The Beldred Inquirer has an account of a serious accident on the Six Mile Run branch of the Broadlop Railroad, in that county, on the Coult had the course of the Foster and Samuel Long, both residents of that neighborhood, were employed in loading cars, and after getting one loaded, they got on the front of it, and two others got on behind for the purpose of braining. By some means the brake would not work, and the result was that the car run off; the two men behind threw themselves off but sustained little injury. The boys on the front part of the car could not get off, and directly the car came in collision with others standing on the track at Riddlesburg junction. Long had one leg broken above the knee and Foster one thigh broken in two places, the other suffered a single fracture and his left to thadly crushed.
