"Other men like the editor of the Press have been taken from mean places in life and put in exalted posts, and like him they too have forgotten themselves and been undatiful to those who honored them—honored them with rank and station, and all for favor. Such low men thus promoted are always presumptuous. Menschikoff was a kitchen boy. The great ruler of Russis fancied him, and by his favor and counteniance soon advanced him to a prince; but the Czar could not endow Menschikoff with the qualities of a noble. With all his titter and dignities he was but a scullion, rapacious, indolent, wasteful, licenticus and drunken. He compired against his misster and benefactor. He could not even attempt to poison him with the slanders of his sen, but he collon of Banks as Sheaker of the United States, represented against Invited States, represented signation in his hands, addressed to the President of the prosecutors, and, in case they would consent, oathout the prosecutors, and, in case they would consent, to abnoth the prosecutors after the total signation aforesald to the President. Government Frauds.—When Mr. Buchanan predicted the downfall of our government, in his notorious letter to this city, he had before his mind, no doubly, such transactions as the follows ing, which have occurred under his own administration, and probably with his own approval. The most villainous frauds in connection with the war debt of the territories of Oregon and Washington have been exposed to the unwelcome light of day by the House Committee on Millitary Affairs, which, although it was composed of a majority of democrats, found the corruption too glaring to be concealed from public observation. Here are some of the facts developed:

"The whole debt, as reported by the Government as agents, is about $5,000,000, or which the Committee assert that not more than about one million is justly due. Some of the facts developed:

After the contemplation of developments like those above mentioned, we are not in the least surprised to learn that Mr. Buchanan has publications and that he will not be a candidate that the w surprised to learn that Mr. Buchanan mas pub-licly announced that he will not be a candidate for re-election to the Presidency. The secrets of his unlucky administration, if exposed to the astonished gare of the public, would overwhelm a man, stronger in the affections of the people than the President is, and this fact seems to be appreciated at the White House. It is rather late in the day to become aware of the unpleadant position which he holds in the country, but not too late, if the knowledge will have the effect of arresting him in the ruinous policy which he has adopted in the administration of public affairs.

THE TRUE FRIEND OF DESPOTISM.—"A friend in need is a friend indeed," and the despotisms of the old world have found this friend in Mr. Buchanan. His letter to the Pittsburgh celebration, croaking and full of fears for the safety of the Republic, came to them at an opportune time, when free principles were beginning to make headway, with fair promise of success. The Philadelphia Press, after enumerating the injutime, when free principles were beginning to make headway, with fair promise of success. The Philadelphia Press, after enumerating the injuries this man has inflicted upon his own party at home, thus alludes to the harm he has inflicted upon the cause of free principles abroad:

"In England, for long years, the question of the right of suffrage have been agitated with varying propects, but latterly the movement in its favor had gained unusual prominence. The position of the parties of that country, the existing sentiments of the nation, and the masterly ability, earnestness and zoal with which that indomitable reformer, John Bright, has urged this great measure—all conspired to render its success much more probable than at any former period of English history; but at this moment the Du Queane letter of Mr. Buchanau, with its hypocritical cant, made its appearance; and coming as it did from the Chief Magistrate of the Republic, it was eagerly seized by all the English opponents of the extension of popular sovereignty and the powers of the people in that country, as an unanswerable argument against popular institutions.

"Mr. Buchanau, therefore, occupies the position not only of having inflicted greater injury upon the cause of Democracy in this country than any man that ever lived, but he is quoted in England upon the saile of Aristocracy, and the weight of his influence has probably been sufficient to turn the scale against the hopes, aspirtations and rights of the people of that nation."
