THE EGG TRADE.—One of the commercial phenomena developed by the railroad system, in the facility which it affords for rapid transportation, is the Egg Trade between the west and the east. A few years ago the eastern cities had to depend almost entirely for their supply of eggs upon the country adjacent to them: but now they are drawing their supplies from Ohio, and even further west, and such has been the fullness of the receipts that eggs are almost as cheap in New York as in Cincinnati, and so plentiful as to become an accessible and welcome addition to the meagre rations of the poor.

We have been at some pains to hunt through our daily reports of receipts of produce by railroad and river from January 1st to June 1st, and we find that the receipts of eggs in this city, mainly for the east, from the two sources, were 15,791 bbls.; and Mr. Forsythe, the Agent of Adams' Express, has kindly furnished us a table showing that the receipts in the same time, by that company, were 2,980 bbls.—a total of 19,761 bbls., or say 20,000 bbls in round numbers. Estimating each barrel to contain 72 dozen, which is the average, the total would be 1,440,000 dozen; and if any body chooses to magnify the figures by reducing the dozens to units he will find the total to be 17,280,000 eggs. We prefer, however, to stick to the number of packages in which they were contained, and are content with the 20,000 total they present.

The bulk of these shipments was from Ohio, whose matrons appear to give extra attention to the hennery and to be anxious to make all that is possible out of their feathered flocks. It would be worth while to enquire into the sum total of this Ohio egg trade, for we fancy that not more than a tithe of it has come this way. The shipments by other routes were enormous: and our guess that it will foot up 200,000 bbls. will not be found, we think, an exaggerated one. The curious in figures, and those who, (like the tract publishers, who reduce the books they publish to pages, in order to make the showing large) are fond of large totals, can multiply this by 72 and that by 12 and so ascertain to a nicety the number of eggs swallowed by our eastern friends.

The rapid developement of this trade is attributed, and with much propriety, to the railroad system of transportation: but we have a theory of our own on this subject, to wit, that if it had not been for the hard times the trade would not have been half so large as it is. The paper makers say that when times are good and money plenty, rags grow scarce, and that when times grow hard the supply increases. Why? Because in flush times money is so plenty that housewives lose somewhat of their prudent thrift and the rags are not saved but are rather thrown out of the way as trifles not worth looking after; but when the pinching time comes all such neglected sources of revenue are remembered, the rag heap is overhauled and the paper mills find an improved supply of the raw material. It is the same with regard to the matter we have more especially in hand. The hens and the cows are the peculiar resources of the farmer's wife. On them she depends for her pin money. When, however, speculation is rife, money abundant and fortunes made in a day, the farmer's wife gets her head as high as her husband's, and the cows and the hens are neglected equally with the rag heap, and it is only when such a reverse as that of last year, which reached into every farm-house of the land, overtakes us, that the true value of these apparently humble resources is realized. We are not extravagant when we say that the farmer's wives of Ohio have this year realized a million of dollars from the sale of eggs alone, and that is no mean item in helping a depressed people out of a drag.

This is not one of the current subjects of editorial disquisition, but it suggests a many reflections which our farming readers may profit by that we feel bound to comment it to their special attention.

THE LATE DR. TYNG AND THE SLAVERY QUESTION.—The apologists for the institution of Slavery, whether in the pulpit or in the halls of Congress, seize upon every occasion to attempt to strengthen their cause by giving it a moral and religious character. They do not scruple to resort to falsehood when their purpose in that manner can be served. Last Sabbath Dr. Cummins, in a sermon which he delivered on the death of the late Dr. Tyng, in the city of Washington, took occasion to allude to the course of the deceased on the Slavery question, at the time the rupture occurred in his church in Philadelphia. The reverend gentleman declared that Dr. Tyng subsequently regarded this occurrence with regret, pronouncing it the "great error of his life—one which he never repeated and always afterwards repented." The Hon. John P. Hale was present when this discourse was delivered—and believing that the assertion, which we have just quoted, was a falsehood, he immediately dispatched a note of enquiry to the father of the late Dudley A. Tyng, and asked to be enlightened as to his distinguished son's views in relation to the matter. To this note he received the following reply, which refutes the statement most completely, and at the same time places the pro-slavery person in a very unpleasant position for one who professes to be a truth-loving christian. An institution that requires such sacrifices on the part of its friends must indeed be entirely destitute of merit, and unworthy of support:

