PITTSBURGH:

MONDAY MORNING, JAN 10, 1859.

"THE DOUGLAS OVATION."—We predicted some months since that as Mr. Buchanan's term would draw to a close the number of mal contents in his party would increase. We think we remarked that the adherent who would exhibit a wonderful amount of zeal the first year of the Presidential term, would make a pretty bold rebel when that term was within a year of its close. Circumstances now transpiring are verifying that prediction to the letter, and we would not be surprised if another twelve months would find our Chief Magistrate without a party, and without what are termed personal followers. In that period of time, the fortunes of the political field may deprive him even of his bosom-friends, Bigler and Glancy Jones, either of whom can snuff danger with the keenest of the practiced seekers of popularity. These are hard thoughts to entertain, and were it not that we are sustained by the experience of the past, it would be still harder to give them public expression. But human nature, developed in the school of modern democracy, has its very dark sides, and such being the case, nothing remains for us but to look them steadily in the face, and if possible, profit by the lesson which the observation may inculcate

Let us, then, glance around us. A year ago, and even in less than that time, Douglas had but a few followers, whose boldness and persona. attachment to the "little giant" were visited with stripes and insults. They were comparatively insignificant in number, scattered in little squads here and there—a few in the North and a few in the South—and wherever they were located they were marked out as black sheep in the Democratic fold. The leader, himself, scarcely knew his friends, so cautious were some of his sympathizers in giving utterance to their sentiments; and frightened by his seeming isolation, he fled to Illinois and there began to take back and qualify the expressions which separated him for the time from his associates. The administration in the meantime grew a year older, and the offices at its disposal diminished in value in about the same proportion. This done for Douglas what all his speeches and his crawfishing could not do. The crew of the sinking ship of Buchannanism to flocked to his standard, just as they will flock from it, when dark shadows shall, in time, surround it.

The politician who could leave the capital last summer in undisturbed privacy, without a single "hurrah" to greet him on the long route from Washington to Chicago, now travels with a train like an emperor, escorted by processions wherever he goes. From New York, through Philadelphia and Baltimore, to the federal city, his journey is a grand ovation, only rivaled by the honors previously paid him all along the valley of the Mississippi. The men engage in these public receptions are generally wireworking politicians, and they understand their business very well. They all have axes to grind in the future, in consideration of which they will for the present make a hero of their instrument, by giving to him all the eclat of a popular endorsement. In the meantime poor Mr. Buchanan—"old Buck" as we termed him in his better days—must look on without publicly exhibiting his disgust at the treachery and ingratitude of his political brethren. He will no doubt see the very men officiating in this Douglas demonstration who figured in the ovations which honored him when on his journey to the Capital to take possession of the White House. He will come to the conclusion that every politician—like every dog—has his day, and console himself with the reflection that the higher his hated rival is elevated now, the greater his fall will be a few years hence.

Such are the workings of affairs when controlled by modern democrats. They nevertheless carry with them wholesome lessons, although clothed in a motley garb, if we are only willing to profit by them.

We find in one of the morning papers of Saturday—the least reputable paper in the city—the following call. It is anonymous, and has not been offered to us for publication; but we give place to it as a matter of public interest:

"☞ TAX PAYERS' CONVENTION.—THE TAX PAYERS of Allegheny County are requested to meet in their respective Wards, Boroughs and Townships, on SATURDAY preceding the 16th day of February next, for the appointment of Delegates to represent them in a Convention of the Tax Payers, to be assembled on that day, at 10 o'clock, A. M., at the Court House, in the City of Pittsburgh, for the purpose of considering the condition of our financial affairs, and recommending such measures as may be necessary for the protection of their interests in the impending crisis.

Ja7."

Appended to this we find the following editorial remarks:

"As the Gazette refused to publish a similar one, even as an advertisement, for the June Tax Convention, we shall not give them another chance to deny us."

There was no "TAX CONVENTION" in "June," if "June," 1858, be referred to, nor did we ever refuse to publish a "similar" call. The call for the Anti-tax Convention of 1857 was published in both the daily and weekly editions of the Gazette and that is the only other call ever published in the county that could be called "similar." It differed from this call, however, in the essential particular that it had responsible names affixed to it, while this is put forward without authority or responsible endorsement.

