NEW NAIL PLATE FEEDER.—Sherwood Patent Self-Acting Nail Plate Feeder for Nail Machinery. It improves and does away with the necessity of a man or boy to attend each machine. One hand can attend four machines, and each machine will cut more nails with this feeder attached than can be done by three fed by hand, saving three hands out of four, making the nails more perfect, as it is fed to a screw, and can be run at a greater speed. It is very simple and not liable to get out of order, and can be applied to any machine now in use at comparatively a small cost. It is warranted to work perfect or no pay. A machine with this feeder attached can be seen in operation at the Fair of the American Institute, Crystal Palace, New York. Rights and feeders for sale by the proprietor, D. W. SHERLEY, No. 137, Nassau St., New York.

THE PRESIDENT'S IDEAS OF ECONOMY.—Mr. Buchanan, in his message, admits that the revenue of the country is wholly inadequate to the expenditures of the country upon their present scale. The public debt on the 1st of July, in the present year was $54,310,772 00, to which sum that of $10,000,000, the remaining half of the loan authorized on the 14th of June, is to be added, making the total public debt within a few dollars of sixty-five millions. This State of things the President observes, first, that to resort to loans to meet the ordinary expenses of government would be a ruinous policy second, that the revenue must be increased by an amendment of the tariff in some particulars; and third, that a rigid economy must be practiced. On this latter point he dwells with some minuteness. The objects of expenditure should be reduced in number and what appropriations are necessary should be strictly scrutinized. He has instructed the Departments to cut down their estimates, and promises to aid Congress to do this to even a greater extent.

This reads well. But now let us see how the President practices what he recommends in Congress, bearing in mind that the public debt is already sixty-five millions of dollars, and the public revenue is not adequate to the public expenditures even of the most ordinary character. Under these circumstances he accompanies his homily on economy with the following recommendations, and these in addition to the ordinary appropriation bills:

1. The purchase of Cuba.
2. Payment to Spain for the Amistad negroes
3. Establishment of an indefinite number of military posts in Sonora and Chihuahua, and the support of an army to occupy them.
4. The employment of the army and navy to open and secure the Nicaragua transit route.
5. The employment of the army and navy for the same purpose with reference to the Panama route.
6. The employment of the army and navy for the same purpose, with respect to the Tehuantepec route.
7. A resort to war with Costa Rica and Nicaragua, if our demands are not complied with at an early day.
8. The construction of more war steamers.
9. The construction by government and of the great Pacific railroad.
10. Some undefined loans to the District of Columbia.

The President is quite anxious that a rigid economy should be exercised, and intimates to his Secretaries that they must cut down their estimates as closely as possible—they must not ask anything from Congress beyond the bare appropriations for their respective departments—while he himself launches out into half a score pet projects of inexcusable cost, for not more than one of which there is either reason or necessity. Suppose all or half of the President's recommendations are complied with, can the expenditures of the country be possibly kept within the revenue? If not, what will be the amount of the public debt at the end of two years hence?—N. Y. Com Adv.

More Assassination.—In the course of the last of his Autocrat papers, says:

"Self-appreciation is a slow and gradual process. As a child thinks he can do everything. I remember when I thought I could lift a house if I would only try hard enough. So I began with the hind wheel of a heavy old family-coach built like that in which my Lady Bountiful carried little King Pippin, if you happen to remember the illustrious object of that story. I lifted with all my might, and the plaguey thing pulled down with all its might. The plaguey heat. After that, my ideas of the difference between my will and my muscular force were more accurately defined. Then came the illusion, that I could, of course, "lick" "anyone out" or "polish off" various small boys who had been or might be obnoxious to me. The event of the different "meetings" to which this hypothesis led, not uniformly confirming it, another limitation of my possibilities was the consequence. In this way I groped along into a knowledge of my physical relations to the organic and inorganic universe. A man must be very stupid indeed, if by the time he is fully ripened, he does not know, tolerably well what his physical powers are. His weight, his height, his general development, his constitutional forces, his good or ill health, he has had time to find out; and he is a fool if he does not carry a reasonable consciousness of these conditions with him always. It is a little harder with the mind; but some qualities are generally sufficiently early enough by their owners. Thus, a man may be trusted when he says he has a good or bad memory. Not so of his opinion of his own judgment or imagination. It is only by a very slow process that he finds out now much or how little of these qualities he possesses. But it is one of the blessed privileges of growing older, that we come to have a more clear sense of what we can do and what we cannot, and settle down to our work quietly, knowing what our tools are and what we have to do with them."

SENATOR DOUGLAS stopped at Memphis on his way to New Orleans, long enough to make a speech, in which he adheres to his Freeport doctrines. He concedes the right of the slaveholder to take his property into the Territory, in accordance with the decision of the Supreme Court, but he maintains that when there, he will be dependent wholly on the action of the Territorial Legislature for its protection. This is the point in his creed to which the ultraists of the South have taken most exception. Some of them propose to insist that Congress must make laws for the protection of Slave property in the Territories—but Mr. Douglas maintains that Congress can have nothing whatever to do with Territorial Legislation, which must be kept exclusively to the people themselves.

