Madison, and other early statesmen, was branded as "sectionalism." The South was held up as the Union, and a refusal to subscribe to its peculiar views was regarded as treasonable. That many timid persons were induced to support Buchanan by this mode of electioneering, we do not entertain a doubt. While all these proceedings were going on in the North, however, a different course of tactics was adopted in the South. There Southern in-

Beyond his realms, Southern men acknowledge no country, on behalf of which they feel bound to expend any of their patrictism. Their expressions of hostility to sectionalism are all designed for Northern consumption. At home, they do not conceal their exclusive devotion to their own section, and scruple not to declare that the day that the democratic party quits their service, and becomes in reality "National," will witness the entire with drawal of its Southern adherents from its support. It is time that these truths should be generally known in the free States, for when they are, we shall present the spectacle of the whole four government—a fearless and patrictio body of freemen who are resolved, at Jeast, to prevent the extension of human slavery, and to destroy its influence in the councils of the nation.

Wil. L. Yanor is a leading man in the South,—recognized as such on all cocasions. Berushleams in Maire.—Our exchanges from that far Eastern State bring us the most gratifying intelligence of our prospects in that former Democratic strong-hold. Last week the search of the Convention for the nomination of Governor was held at Augusta. There were over 600-delegates present, and yet Lot M. Morrill, present Governor, was renominated by acclamation, and nine cheers to top off with.

The success of our party in Maine is certain. Twenty thousand majority-is a low figure. Yet, although a nomination is thus equivalent to an election, there is no dissenting voice in our party in the State. Everywhere in the Congressional districts, as far as we can learn, it is the same. What a lesson is here! Are not our principles sarred enough to demand the concurrence of every true Republican every where in every numbration fairly made, where candidates are in the concurrence of the Convertion of fairly made, where candidates are in the concurrence of the Convertion of fairly made, where candidates are in the concurrence of the co

The first duty of every true believer in our faith and in the Declaration of Independence, is to see every thing in the shape of sham-democracy whipt out of life. Let the government be redeemed from the Harpies that devour and defile; let the party that has proved false to every pledge it ever made, be driven from positions of power which it uses only for purposes of oppression and plunder; let our drooping, dying industry be revised by the ennotment of judicious laws in favor of home interests. What nobler mission was ever given to any party than this? Shall we close our eyes to it and busied in Fitte sense less founds, leave the arch-enemy frequency. every true Republican every where in every tember.

A ROFAL GRANDMOTHER.—Queen Victoria, it is binted, will appear in the venerable character of grandmother in the course of a few months, when a pledge of the tores of Prince Frederick William and his wife will be presented to the loyal people of Presia. This title has not been a common one in the royal family of England for many years, there having been but two grandmothers in that family from the death of Queen Caroline, wife of George II, in 1737, down to the birth of Queen Victoria's first child.
