Butler's Mercantile Record & Copying EXCELSIOR FLUID INKS, Manufactured by James J. Butler, Agent, CINCINNATI, O.

RECORD—For Ledgers and Records only. MERCANTILE—For Books, Letters and general purposes. COPYING—For Letter Press only.

THESE FLUIDS change from a GREENISH blue to a deep and permanent BLACK COLOR, which no length of time will fade or destroy. These Fluids have been first offered to the Public in 1854—since which time there has been them awarded EIGHTEEN DIPLOMAS, THREE BRONZE AND ONE SILVER MEDAL.

Attention is invited to the following certificates from Prof. Chilton, New York:

"I have, at the request of Cook, Merritt & Brown, of New York, analyzed two samples of FLUID INK, one marked "Arnold's Chemical Writing Fluid, R. I. P. Arnold, London," the other "Butler's Mercantile Record Fluid, Cincinnati."

"I find both of those inks to contain the same ingredients, and to the same state of oxidation.

"From the result of the various tests to which I have subjected them, I find they are equal in quality as well as durability. ROBERT CHILTON, Ph. D., Chemist.

HENRY WARD BEECHER, A lady of Mr. Beecher's congregation, Augusta Moore, has just published a collection of memorable sayings from his discourses, with some remarks about the man. We take from it the following:

"Although Mr. Beecher himself seldom appears to be in much haste, there is always an air of being in a hurry about his clothes and his hair,—They manifest intentions of going forward, whether he goes or remains standing still. His neck is so short that he never ventures a collar. This, probably, is in consideration for his ears.

One very remarkable singularity in his face is the utter incongruity between its front and its side views. Upon being told that he resembled Henry Ward Beecher, a relative of that clergyman replied, laughingly, "I know that I am said to look like him; but 'tis such resemblance as a sheep bears to a lion." Now the fact is, were that humble-minded relative of the famed "lion" a great deal more like a sheep" than he considers himself to be, he might still bear striking resemblance to his cousin; for though when he turns full towards you, in the heat of dis course, Mr. Beecher frequently does present the appearance of a lion, it is next to impossible for a person of an imaginative turn of mind to view his profile without being strongly reminded of ovine faces seen and perhaps loved in the days and the years gone by.

When not in a "brown study," Mr. Beecher's manners are the most free and genial that can be imagined: but every year seems to render him more and more abstracted. People are sometimes hurt and offended by his indifference and forgetfulness of them, when he is utterly unconscious of all outward things, intent upon his next sermon or lecture; for he makes his sermons in the streets, in stores, in lumber yards in fact, anywhere or wherever he may chance to be. And it is plain to be seen, that a man in the midst of sermon-making cannot be very thoughtful in his manners to those who chance to pass or to pause beside him.

He is not a greater man, not a more learned man, not a better man, than many other ministers who never can keep people awake. But he is more alive. Why; there is intense life in all that, in desk or pulpit, he does or says. What wonder that he who is so vivid there should sometimes sog and smoulder when the excitement of his work is over.

Mr. Beecher is a sound and vigorous man, physically; but he cannot last always—he, as well as others, must die; and where is the material that shall live after him that shall show to the future what a man once lived and died? He is now forty-six years old, and not yet are prepared the witnesses which shall speak for him after he has gone hence. Full measure, pressed down, running over, men will give unto his bosom. Many will be found who will say that they were natives of South Carolina. The general impression here is that they were a part of the cargo landed at Savannah. Our opportunities of examination were so limited that we are not prepared to give a definite opinion on the subject. They left on the train for Montgomery, and will be carried out west—whither we did not learn."

The Wanderer case has been postponed, in consequence of the continued absence of witnesses.

GAS FROM ROSIN OIL.

FATTY FLUID MATERIAL. THE HIGH ILLUMINATING PROPERTIES of Gas from Rosin and oleaginous substances have always made them a favorite material for the manufacture of Illuminating Gas. Many Gas Companies use them in with coal, in order to supply their customers with a Superior Quality of Gas.

ROSIN OIL is entirely free from all dross and refuse matters, and yields at once, its Brilliant Illuminating Gas. The greater original cost of the apparatus for the manufacture of coal gas together with the attention and expense constantly required, and the difficulty, if not impossibility, of entirely separating the unwholesome, destructive and offensive gases, generated in coal, render the ROSIN OIL APPARATUS cheaper and more desirable in every way.

S. COATES, of 276 Broadway, New York, has devoted his entire attention to the manufacture and sale of Portable Gas Apparatus, and he respectfully calls the attention of the public to his present complete and efficient machine.

Perfect satisfaction to the purchaser guaranteed in every case. For further information address S. COATES, 276 Broadway, New York; jy23-2awdly or DAVID H. WILLIAMS, Pittsburgh, Pa.
