LONDON, Oct. 16.—The Portuguese question seems likely to be soon settled. A day or two back, however, its aspect was sufficiently disagreeable to create a little heaviness in the funds. The facts briefly stated seem to be as follows, and read by the previous light of the Regina Coeli affair, which occurred only a few months back, of the coast of Liberia, they are calculated to excite very serious suspicions. A French barque named the Charles-Georges, was overhauled and seized as a slaver, close to the island of Quitanzonba, near the Portuguese settlement of Mozambique, by a Portuguese cruiser. Quitanzonba, is an interdicted port, because the slave trade has been carried on in it. The barque had 110 negroes on board, whom the officers declared to be free emigrants, intended for the island of Re-union, but who themselves said they had been taken from Mozambique against their will. The captain was not able to produce any documents, either as evidence of a free contract having been made with the negroes, or of his having had any permission from the Portuguese authorities to visit the prohibited station at which he was found. All that he could show was a permit from one of the sheiks of the coast, which was not recognized as function whatever, and who might even himself have been the seller of the negroes. No force was used by the Portuguese cruiser, nor was any protest put in by the French captain.

As emigration agent or delegate of the French government was on board, but this personage does not appear to have insisted that his presence gave any immunity to the vessel. The judicious investigation at Mozambique was carried on with great consideration and forbearance, and the only appeal put forward against its decision was to the Court of Cassation at Lisbon. To Lisbon the vessel was accordingly sent, but meanwhile the details had reached Count Walewski, the French Minister for Foreign Affairs, who strongly resisted the seizure. Two ships of war were dispatched to demand not only the surrender of the vessel but a full money indemnity for all the loss incurred. If this was refused, the French legation were forthwith to quit Lisbon, and such further action as might be necessary was immediately to follow The ground for this high tone was that the presence of the French delegate on board the vessel was a sufficient warrant for the honesty of her operations and rendered her sacred from question or invasion. The Portuguese government were not prepared to admit this doctrine as a matter of course, but were willing to abide by any disinterested judgment. They asked that the matter might be referred to arbitration. Count Walewski repeatedly and peremptorily refused. Nothing but instant surrender would satisfy him. Meanwhile, however, the history of the affair began to spread through Europe, without bringing credit to the French name, and conditional arbitration has now said, is demanded. The ships of war are to withdraw. The Portuguese are to give up the vessel "voluntarily," to save their honour, and the demand for indemnity, with any other points, is to be reserved for the impartial meditation of a friendly power.

During these proceedings the French press circulated daily insinuations that England was counselling Portugal to resistance. A much more rational inference would be that Spain, the ever jealousy and hatred of Portugal is intense, and the ardor avidity for the slave trade is unquenched, has given powerful influence she possesses at the Tuileries to promote the asperity with which that country has been treated.

The India details by the telegram received this morning still show the inextricable fanaticism of the Sepoys, and the hopelessness of its character. At Mooltan, in the Punjaub, two native Bengal regiments, who had been long disarmed, broke out into insurrection on the 13th of August and attempted to seize the guns. They failed and were nearly annihilated, 400 having been killed at once, while the remainder fled, actively pursued by the police and cavalry. Near Allahabad a body of plunderers have been attacked and routed, 200 having been slain, with their leader Punjab Singh. In Rohilcund another rebel force has been defeated, with a loss of 3 guns and their camp equipage, and in Rajpootana the mutineers under Tantia Topee after having robbed and defeated a faithful Rajah and secured a large amount of treasure and 10 guns, have been in turn fallen in with by the British and dispersed in all directions, with a loss of thirty guns.

Four emissaries of Nana Sahib, endeavoring to tamper with a native Bombay regiment, who gave information to their officers, were forthwith executed. The Nana himself was reported to be in Oude, North of the Ganges.

The monthly return of the Bank of France published this morning, shows a reaction in the bullion movement, a diminution having occured of nearly $9,000,000. This is partly attributed to a drain to Vienna, in consequence of the preparation of the Austrian Government for an entire resumption of specie payments on the 1st of January. The total of specie now held by the Bank of France amounts to $110,000,000.

The accounts from Australia state the gold production this year up to the middle of August to have been equal to $28,100,000 against $28,800,000 in the corresponding period of 1857.

VARIOUS HINTS.—Weeds.—It is very important to get rid of the seeds of all weeds which may have fallen the present season. All land intended for hoed crops next year, should therefore be harrowed, after every rain, to start the weeds. Most of them may in this way be destroyed, if done before ploughing.