NEW YORK, May 26, 1856.—Dear Sir: I am under great obligations to you for the kindness of your note. There is not the slightest foundation in truth for the statement that my son, in any way or shape, ever retracted, qualified or designed to do so, his solemn and well considered protest against the oppression of slavery. His first sermon was preached in June, 1856. Another, on the same subject, and on the same ground of consideration, in July, 1857. I send by mail a copy of the "statement," published by his own congregation.

The last page will show you his first action on this subject, in December, 1856. So far as his first sermon was concerned, I should extremely disapprove of any attempt to qualify his action on this subject by any professed friends to him. I have now in press a sermon of Dr. Cheever, of this city, on his character under this special aspect, which I am publishing with my own sanction, in order to do what seems to me my duty in regard to the important subject.

Dr. Bailey has written to me upon the same discourse of Dr. Cummins. May I ask you to communicate the substance of this note to him, and one of the pamphlets which I forward. When Dr. Cheever's sermon is out I will take the liberty to forward a copy of that to you. My excessive pressure of duty at this moment leads me to take this liberty with yourself. I trust you will have the kindness to excuse it.

I am, with regard, your friend and servant,
STEPHEN H. TYNG.

Hon. John P. Hale, U. S. Senate.

The note referred to by the father is conclusive. It is as follows:—

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 8, 1856.—Dear Sir: I was so much interested in your proposition to deposit a copy of my sermon on "Our Country's Trouble" in the archives of the Vestry, that I have made several efforts to recover the original manuscript from the hands of the printer. Having to-day succeeded, I take great pleasure in sending it to you just as it was delivered in the pulpit of the Epiphany, on the 29th of June last. I have just read it over, after six months' interval, and find no word which I would retract, or feel more than ever thankful for having been enabled to discharge so solemn a duty. I doubt not that in future years it will be regarded with somewhat of the interest which now attaches to the first attempts at the suppression of the slave trade. Very respectfully and truly,

Dr. Casper Morris, DUDLEY A. TYNG.

Gen. Moorhead.

The letter below, from Gen. MOORHEAD, is full, frank and explicit in all respects. We anticipated, as we had a right to, that such would be his answer, and it will be seen that he has fully justified the opinions we expressed. We trust that this letter, as most surely it should, will remove all doubts from the public mind as to his political position, and that the Republicans of the district will unite with us in giving a hearty and cordial support to Gen. MOORHEAD. We have entire confidence in him and in his fidelity to his pledges, and take pleasure in putting his name at the head of our columns:

MONONGAHELA NAVIGATION,
Lock No. 4, June 4th, 1856.

Messrs. Editors—It has been a well settled rule of my life to pay no attention to charges or insinuations made against me by anonymous writers. The article in your paper of this morning, however, on the subject of "The Congressional Nomination," emanating as it does from the organ of the Republican party, and couched in terms of fairness and friendship, appears to me to be entitled to a frank answer.

I will therefore with pleasure briefly state my political position. It is well known that I was a member of the Democratic party, and perhaps quite as well known that during my adherence to that party I was always and consistently the advocate of a protective tariff; my first deviation from the strict party lines was when that party abandoned the policy of protection to American labor by the passage of the tariff of 1846. At a later period the repeal of the "Missouri Compromise" and the adoption of the Kansas-Nebraska act, as the settled policy of the democratic party, was a yielding to the aggressions of the South, and so entirely in opposition to the principles and convictions of my life, that I openly abandoned that party, and have not acted with it since. My most cherished political principles are, and ever have been, "protection to AMERICAN labor," and "no extension of Slavery into FREE soil," and their maintenance has carried me into the Republican party. That party is now about two years old: its formation was hailed with joy; its fundamental principles are the principles of my heart and have directed the actions of my life. I stand fairly and squarely upon the platform adopted in Philadelphia in 1856; myself and my political fortunes are identified with it; my best exertions will be used, as they have been since its formation, in the maintenance of its principles and honor.

