Is Brougham a Scotchman!

Meers. Editors:—In the last edition of Drockhau's Conversations Lexicon, Leipzeg, 1951, 1855, world-renowned for its accuracy, we are told that Brougham and Vaux (Henry Brougham, Baron) was been in 1779, in Klinburgh. The family were originally of Westmoreland. Robertson, the historian, and the uncle of Brougham's mother, was the advisor in the earlier stages of his education." Vol. III., page 326.

In the "Men of the Time," (Redfield, N. Y., 1852.) page 62, we are told that the father of Lord Brougham marfied in Edinburgh, and that Henry Brougham was born in the bouse of the Karl of Bachan, No. 19 St. Andrew's Square, in that city; was educated in its high school, and entered its juniversity.

Pierer'a Universal Lexikon, 4th edition, vol. 11., page 312, (Allouburg, 1857.) makes indeed the same statement which has been put forth by the Dispatch, that Brougham was born on his father's estate in Westmoreland.

Westmoreland.

Who is right, the Dispatch or Mr. Loomis? With the ovidence before us, we say, decidedly, Mr. Loomis. The mistake, if it be one, as we believe it is, in regard to Westmoreland, as Brougham's birthplace is easily accounted for, while the other statement is so circumstantial as to give a prior cridence that it is true. Let us have more light. The two last named are the newly elected members of the Board.
