PITTSBURGH:

SATURDAY MORNING, JAN 8, 1859.

To our Friends.—We feel encouraged by the large voluntary increase of our lists of patrons—both advertising and subscription—to speak a word in the ears of our friends in this connection. It is now the proper season to decide in regard to the amount of advertising to be done during the year, and also to decide in regard to the medium to be employed. While we feel thankful for the very liberal share of business which we have received from our friends during a year of unparalleled depression in almost every department of business, we are yet able to find valuable space in our columns now unoccupied, for the reasons above stated.

Our terms—the character and extent of our circulation considered—are lower than those of any newspaper of our class in the Union. While our rates for advertising remain as heretofore, our circulation is largely increased over any previous year. Our country circulation, in particular, is daily receiving large additions from all parts of the region of country tributary to Pittsburgh, and from many points far beyond. We give a few extracts from letters recently received, which will indicate the feeling in regard to ourselves:

A friend writing from Buena Vista, sending us the third list of subscribers, says: "As St. Paul said, on a certain occasion, this is the third time I am coming unto you." These three letters covered over 50 subscribers. A correspondent writing from Mercer county, says: "I am anxious to increase the circulation of your valuable Gazette," and sends ten new subs., with a promise of more. Another, dating from Fayette county, sends us a list for daily and weekly, and promises more as soon as he can collect the money for the names he now has—a method which we adhere to, strictly. Another esteemed correspondent, writing from Western Virginia, says: "I have been engaged for some time in making up a club for your excellent paper, and am succeeding well, although money is rather tight with us. I have now got a large club made up, but want to get some more." Another friend, with the true ring, writes from Mahoning county, O.,: "Enclosed I send fifteen dollars for the Weekly Gazette; will send more in a few days. 'Long live the old Gazette.'" This friend sent us an enclosure from same place, a few days previously. We have a list of twenty-one names from a friend in Mercer county, with the money, who says, apologetically: "Money is too scarce in our section of country, but I hope to get a few more soon." An old friend in Lawrence county sends for a club of ten, and writes, "Several of your subscribers have formed a new club for the Gazette at a neighboring office." "Send next week's paper, as your old subscribers do not like to miss a single number." From Hancock Co., Va., we have a list of names and the promise that our correspondent "will endeavor to get more," in which endeavor he will doubtless succeed. A warm friend of the Gazette in Indiana county sends us a long list of names and ten dollars, and says, "as soon as I get the even ten dollars, I will forward it to you with another list." A friend in Westmoreland county sends twelve dollars and a good long list of names for New Salem. A zealous Republican at Turtle Creek brought us, on New Year's day, a list of forty-two subscribers, from his neighborhood. From Crabtree P. O., we have a good list, to inaugurate the new year. From Louisville, Ky., we have "the renewal of a club for our valuable paper," from an esteemed correspondent, who does not consider the Gazette "incendiary." A correspondent in Petersburg, O., writes: "Success to the 'Old Gazette'" after reading it twenty-four years, I consider it the paper." From Crosscreek Village, a friend writes: "Enclosed find a list of three subscribers to the Saturday Gazette; I will send on another list soon." In Fayette county we number many warm friends, and have numerous clubs during the present month. A correspondent in Guernsey co., O., writes: "Please send us a copy of your valuable paper, and let us know your terms, as we are endeavoring to raise you a club, and would like to begin with the new year." A friend at Enon Valley sends for sixteen copies; another at West Greenville sends for thirteen; another at North Liberty, Mercer co., sends a good club; another, writing from Coshocton co., O., says: "Enclosed find $2 00 subscription for another year to the Gazette, which I intend to continue during my natural life, or until a Republican President be inaugurated at Washington." From Fayette city, a friend writes, "For three or four weeks I have been laboring for your excellent paper, and now send you the enclosed club." From Columbiana county, Ohio, a friend writes that "our own county paper is so poorly sustained that we, in the first place, get the man who only takes one paper to take and pay for his own county paper. I have raised a club of ten for the Gazette, and hope to add more." (We admire the patriotism of this correspondent, in first canvassing for his own county paper, and next for the Gazette. Our field is broad.) From Armstrong county a friend writes thus: "I enclose you sixteen dollars for a club of the old Gazette."