There was a dissolution of the old parties, each of the elements of which the Republican party was formed, a large number of democrats, including myself, believing our principles had been surrendered to the direction of the South, found a congenial home in the Republican party, whilst a very considerable portion of the old Whig party, who were pro-slavery, united their fortunes with the Democratic party, and many of them are now reaping their reward, the avowed and acknowledged leader being at this time Mr. Buchanan's Minister to China.

I will only add that I thank the members of the Republican Convention for the honor they have conferred upon me by giving me the nomination for Congress. I will maintain the principles and integrity of the party as laid down in the platform of 1856, and reiterated in the resolutions adopted by them, and should I ever occupy a seat in Congress my untiring exertions will be used to resist any and all such outrages as that perpetrated by the present Congress, in forcing upon the unwilling people of KANSAS the LECOMPTON CONSTITUTION, which they most cordially despise.

Respectfully yours,
J. K. MOORHEAD.

THE Post is trying to raise the ghost of "Sam" to save the falling fortunes of its party. It is daily talking about Know-Nothingism, and all that, in the vain hope that somebody will get scared and the democracy profit by it. After supporting the ticket it did last year, which was made up in part of Know Nothings, we should imagine it might have modesty enough to keep quiet on that subject. But "Sam" is the great reliance of such papers as the Post, and the more desperate the chances of its party grow the louder it will call on "Sam." In the last hour of his distress, when defeat hung over him like a pall, poor Saul resorted to the cave of the witch of Endor for a similar purpose: and what did he make by it?

☞ A letter from Hon. Thomas Williams, covering a letter of his addressed to two members of the late Convention, was received in good time, but is unavoidably crowded out. It will appear on Monday.

OUR telegraphic correspondent sent us word yesterday, from Washington that the Vice-President had ordered the refectory attached to the Senate to be closed, on account of the obvious injury to the progress of legislation from it, added to the fact that it creates personal difficulties. The personal difficulties which were the immediate stimulant to this precautionary measure were, we suppose, those that occurred the day before between Slidell and Douglas, and Green and Gwin. Douglas was in the act of using Slidell undertook to interrupt and annoy him by forced coughs and loud laughter. Douglas objected to that style of meeting what he had to say, but if Slidell had anything to say in the way of argument he should be happy to hear it. Slidell declared—and we must confess, whether on the ground of his general incapacity or of his particular state at the moment, not entirely without reason—that he did not feel in the humor for argument was insulting and impertinent, adding an intimation that though he could not argue he was ready to fight, either there or elsewhere.

In the course of the same session, while Green of Missouri was speaking in favor of Kansas, he expressed a natural and excusable impatience, by calling out "question." Green declared that he would not submit to "such treatment, and not being in a state to distinguish much between one Senator and another, undertook to call Fry to account for the interruption, creating such a disturbance that the Senate, by way of starting off a fight, had to adjourn. It is all very well in the Vice-President to take measures to keep Slidell and Green sober, but it will require something more than that to make a gentleman of either of them.—N. Y. Trib.

CONGRESSIONAL NOMINATIONS.—The Republican Convention of Allegheny county, has nominated Gen. Jas. K. Moorhead for Congress, to succeed the Hon. Dan'l Ritchie. Gen. Moorhead is one of the leading men in all enterprises connected with the development of Western Pennsylvania, is a man of first rate practical talent, and will make a most faithful representative of the people of Pittsburg. The Republicans of Allegheny have exhibited a commendable sagacity in putting in the field so good a candidate against the Lecompton Democracy. Robert McKnight, Esq., has been nominated by the same party, in the 22d district, subject to the approval of Butler county. He is a lawyer of talent, and will make a capital candidate, should the Conferees unite upon him.—Harrisburg Tel.