Last summer a fellow named Kennedy sent to our office a call for a political Convention to nominate a county ticket, which he wanted inserted as an advertisement. We declined to put it in, for the reason that it was a locofoco trick, designed to distract and divide the Republican Party, and we could not permit the columns of our paper to be used for the benefit of the locofoco party. We publish a Republican paper, and we are too smart to let the enemy get the control or use of it. The extract above given is, doubtless, intended to convey the idea that the call we thus refused to publish was "similar" to the call which we now give; but there is no similarity whatever in the two calls, and we content ourselves with a flat denial of the statement we have given.

THE NATIONAL TREASURY.—The national treasury, under the management of Buchanan, Cobb & Co., is still in a far from favorable condition. Borrowing money has been but a temporary relief. The Washington correspondent of the Baltimore American speaks as follows in reference to our finances:

"It is now obvious, even if the democratic majorities in Congress should modify the tariff to an extent which they have not thus far contemplated, that the operations of the Treasury, with the present receipts, cannot be conducted without temporary relief. The bids for the remaining ten millions of the last loan will not be opened for three weeks, and the payments under the advertisement of the Secretary will not be completed before the middle of March. Meantime, the expenditures are going on at the usual rate while the income maintains only a tardy and unequal pace. Since 1842 the Treasury has not been in so straightened a condition, and hardly ever before managed with so imperfect an appreciation of the wants of the country and the best means of providing for them."

The Buchanan administration certainly can spend money if they are rather slow in accumulating it.

THE Missouri Republican, of the 6th, has a letter from Thomas L. Golden, addressed to the editor of that paper, from the Table Mountain mining district. Mr. G., writes:

"I send you a specimen of our gold, which I dug myself. I have discovered new mines, twelve miles from Cherry Creek, on a creek called Clear Creek. This creek empties into South Platte, ten miles below where Cherry Creek empties into the Platte.

There are at this time fifty three men at work at these mines, who average from $4 to $10 per day. Several old miners are at work in the mines. They say they are satisfied these mines are as good as any of the mines in California."

THE total claims against Mexico on the part of other governments or citizens of other governments is set down at $83,156,183.76. The interest on this debt in round numbers is $5,000,000 per annum.

PARLIAMENTARY REPORTING.—As a matter of some literary interest it may be observed that there is a complimentary allusion in Fielding's "Jonathan Wild" to the Parliamentary reports which Dr. Samuel Johnson had been for some years in the habit of compiling for "Cave, the printer's Magazine. It is well known that soon after Cave had commenced reporting the debates, and when they had increased in interest and importance, he received an intimation from one of the clerks of the House of Commons that their publication had given offence to the Speaker, and that measures would be taken to interfere with it as a breach of Parliamentary privilege. Upon this Mr. Urban hit upon the expedient of giving fictitious names to the speakers in Parliament, and to places and countries alluded to in debate; and as "Gulliver's Travels" were then widely read, and in the height of their popularity, the House of Lords and Commons were transformed into the Senate of Magna Lilliputia; the peers were termed Hurgos; France was called Blefuscu; and a similar liberty was taken with other names of places and persons. Haply, Cave published in his Magazine from time to time a key to this curious jargon, or otherwise orators might have been unable to recognize their harangues in the ornate phraseology of the Reporter. To this Fielding alludes in his account of Jonathan Wild's scoundrelship, when having quoted his love-letter, and remarked on the difference presented in its style of elaborate compliment to the writer's ordinary discourse, he observes that the ancients (particularly Sallust) embellished their narratives with speeches which had obviously received some flourishes from the eloquence of the historian. "Nay," he adds, "even amongst the moderns, famous as they are for elocution, it may be doubted whether those inimitable harangues, published in the monthly magazines, came literally from the mouths of the Hurgos, &c., as they are there inserted, or whether we may not rather suppose some historian of great eloquence hath borrowed the matter only, and addorned it with those rhetorical flowers for which many of the said Hurgus are not so extremely eminent."