HORSE DIED BY EATING NAILS.—A few days ago a horse belonging to Thomas Gifford, of Fall River, died under peculiar circumstances, and from a post mortem examination made by a dissecting committee, it was found that he had died through eating small nails, such as are used in flour barrels. A number sufficient to cause death was found in his stomach. It appears for the last twelve months or more, the horse has been fed on the sweepings of Chace & Nason's flour mills, and these nails lying about at the time the waste flour was swept in a heap, had been mixed with it and escaped the observation both of the feeder and the horse itself.

THE SOUTH CAROLINA SENATOR.—The Baltimore Sun says: "The Hon. James Chesnut, who has been just chosen United States Senator from South Carolina, is said to be a statesman of ability and experience, and to be a conservative in politics, of the Hammond school. His term will commence in March, 1859, and extend to 1865. Col. Chesnut graduated at Princeton College, over twenty years ago, is about forty-three years of age, and a lawyer by profession. He is opposed to secession and the agitation of the slave trade question, and belongs to the State's Rights school of politicians."

GENERAL NIEL, of the Engineers, has just published a "Journal of the Siege of Sebastopol." During the siege, which lasted 334 days, the French artillery threw into the town 510,000 round shot, 280,000 shells from howitzers, 350,000 shells from mortars, and 8,000 rockets.—During the war, moreover, the infantry fired 25,000,000 of cartridges.

A German paper published in New York thinks there is yet no ground for alarm concerning the steamship Indian Empire, as she was never remarkable for speed. In the year 1849, when the steamer in question—then called the Hansa, constituted the German navy, a wag suggested that if she were furnished with an additional engine she might prove serviceable as a stationary light-ship.

AN ILL-TIMED PRAYER.—Last summer, at Hull, a messenger having requested a London clergyman to announce "If Dr——was among the audience, he was urgently wanted," the clergymen added, from sympathy, "and may God have mercy on the pulpit!" The Doctor in a rage, demanded and received an humble apology.

A letter from Senator Sumner, dated Paris, Nov. 18, says:

"To-morrow morning there will be a consultation of physicians on my case, to ascertain where I am now, at what stage I have arrived, and what remains to be done. I regret that I cannot announce the result of this conference by the steamer that takes this letter. I fear that it will be against my return this Winter to my public duties. At all events, I shall not return before January. * * * * My Summer, down to the close of August, was most painful and harrassing. My sufferings were complicated. There seemed to be hardly an ache or smart in nature which did not visit me, and at times with an intensity which was overpowering. But now I am comfortable. Two physicians express the opinion that I have made a most perceptible advance. I think so too. I am sure of it. At times I have despaired: but now I am confident that I shall be as well as ever. I cannot express the disappointment I feel in this protracted separation from my duties. I long—oh, how I long—to have my natural health, and once more renew my old labors—twelve or fourteen hours a day."

THE WEATHER IN FRANCE.—The Paris correspondent of the New York Journal of Commerce, under date of Nov. 15th, says:

"Columns of the newspapers are assigned to the advices of the weather South and North. On the 13th instant, at Strasburg, the thermometer was more than eight degrees below zero, centigrade; in the extreme South heavy falls of snow delayed the diligences; passengers were constrained to alight and walk considerable distances; intense cold was experienced in Corsica; at St. Petersburg, the Neva was frozen over: most of the streams called tributary, in Northern Germany, were in the same condition. Our temperature has become comparatively mild, but the skies weep, the streets are yellow ponds, and there is scarcely light enough at noon for the pen."

MR. KENDALL writes to the Picayune, from New Braunfels, Texas: "Our planters about here have a new market for their cotton—a market which was hardly thought of a few years since. In our streets can now be seen a long train of Mexican carts, all the way from Saltillo, picking up the cotton that can on this and the San Marcos, and lower down the country, all of which is destined for the Mexican factories beyond Monterey and the Sierra Madre. The manufacturers there find it for their interest to send directly here to buy the cotton they require at the plantations, and to send it off on the long journey in the rude carts of the country. Our planters, meanwhile, receive better prices than they could possibly obtain by sending their cotton to Indianola or Galveston."

THE Constitution of Georgia prohibits the African Slave trade, so far as that State is concerned. Before the formation of our Federal Government, Georgia, in common with the other twelve colonies which united in the War of Independence, pledged herself to an entire abstinence form this infamous and barbarous traffic. Yet a recent attempt has been made in the Georgia Legislature to strike out this prohibition. To the credit of that State, the effort has signally failed.

THREE Hungarians, part of the gang that put afloat in New York, forged notes on the Bank of Austria, have been arrested in Switzerland. Three of the same gang had previously been arrested in New York, and two are yet at large. About $30,000 was the amount of the forged notes put in circulation by them, of which one-half was circulated in New York.

Since the discovery of copper on the shores of Lake Superior, in 1845, fifteen vessels have been lost on that Lake, valued at $366,000, with cargoes estimated
