THE VINTAGE IN FRANCE.—Mr. Walsh writes from Paris, under date of the 7th inst:

"It would be hazardous for my credit to report to you the accounts of the size and weight of particular bunches of grapes. In the southwest the new white wine has been sold at a sous the quart; in the vicinity of Narbonne, an empty cask of two hundred and twenty-five quarts is sold at fifteen francs; when filled at Cette, the well known southern export of southern wines, the cask of one hundred quarts in good quality fetches only thirty-five francs. The proprietors of the vineyards find great difficulty in procuring casks enough for their harvest. The average, of the vintage is estimated at a third beyond any since 1793: quality corresponds. The golden hills—Burgundy everywhere. We have similar advices from the Rhine. The consequence delights the population of all the borders, which, by the calculation of one of the most trustworthy of their statisticians, can yield on the average two millions hectolaires of wine, (the hectolaire exceeds a hundred quarts,) to be valued at seventy or eighty millions of francs; in trade the sum becomes much larger. An eminent wine merchant of Cologne expects a yield this year of eight hundred thousand litres, comprising, besides the common sorts, a very considerable quality and variety of the best growths. The profits for Rhenish Prussia alone, to which he refers, may amount to eighty millions, by reason of the enormous prices usually obtained for the wines of royal reputation."

EDWARD MCPHERSON, Esq.—Among the many gratifying results of the late election in this State, none are more gratifying than the success of Edward McPherson, Esq., who has been elected to Congress in the Seventeenth District, that district, Wilson Reilly, the Administration candidate, had a majority of 500, two years ago Now Mr. McPherson carries it by 267 majority, against this same Wilson Reilly, who was zealously aided by his friends, and the whole power and patronage of the government. The people of the State are to be congratulated upon securing the services of such a man as Mr. McPherson. He has long known him as a gentleman of fine talents and attainments, perfect purity and uprightness, thorough knowledge of the wants of Pennsylvania, and entire devotion to her interests. His articles on the sale of the State Canals, published in our columns, did more than anything else to open the eyes of the people to the abuses of the State system of managing them, and hastened the accomplishment of the sale, which is nowhere regretted except among Democratic politicians. He has, in many other ways, exhibited his knowledge of the State and what she requires, and it is a matter for real rejoicing, that such a man should be sent to Congress. We predict that Mr. McPherson will make one of the best, most faithful, most useful, and most respected representatives that Pennsylvania has ever sent to Washington. —Phil. Bull.

THE dealers in jewelry at Moscow are thus described by Bayard Taylor:

In this bazaar you are struck by the smooth sallow faces of the money-changers, and a certain mixture of weakness and cunning in their expression. You are not surprised when you learn that they are all eunuchs. I have endeavored, but in vain, to discover the cause of this singular fact. The money-changers so say the people, have for centuries past constituted a peculiar class, or guild. They are very rich, naturally clannish on account of the mutilation, and accept no new member into their body who has not undergone a like preparation. As voluntary converts to such a test must be very scarce, they would in time become extinct if they did not themselves, at a heavy cost, the sons of poor parents, who are qualified at an age when they can neither understand nor resist their fate. The Government has prohibited this practice under very severe penalties, and the vile brotherhood will probably soon cease to exist.

CHAMPAGNE has been the ruin of the King of Prussia. When he first ascended the throne he was an elegant, accomplished gentleman. His amiability, his high and moral character, and his acquirements, were well known throughout Europe, and in Prussia he was as popular as a monarch could be. It has never been the impression, however, that he was "strong" in political and state matters. The constitution which he submitted to his convoked states-general was not a brilliant or statesman like effort, and the noisy applause he suggested an idea or two for his reflection which so troubled his noddle that he took to drinking "Veuve Cliequot" champagne for solace; and he found so much comfort in that exhilerating liquor that he drank himself into an idiotic state. The last intelligence from Prussia announces the appointment of the Prince of Russia as regent, so that the King may henceforth "keep it up" until as late as he pleases, with never a care for to-morrow, his occupation now being only to "guzzle."

DECADENCE OF THE RED RIVER AND ASSINBOIN SETTLEMENT.—Professor Hind, who recently explored a portion of the British Northwestern territory, states that the European and Canadian elements have been gradually diminishing for years, and that the seven thousand half-breeds now inhabiting Pembina and the valley of the Red and Assinboin rivers, are relapsing into the habits and tastes of the aborigines.—The present state of society and the condition of the people in the settlements are, in his opinion, far from being either pleasant or encouraging. The Red River Settlement was founded forty years ago. It only needs a few hundred vankees to take complete possession of those beautiful valleys and they will not be long wanting.

THE London Critic thus defines Mr. Longfellow's literary status in England:

"He has long been the poet of our average young people, cultivated, though not in the highest degree, for whom Tennyson is too enigmatic, and the 'spasmodists' too irregular, turbulent, and mystical. He owes his success to his grace, polish, and melody; to his ready intelligibility; to the innocent purity of his sentiment; to his skill in illustrating human action and passion to the introduction of natural imagery; and to his embodiment of a vague religious and ethical feeling in a secular and poetic phraseology wedded to harmonious numbers."

MR. WALSH, in one of his late letters to the Journal of Commerce says: "We may suppose the Moslem pilgrimages to Mecca and Medinato be a prodigious physical as well as moral assistance. Of the two hundred thousand devotees of the present year