We might go on with extracts from similar letters, all dated within a month, until we should fill a column, and weary our readers. We give the above as a sample of the warm personal interest manifested by our friends everywhere; it is purely a labor of love, as our exceedingly low terms ($1 per annum in clubs) do not permit of a per centage to those friends who thus interest themselves to circulate the Gazette.

While our paper circulates extensively through all of Western Pennsylvania and Virginia, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Minnesota and California, we charge but $25 per annum for ten lines of advertising, changeable at pleasure, in Daily, or but $37,50 for the same amount in our Daily and Weekly editions. The advertisements of our most intelligent business men may now be seen in our columns regularly, together with those of first class houses in the seaboard cities. If there are any with whom Advertising would be but experimental, we would suggest the propriety of trying that experiment, now, at the commencement of a new year while business is but beginning to revive, after a terrible depression, and while the old channels of trade may not be followed so closely as before.

We are sometimes asked, "why did you not come in and ask us for an advertisement?" We will answer briefly: Our business-manager may always be found at our counter, to attend to the business of his department. We have always acted upon the principle that this was the proper place to make contracts with our friends, and shall not change until convinced that they prefer being bored by us.

The Country Gentlemen has entered its thirteenth volume, and we are glad to learn that it is in a prosperous condition. The number before us is filled with a great variety of information interesting to the farmer, Gardner, Dairymen and the ordinary housekeeper. Farmers who are not ashamed to learn as they move along in the world, should not be without this invaluable periodical. Luther Tucker & Son, New York, are the publishers, and to them subscriptions should be sent. We acknowledge ourselves indebted to the Country Gentlemen for many valuable selections relative to agriculture and its kindred pursuits, which have occasional appeared in the Gazette.

Horace Mann made a speech in behalf of Antioch College before a large meeting, in Boston, on Tuesday night. The Bostonians have taken hold of the institution, and will probably relieve it from debt. At the close of the meeting, Hon. Josiah Quincy, Jr., Orville Dewey, D. D., George B. Emerson, Ezra S. Gannett, D. D., Stephen Fairbanks, Edward E. Hales, Samuel G. Howe, James Freeman Clark, Samuel Gracie, Edward Edmands, N. H. Emmons, Joseph H. Allen, Samuel Downer, S. K. Lothrop, D. D., Gideon F. Thayer, were appointed to solict subscriptions.

The meeting then adjourned. The speeches of the several gentlemen were of much interest, and the meeting was one of spirit and significance.

Northern Pacific Railroad.—We find the following letter in the Philadelphia papers from James S. Ritchie, Esq., in reference to the iron interest of Pennsylvania and the completion of the Northern Pacific Railroad. It is a subject of vital interest to our State and we are glad that our friend has called attention to it. The letter explains itself:

"Messrs. Jas. Cooper, Morton M'Michael, H. C. Carey, et al. Philadelphia, Jan. 3d, 1859—Gentlemen: Allow me to call your attention to a very important fact in connection with the iron interest of Pennsylvania, relating to the Northern Pacific Railroad. The U. S. Senate, by a vote of 25 to 23, provided that the road should be built of American iron. Senator H. M. Rice's proposition for three roads is the only feasible one. The first road is to run from the head of Lake Superior to Puget Sound, a distance of 1800 miles, the shortest of all. The State of Pennsylvania has a vital interest in this road; and why? Because nearly all the iron rails, ties, &c., can be shipped, via the lakes, to the head of Lake Superior. Transportation by water is infinitely cheaper than by land. It is to can be imported a distance of at least 3000 miles sity cannot Pennsylvania iron be shipped only winter, and there is much less wind than on the Central route, which is now nearly impassible. Observations through many years prove this—The fur trade alone of British America, tributary naturally to the head of Lake Superior, is over $2,000,000 per annum. Vessels can sail direct from thence to Europe. Let the United States Government grant every alternate section of land along the route, and a sum of $5000 per mile and the railroad from Lake Superior to Puget's Sound, on the Pacific is a fixed fact. The Legislature of Pennsylvania should under these circumstances, instruct her Senators and members of Congress to use all lawful means in favor of the Northern route. Very truly, &c.,

JAMES S. RITCHIE.