A GOOD SUGGESTION.—In view of the controversy which has arisen in Burlington, Vermont, concerning the proper place for the monument to Ethan Allen, ordered by the legislature, a Vermont correspondent suggests that it should be erected on the ruins of the old Fort at Ticonderoga. Tne difficulty at Burlington is that the remains of the old hero cannot be found. There would be no difficulty in finding the spot where he demanded the surrender of the British fort "in the name of the Great Jehovah and the Continental Congress." The Legislature of New York would doubtless bear part of the expense, and no finer spot could be found for such a monument than the headland which projects into Lake Champlain at old Ti.

We have mentioned that the proposition submitted a few days since to call a constitutional convention in Maryland, was defeated—Baltimore City voting for, and the country districts against the proposed Convention. The Baltimore American attributes the defeat of the measure to the fact that the "American" party in the State "designed altering the basis of representation to pure white one, cutting off the blacks altogether; whereby the city would have gained and the country districts lost" political power.

On the same principle that the present would be a good time to buy Cuba, and pay two hundred millions of dollars for it, the expenses of the Government having been only fifty millions above its income this year, this would be a good time to go to war with the greatest naval power of the globe. There are about eight hundred soldiers guarding the coast defenses, along our Atlantic and Mexican gulf seaboard, the rest of the army being on the prairies and in the mountains some thousands of miles from the sea shore.—Cin. Com.

THE LATE STORMS.—There was a terrible hail storm at Frederick, Knox county, Saturday evening. Some of the ice globes measured six inches in circumference. Two thousand panes of window glass were broken in the village. Monday, at Mansfield, the storm was very severe. Houses were unroofed, a few small ones lifted from their foundations, and the rain came down in perfect floods.—Cin. Com.

MORE DEMOCRATIC DIVISIONS.—We are not unanimous upon the commandment, "Thou shalt not steal."—Washington Union.

This is the last point on which we looked for disagreement in the Democratic ranks. We are glad to notice such evidence that there is a little virtue left, even among the supporters of the Administration.—Cin. Gazette.

IN the Board of Education, last evening, a vigorous attempt was made to secure the passage of a resolution requiring the reading of the Bible in the public schools; but, by a dexterous Parliamentary dodge, a resolution merely recommending the reading was substituted and passed.—N. Y. Trib.

INCIDENT IN THE DEFENSE OF LUCKNOW.—A singular incident startled the garrison and the people: "Three prisoners were brought in, and were undergoing a summary trial by drum-head Court-Martial, when a round shot struck and killed the trio."—A Lady's Diary of the Seige.

We regret to learn by the Hartford (Conn.) papers of the death of Edward S. Bartholomew, the American sculptor, who died in Naples, of an ulcerated sore throat, on the evening of the first of May.

The Presbyterian General Assembly.

NEW SCHOOL—EIGHTH DAY.

The narrative on the state of religion in the Churches—a document of some twenty pages—was read by Rev. George C. Lucas from the Committee on the Narrative.

Rev. P. H. Fowler D. D. of Utica, N. Y. was appointed to preach the Annual sermon on Home Missions, at the next General Assembly.

The annual day of fasting and prayer was fixed for the first Monday in January.

Rev. Dr. Gridley, of Special Committee on the preparation of a "Summary of Doctrine, &c.," reported, urging the inability of the Committee to comply with the demand made upon them within the limits of the present session, and asking an extension of the period to the next session of the Assembly. Adopted.

The subject of Church Extension was then taken up in connection with the appointment of a Committee of Conference with the Home Missionary Society. Rev. George P. Tindall moved that this Committee be made permanent.

The unfinished business of the Evening Session of yesterday was taken up, viz: the matter of Church extension, and the Home Missionary Society.

It was moved that the report of the Permanent Committee on Church Extension be adopted. Carried.

The unfinished business of the morning session was resumed, viz.: the subject of the Committee of Conference with the Home Missionary Society—the motion being to make the Committee a permanent one.

The vote was taken, and decided in the affirmative.

