercial panic it is extraordinary. The following is the official statement of the receipts for December and for the year:

Receipts of the road for the month ending December 31	$369,516 20
Same month last year	366,568 98
Decrease	$17,352 78
Receipts from January 1, 1857, to January 1, 1858	$4,986,015 23
Same period last year	4,800,068 74
Increase	$185,946 49

THE Rev. JOHN KNOX, D. D., senior pastor of the Collegiate Dutch Church of New York, died in that city on Friday night from the effects of a fall, a day or two previously, from the rear piazza of his residence, by which a severe injury was inflicted on his head. Dr. K. was 68 years old, had been for many years one of the pastors of the old Collegiate Dutch Church, and was much beloved.

THE private advices by the Africa are very favorable. The accumulation of money in London was great, and a reduction of the Bank rate of interest to 6, if not 5 per cent, was looked for soon. Some further disasters were anticipated in the East India trade and the manufacturing districts, but they would be isolated instances. The mercantile community were slowly but steadily recovering from the storm.

The Killingly Telegraph mentions the resumption of business by the Quinebeug Cotton Mills in that place, and says that several other mills propose to recommence running in a few days.

DOVER, N. H., Feb. 2, 1857.
PROF. O. J. WOOD & Co.—Gents: Within a few days we have received so many orders and calls for Prof. O. J. Wood's Hair Restorative, that to-day we were compelled to send to Boston for a quantity, (the 6 dozen you forwarded all being sold,) while we might order a quantity from you. Every bottle we have sold seems to have produced three or four new customers, and the approbation, and patronage it receives from the most substantial and worthy citizens of our vicinity, fully convince us that it is A MOST VALUABLE PREPARATION.
Send us as soon as may be one gross of $1 size, and one dozen $2 size, and believe us yours very respectfully,

HUNGRY GROVE, St. Charles Co., Mo., Nov. 19, 1856.
PROF. O. J. WOOD—Dear Sir: Some time last summer we were induced to use some of your Hair Restorative, and its effects were so wonderful, we feel it our duty to you and the afflicted, to report it.
Our little son's head for some time had been perfectly covered with sores, and some called it scald head. The hair almost entirely came off in consequence, when a friend, seeing his sufferings, advised us to use your Restorative, we did so with little hope of success, but to our surprise, and the of all our friends, a very few applications removed the dis eases entirely, and a new and luxuriant crop of hair soon started out, and we can now say that our boy, has as healthy a scalp, and as luxuriant a crop of hair as any other child in this country. Before using it I was a man of seventy. My hair has now attained its original color. You can recommend it to the world without the least fear, as my case was one of the worst kind. Yours respectfully,
DANIEL L. MURPHY.