Washington, Jan. 6.—A spasmodic impulse has been given to retrenchment by the embarrassed condition of the Treasury, the extravagance which pervades every department of the government, and the criticism provoked by the loose system of contracts which has grown up under democratic rule. Mr. Johnson, of Tennessee, started a movement in this direction, yesterday, which must fail of practical effect because it lacks the essential quality of judicious direction. He proposed to refer a general inquiry, on this subject, to the Committee on Finance. Such a reference either betrays his ignorance how to reach the evil, or his indisposition to do anything else than attract public attention as a very cheap rate. To reform the public service, every appropriate committee should be charged with the duty of inquiring into each department, and thus be made responsible for neglect or omissions. It is presupposed that the military, naval, and post office committees, and the like, know more of those respective schedules than any committee of finance and hence, with their information, are better able to detect abuses which have grown up by usage. This is one mode. But everybody knows that no such investigation can be made in the fifty working days that remain of this session, and therefore that, if real reform is actually intended, and not a sham, some mode ought to be devised by which a report can be made at the next session that will ensure wise and efficient legislation. These spasms that have now seized pretended economists, amount to nothing useful or permanent.

Mr. Sherman of Ohio, has taken a step in the right direction, which will test the disposition of the majority to-morrow. upon a motion to refer the Civil Appropriation bill, reported from the Committee of Ways and Means, to the Naval Committee for revision. This is a practical mode of placing responsibility where it ought to reside, and of shaping legislation upon the best intelligence. If adopted and followed up; it will have the effect of dwarfing the powers of the Committee of Ways and Means, which heretofore, have assumed the exclusive control of the finances, but that effect is desirable in many accounts. The proposition referred to will be resisted for this reason, by those who desire to retain the power: but it is believed they do not represent the sentiment of the majority. At all events, we shall soon know the temper of the House upon this important moment. Once established as a principle, the system will follow naturally and beneficially.—Wash. Cor. Phil. N. American.

The Close of the Indian War in New Mexico.—A letter dated Fort Defiance, New Mexico, December, 21, says:

Yesterday the chiefs of the Navajo nations of Indians—five in number—came in, and after a an armistice of thirty days was granted by Col. Miles, commander of the troops operating in this country. Within thirty days commissioners on the part of the United States are to meet the chiefs at Fort Defiance, to agree formally to the terms of a treaty.

For weeks past the Indians have been appealing to the troops in every form for peace in behalf of their children, their woman, their property, and for the sake of peace. Never have a tribe of savages been more completely humbled and subjugated than have these Indians. It has not been accomplished so much by the number killed although this has been considerable—as by their being driven from their homes at all times, and forced to flee from rock to rock and ravine to ravine for safety from the advance of our arms. For two months past, they have had no rest.

Our troops, under the energetic direction and lead of Col. Miles, have traversed almost every canon and mountain in the country—scaling heights and penetrating chasms heretofore untred by Anglo-Saxon, and which have been considered by the Indians sure and safe retreats from the enemy, whoever that might be. The campaign although carried on with a force at no time exceeding three hundred men in the field, has been prosecuted against the most powerful Indian tribe on the continent with unparalleled success, and resulted in teaching these Indians a lesson that will last for all time to come.