ANTI-LECOMPTON.—The exhilarating address of Mr. Davis, the new proprietor and editor of the Doylestown Democrat, is decided and distinct in its repudiation of the Lecompton swindle as a test of Democracy. This frank and honest acknowledgment of the faults of the Administration is something so new to the paper in question, that it was received by the party with some astonishment, as they were not prepared for so sudden a revolution.

On the 14th of the present month, it will be fifty years since Lieut. General Winfield Scott, entered the United States Army, and the New York "Scott Life Guard" intend celebrating the event.

DIED—On Thursday afternoon, June 5d, Mrs. AGNES MOUNTAIN, widow of the late James Mountain, attorney at law, in the 74th year of her age.

The friends and relatives of the family are invited to attend the funeral, which will take place from the residence of her son-in-law, James B. Morgan, Esq., 114 Liberty st., THIS (Saturday) MORNING, at 10 o'clock.

☞ "Who has not heard of Boerhave's Holland Bitters!"—Simple in its composition, pleasant to the taste, and truly wonderful in its effect, its popularity cannot be wondered at. To invalids just recovering strength it is invaluable exercising that soothing influence over the nervous system, and imparting that healthful tone to the stomach, so longed for by the convalescent.—Sunday Inspector.

CAUTION.—Be careful to ask for Boerhave's Holland Bitters. The great popularity of this medicine has induced many imitations, which the public should guard against purchasing.

AN ACT TO ESTABLISH HIGH AND LOW WATER LINES in the Allegheny, Monongahela and Ohio rivers, at the mouth of Pittsburgh, in the county of Allegheny: Such lines to be established, ascertained and marked as hereinafter directed, and the respective rights of riparian owners, as well as the rights of the public, to be determined by the lines so established.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, That the Board of Canal Commissioners of Allegheny be and is hereby authorized and required, at any time before the first day of June, A. D. 1857, to cause to be established and permanently marked the high water lines, as the same shall be ascertained and determined by the provisions of this act, in the Allegheny, Monongahela and Ohio rivers, at the mouth of Pittsburgh, in the county of Allegheny, and the respective rights of riparian owners, as well as the rights of the public, to be determined by the lines so established, and the respective rights and privileges to the owners and tenants of property adjoining said rivers.

SECTION 2. Be it further enacted, That the said Board of Canal Commissioners of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania shall, in general assembly met, and not before the first Monday in January of the same, That the Board of Canal Commissioners of Allegheny be and is hereby authorized and required, at any time before the first day of June, A. D. 1857, to cause to be established and permanently marked the high water lines, as the same shall be ascertained and determined by the provisions of this act, in the Allegheny, Monongahela and Ohio rivers, at the mouth of Pittsburgh, in the county of Allegheny, and the respective rights of riparian owners, as well as the rights of the public, to be determined by the lines so established, and the respective rights and privileges to the owners and tenants of property adjoining said rivers.

SECTION 3. Be it further enacted, That the said Board of Canal Commissioners, in establishing the high water lines, as aforesaid, shall have regard to the ordinary high water mark, as the same is indicated by the character of the shore, the soil, the natural vegetation, the absence of wharves, docks, and other artificial marks, and the ordinary course of navigation, and shall cause to be established and permanently marked, at the mouth of each of the streams above named, such high water lines as they shall determine to be the true boundaries of the land, and the limits of the rights of riparian owners, as well as the rights of the public, to be determined by the lines so established, and the respective rights and privileges to the owners and tenants of property adjoining said streams.

SECTION 4. That the said Commissioners may employ such assistants as they may deem necessary to carry into effect the provisions of this act, and shall be entitled to receive for their services, and the services of their assistants, such compensation as may be agreed upon between them and the Canal Commissioners, which compensation, together with the expenses incurred in carrying into effect the provisions of this act, shall be paid out of the treasury of said Allegheny county.

SEC. 5. That all or any acts of assembly that conflict herewith, either in whole or in part, be and the same are hereby repealed.
O. NELSON SMITH,
Speaker of the House of Representatives.
WILLIAM H. WELCH,
Speaker of the Senate.
APPROVED—The eighteenth day of April, Anno Domini one thousand eight hundred and fifty-eight.
WILLIAM BIGLER.
