The Buffale Commercial Advertiser thus alludes to the Railroad Convention held in that city:—

"Roads, the managers seem" to think, are built for competition, not money-making. So notoriously is this that few sensible shippers trust to the tariff agreed upon. Each man having and the road and makes hie bargain, without any reference to to the stablished rates. Under all the solomn agreements made between the different roads, it is well known that the rates of freight vary from day to day, according to circumstances. In the proceedings of the convertion yesterday, Mr. Drullard, of the New York and Eric, said that perhaps some variations from the established rates had been made, but that in all cases a heavy discoout had been made, but that in all cases a heavy discoout had been made, but that in all cases a heavy discoout had been made, but that in his in keeping up the rates of tariff, but that it had been impossible to keep any tariff of rates in force; that away out in Southern Ohio, and in other localities, he had found orrealars and other manifestations distributed, reducing the freight, and placing the whole eastern railroads at the mercy of the New York Contral."

Winness—Oh, no: I wish you to to tell me whether the attack was at all a preconcerted of Sarr.

Winness—No sir, it was not a free concert of Jury Winness.—At the last section of committee, to consist of himself, to revise the Jury House, and meet such four cert and the part of the Sarrations from the stabilished rates had been made, but that in his in keeping up the rates of tariff, but that it has been impossible to keep any tariff of rates in force; that away out in Southern Ohio, and in other localities, he had found orrealars and other manifestations distributed, reducing the freight, and placing the whole eastern railroads at the mercy of the New York Gentral."
