Firm.—Yesterday morning, at about 8 o clock, a fire broke out in the "L" of the house on the corner of Short and Front streets in the First Ward, long occupied as a boarding house, but recently turned into a lumber house and planing establishment. This is one of the ofld buildings of Pittsburgh, having been built for many years, and showing in the firmness of its structure, marks of the substantial and careful style of the carlier times.

The fire must have been the work of an incendiary, as there was nothing about or in the house to sause combustion. It caught in the second story of the part above alluded to, and the flames were bursting out of the windows whese discovered. The "L" was guited, but the walls are still standing. The engines played upon the main building, but the free communicated to his roof and burned that. It extended also pretty well about and through the upper floor, but was extinguished without material damage to the main body of the house. Mr. W. F. Richardson and Slack & Co., carpenters and builders, had just commenced their business here. The machinery was not all in, but a large a mount of planed and seasoned lumber W. F. Richardson and Slack & Co., carpenters and builders, had just commenced their business here. The machinery was not all in, but a large amount of planed and seasoned lumber was in the house. Such machinery as was set up, escaped withhold material damage, and so did the lumber. The house itself is owned by Mr. John Renshaw. We learn that the policy on the building as a boarding house had not expired, but we presume this would not cover the premises for its present use. The damage will reach some $800. The engines were early on the ground, and to the active exertions of the firemen is due the salvation of the building, as far as it was saved.

PITTSBURGHT THEATRE—

MISS KIMBERLY respectfully abnounces that baving effected an engagement with the OREATEST LIVING ACTRESS. THE Evening Chronicle says of Henry Werd Here Executed Caronics says of trails, volume to Beecher: "A man of many faults, of decided views, and violent prejudices, he is yet universally acknowledged as a good, a strong, a scalous; and an untiring man. He has for many years battled most manfully against the armies and suversition."

years battled most manfully against the armies of sin, error and superstition."

Is it true that Henry Ward Beecher is a man of many faults? We confess that this is the first time that fact ever came to our knowledge.—
Those who know him best say that he is "a good, a strong, a zealous and an untiring man," but they do not acknowledge him "a man of many faults." The Seats secured for each and every night of MISS CUEMBLAN'S engagement, can be had at the Box Office of Theatre on MONDAY. Theatre on MONDAY.