The curious experiment in the art of Parliamentary reporting answered so well that it enabled Cave to set up his coach, and raised the credit of the English Legislature so high as to draw from Voltaire the remark that the "eloquence of Greece and Rome was revived in the British Senate." With respect, however, to the reporter's impartiality and fidelity, it is only necessary to refer to Johnson's avowed confession that he took care "the Whig dogs should never have the best of the argument," Nothing also can be more strikingly Johnsonian than the pointed antithetical sentences put into the mouths of all the speakers, good, bad, and indifferent, so that the blunt Sir John Barnard, famed for his vulgarism, the courtly Wyndham, the polished Pulteney, and the impetuous Pitt were made to deliver their sentiments precisely in the same style and language.

THE "IRON" MEETING.—To correct the erroneous impressions which have been made on this subject, we publish the following authorized statements:

It had been intimated to some of the members of this Association, by a gentleman who feels a great interest in the employment of iron by the general government, that he had heard the Hon. James Cooper express some strong views on that subject, accompanied with estimates and calculations of special interest to the iron trade. The gentleman was asked to ascertain whether Mr. Cooper was willing to communicate them to the association if invited to do so. He made the inquiry and replied that he believed Mr. Cooper would be willing. The invitation was given and accepted. The ordinary meetings of the board are attended by from four to eight members. The Board neither issued nor authorized any of the notices or telegraph dispatches which preceded the meeting. No convention was held, secret of open—none was thought of —there were no closed doors, and do secrecy. The fact, though not given by the Board, was only intended to let the ironmasters who might be in the city know of the address. About twenty persons were present when the paper was read at the meeting, by a unanimous vote, thanked Mr. Cooper for it. No discussion took place then or since on the topics of the paper, and no opinion was expressed by the meeting upon any of the points touched by Mr. Cooper.

It was not known to any member of the Board that Mr. Cooper intended to refer to any political question, or that he would make any suggestions of that kind. The association having no bearings that way, would not have invited any such, nor have adopted them, even if consonant with their individual opinions. The paper, as published in the New York Herald, speaks for itself, and with great ability, but not for the association. Mr. Cooper took the manuscript with him; and the association has had nothing to do with its publication, nor any knowledge as to where it went after it left their office.

We have said that no convention of the ironmasters was called or contemplated. If it had been the desire of the association to call such a convention in Philadelphia for any proper purpose, they could easily have summoned a large attitude to this city, who, however they are now suffering from paralysis of their special industry would probably differ very widely upon some of the topics of Mr. Cooper's speech.—Phila. North Am.

THE BURNS' FESTIVAL.—The hundredth anniversary of the birth-day of the poet Burns will be celebrated very generally in Great Britain, and in many places in the United States. Preparatory meetings have been called in Washington and other cities. In Boston there is a Burns Club, which is composed of some of the best citizens there. At a recent meeting, which was very fully attended, and at which a large number of new members were admitted, letters were received from Ralph Waldo Emerson, Geo. S. Hillard, and other literary celebrities, accepting the invitation of the Club to be present at their festival. The arrangements of the Club will be conducted in the most liberal manner. Mr. John Wilson, of Jamaica Plain, has signified his intention of sending a picture (valued at $300) of the monument to Burns, upon the banks of the Doon.

In this connection it may be interesting to state some particulars of Burns' family. The youngest sister of the poet, and the sole surviving child of that family circle of which he was the eldest brother, died quite unexpectedly at her cottage, near Ayr, on the 14th ult, at 8½ o'clock, A. M. Isabella Burns was, as she was more familiarly known, Mrs Begg, was born at Mount Oliphant, near Ayr, on the 29th June, 1771, and had she lived till her next birth-day, would have completed her 88th year. She was the seventh child and third daughter of Wm. Burns and Agnes Brown, the members of whose family we may mention in the order of their age: Robert, Gilbert, Agnes, Annabella, John and Isabella. About the year 1794 or 1795 she was married at Mossgiel, Manchline, to John Begg, who was accidently killed at Lesmahagow in 1818, and whom she thus survived for the long period of 45 years.