The New Kansas Excitement.—A star chamber edict was sent abroad a few days ago, to the effect that the President and Cabinet had had Kansas affairs under review again, and had dispatched orders to Governor Medary, or the Marshal of the Territory, to have "Montgomery and Brown" summarily dealt with. The fact of this thing being more easily said than done, will save Governor Medary the responsibility of perpetrating anything rash. Doubtless the acquaintance he has been enabled to form with the people of that Territory, will also impart caution to his movements, and induce him to keep within the clear warrant of the facts bearing on the difficulties at Fort Scott. Medary is a politician —unscrupulous as need be—but his footsteps in the Charnel House of Governors, will probably be directed to the end of keeping "Sammedary" out of hot water. The ghosts of Reeder, Shannon, Geary, Stanton, Walker and Denver, confront him at every cross road in Kansas, and hold up their skinny digits warning him of the ways they trod. Altogether, we need not apprehend anything so direful from the executive fulmination as its first reading would seem to portend—nor anything so insane as its source would warrant to have been contemplated.—Chicago Press.

Death of the Emperor of Japan Confirmed. —It is now reported that the Emperor of Japan died soon after the American treaty was signed. The Hong Kong correspondent of the London News, writing on the 20th of October, says:

The news of the death of the Emperor of Japan is confirmed. He died of cholera, which disease was carrying off great numbers. The United States minister had returned to Shanghae, but some apprehensions are entertained for the French plenipotentiary nothing having been heard of the chartered steamer Remi, on board of which vessel his excellency had embarked from Japan for Shanghae.

The London Telegraph of the 12th ult., says: A correspondent informs us that the Emperor of Japan died some days after the American treaty was signed. There were several reports as to the cause of his death; one that he ripped his belly, another that he was murdered, and a third that he died of cholera. Being childless, before his death he adopted Fuer-taigo, Prince of Kousin, aged sixteen year as his child and successor.

The Gouldy Family.—We understand that the members of this family, who were the victims of the late fearful tragedy, are all convalescent. Mr. Gouldy, who was considered most seriously injured, is now pronounced out of danger. He is able to sat up for several hours during the day; but he is not permitted by his medical adviser to converse on exciting subjects. He occasionally alludes to his son, but the conversation is always turned in another direction, as his family and friends carefully avoid any allusion to so dangerous a topic. Mrs. Gouldy may be regarded as quite recovered. The two sons, Nathaniel and Charles, are perfectly well. The servant girl, Joanna Murphy, who died in a horrible manner, was supposed to be in the most alarming condition, was on Friday last, discharged from the Hospital.—N. Y. Times Jan. 3.

Cotton Growing in Kansas.—A specimen of very fine cotton, in the "pod," was shown us yesterday—the growth of our Territory. It grew in Southern Kansas, near Osage City, and may be seen at the law office of Douglass & McCahon, on Delaware street. It is difficult to say what Kansas will not produce, and impossible to name a product that will flourish better from slave than free labor.—Kansas Times.

The Rev. H. W. Beecher kept open house, according to his custom, on New Year's Day, and each person who called registered his name in the book which is kept from year to year for that purpose. The names registered during the day were one thousand and one, exceeding, by over two hundred, the number of last year.

The Superintendent of the Asylum for the Deaf and Dumb in Ohio, acknowledges the following receipts of the year: $21,432 58: the expenditures, $21,432 23. The appropriation asked for the current year is as follows:

For Salaries.....$9,300
" general purposes.....12,000
" bedsteads, mattresses, bedding and repairs.....3,000
Total.....$26,300

There are 1290 deaf and dumb persons in the State and but 150 in the Asylum.

Mysteries.—On the 31st ult., a pedlar's pack was found in a mill dam near Downingtown, Pa., and a search was commenced for a murdered body but in vain, when it was ascertained that a dishonest pedlar, who had been intrusted with a pack of goods, had sold the greater portion, and pocketed the proceeds, having sunk the pack in the dam, and "mizzled."

Praiseworthy.—Wisconsin has set apart the swalls of swamp lands as a fund for normal instruction. The income of this fund is over $18,000, and will soon reach $25,000.

It is to be expended under the direction of the Hon. Henry Barnard, recently of Connecticut, and now Chancellor of the Wisconsin State University.

Died—On Thursday morning, 6th instant, at the residence of her husband, 73 Fulton street, Mrs. Melissa D., wife of Capt. J. P. Smith, in the twenty eighth year of her age.
