MONDAY MORNING, JAN. 17, 1880

The Grand Jury Government.—The grand jury in this case has been organized and it is known now to render its verdict.

Our government has frequently had to borrow money, but there is nothing derogating to the honor of the treasury, but it has always borrowed in time of war, and the money thus raised was not extraordinary expense. It has never before had to resort to such means in time of peace, and the present administration is the first which has found it necessary to borrow to pay the ordinary expenses of government.

Such a calamity, it is true, might befall any government, but under certain unfavorable circumstances, the government possessed of credit, with the view of relief, which, and go on borrowing as long as means did not exist.

To resort to another loan, now, or to raise money by the sale of bonds, which, if they are removed by reviving the tariff, is an act of governmental faith which none but a Republican administration could be guilty of.

It is the duty of the Republican members of Congress to resist the tariff, and to prefer to keep the tariff question open until 1880, that the party may not profit by it. We do not believe it.

The Cold Weather.—From all portions of the northern States we hear dreadful tales of the cold of a week since.

At Corvallis, 30 miles from Portland, Me., a thermometer indicated 45 below zero. All the country was frozen up.

STAFF TREASURER.—The causes of Opposition to the tariff, held on Friday evening last, resulted in the nomination of E. H. Johnson, for State Treasurer.

MISTAKEN A BLACK REPUBLICAN FOR A RED REPUBLICAN.—The Paris correspondent of the Tribune writes that a mistake was made in the Tribune office, when a black Republican was mistaken for a red Republican.

THE WALKER FERRY IN 1858.—The Whig historical account of the results of the Walker ferry in 1858, is a very interesting one.

INCREASED FOREIGN.—The Post Master General, in reply to a resolution of the Senate, reports that the foreign trade of the country has increased.

DE. CHESTER.—We published in the Boston Journal an item to the effect that, owing to the dissatisfaction in his congregation, the Rev. Dr. Chester had resigned his position as pastor of the Church of the Redeemer.