THE height of impudence has been reached. Gov. Stewart has issued a requisition on Gov Medary, of Kansas, for Capt. Montgomery, who is accused of certain unlawful habits, among others, taking the lives of Border Ruffians and taking possession of their property. It is quite proper that violations of the law should be punished. It is essential to the peace of the Border that murderers should be punished. It has, however, been the custom of "the authorities" to reward with the patronage of the general government those who have distinguished themselves as murderers in the history of Kansas. Only now, when there is reason to believe that a number of pro-slavery partisans have been killed by those who assume to be doing the fighting of the Free State cause, has there been any symptoms of an active desire in official circles to bring the red-handed men to justice. This time, the Governor of Missouri is greatly exercised. And the Governor of Kansas only plays a fatal facility for deepening the difficulty and making the old sore incurable. He is anxious for troops to put down the rebellion. The people of Kansas are, however, quite tired of displays of military force among them. They loathe the spectacle of a company of dragoons acting as illustrations of the beauties of the Administration's system of popular sovereignty. If the hordes of ruffians from Southern Missouri invade the neighboring portions of Kansas, and Gov. Medary makes a demonstration with dragoons, it is probable that the bloodiest picture in the book of Kansas is yet to be written.—Cin. Com.

RELIGIOUS TOLERATION IN SWEDEN.—The Prince Regent of Sweden has made a move in favor of religious toleration in that kingdom by granting his sanction to meetings for worship being held elsewhere than in the parish churches, provided they are not opened at the same times that are set apart for public service by the clergy of the district. Permission is also granted to laymen to address such meetings under certain restrictions.

THE Chicago Times gives its readers to understand that Senator Douglas will not fight a duel. The General Jones, of Iowa, who recently wrote a violently abusive letter to Douglas, and who is the man selected to slay the "Little Giant," is not a proper tool for the task. He is one of the very smallest of the "small potatoe" Statesman of the country—a rather good looking, curly-headed, brainless chatter box. He never will hurt anybody.—Cin. Com.

THE General Assembly of Vermont at its recent session enacted a law, authorizing the several towns to procure the writing and publication of town histories, at the expense of the towns. This will, doubtless, secure the publication of several local histories now in manuscript, and result in the writing of many more.

THE CASE OF THE WANDERER.—The United States Commissioner at Savannah, has decided to commit, for trial, the prisoners Brown, Agesta and Agavia, charged before him with being implicated in the importation of African negroes as slaves in the yacht Wanderer.

AN ORDINANCE relating to City Officers.

Be it ordained and enacted, &c.

SECTION 1. The office of Clerk of Committees is hereby established. The Clerk of the Whole in Council shall be appointed by the Clerk of those Committees which report under the Rules of Order of Councils, and the Clerk of the Select Council shall be appointed by the Committee of Ways and Means in the Select Council, but those committees shall not appoint any person to be a clerk who is employed in any other office, or may hereafter be created with a clerk, or are having excepted from the provisions of this section. The Clerks of Committees shall keep full minutes in a book to be provided for that purpose, and shall transmit to said committee, and at the end of each year they shall deposit said minute books with the Controller, who shall preserve the same with the other records of the city committees thereof.

SEC. 2. The Assessor of Water Rents shall hereafter be elected by Councils at the annual meeting in January for the election of city officers. He shall give bond with one or more sufficient sureties in the sum of two thousand dollars, to be approved by the Water Committee, conditioned for the faithful performance of his duty, and shall be sworn by the Mayor before entering upon the duties of his office

SEC. 3. The Assessor of City Assessor shall hereafter be four hundred dollars per annum.

SEC. 4. The Councils shall at the regular meeting in January annually fix the time for the election of city officers, designate two English papers and one German paper, in which all the ordinances and all advertisements required for by ordinance or act of Assembly shall be inserted, and the compensation for such advertisements shall be at the rate of fifty cents for the insertion of a square of ten lines of ordinary size, in addition thereto the papers that indicated shall publish regularly, with no charge to the city, the official minutes of both Councils. The Controller shall have no power to give one paper or firm to do the city job printing.

SEC. 5. The Controller shall in the second week in January annually fix the rate by advertisement in the papers authorized as city printers, sealed proposals for supplying the city with Stationery and Blank books, and he shall at the time appointed for opening the same, which shall be at least one week after the publication of the advertisement, proceed to open the said proposals and award the contract to the lowest and best responsible bidder in the presence and with the approval of the Finance Committee of Select Council, and all acts and ordinances hereby altered or repealed.

Ordained and enacted into a law in Councils, this 6th day of January, A. D., 1859.
