Gas from Rosin Oil

OR OTHER

FATTY FLUID MATERIAL.

THE HIGH ILLUMINATING PROPERTIES of Gas from Rosin and oleaginous substances have always made them a favorite material for the manufacture of Illuminating Gas. Many Gas Companies use Rosin with coal, in order to supply their customers with a superior Quality of Gas.

ROSIN OIL is entirely free from all dross and refuse substances, and yields at once, its Brilliant Illuminating Gas.

The greatest original cost of the apparatus for the manufacture of coal gas together with the attention and expense constantly required, and the difficulty, if not impossibility of entirely separating the unwholesome, deleterious and offensive gases, generated in coal, render the ROSIN OIL APPARATUS cheaper and more desirable in every way.

S. COATES, of 376 Broadway, New York, has devoted his entire attention to the manufacture and sale of Portable Gas Apparatus, and he respectfully calls the attention of the public to his present complete and efficient machine.

Perfect satisfaction to the purchaser guaranteed in every case. For further information address

Butler's Mercantile Record & Copying
EXCELSIOR FLUID INKS,
Manufactured by James J. Butler, Agent,
CINCINNATI, O.

Recess—For Ledgers and Records only.
Mississippi—For Books, Letters and general purposes.
Corinth—For Letter Press only.

THESE FLUIDS change from a GREENISH Blue to a deep and permanent BLACK COLOR, which no length of time will fade or destroy. These Fluids have been first offered to the Public in 1854—since which time there has been there awarded EIGHTEEN DIPLOMAS, THREE BRONZE AND ONE SILVER MEDAL.

Attention is invited to the following certificates from Prof. Chilton, viz:

"I have, at the request of Cook, Merritt & Brown, of New York, analyzed two samples of BUTTER'S INK, one marked 'Arnold's Chemical Writing Fluid, R. & J. Arnold, London,'—the other 'Butler's Mercantile Record Fluid, Cincinnati.'

"I find both of these Inks to contain the same ingredients, and in the same state of combination.

"From the result of the various tests to which I have subjected these, I find they are equal in quality as well as durability. JAMES R. CHILTON, M. D., Chemist.

struggling, and ... ing up money penny by penny.

No one ever helped me, but the lad Herbert Greyson. Whenever he came from sea, he sought me out, and made a little present to me or Cap.'

'Cap, marster, was Capitola, the child. The reason I gave her that name was because on that ring I had drawn from the masked mother's hand were the two names—Eugene—Capitola.

'Well, marster, the last time Herbert Greyson came home, he gave me five dollars, and that, with what I had saved, was enough to pay my passage to Norfolk.

'I left my little Cap in the care of the people of the house—she was big enough to pay for her keep in work—and I took passage for Norfolk. When I got there I fell ill, spent all my money, and was at last taken to the poor-house. Six months passed away before I was discharged, and then six more before I had earned and saved money enough to pay my way on here.

'I reached here three days ago, and found a wheat field growing where my cottage fire used to burn, and all my old cronies dead, all except old Hat, who has received and given me shelter. Sir, my story is done—make what you can of it,' said the invalid, sinking down in her bed as if utterly exhausted.

Old Hurricane, whose countenance had expressed emotions as powerful as they were various while listening to this tale, now arose, stepped cautiously to the door, drew the bolt, and coming back, bent his head and asked—

'What more of the child?'

'Cap, sir! I have not heard a word of Cap since I left her to try and hunt out her friends. But any one interested in her might inquire for her at Mrs. Simmons', laundress, No. 8 Bag Alley.'

'You say the names upon that ring were—Eugene—Capitola?'

'Yes, sir, they were.'

'Have you that ring about you?'

'No, master. I thought it was best, in case of accidents, to leave it with the child.'

'Have you told her any part of this strange history?'

'No master, nor hinted it; she was too young for such a confidence.'

'You were right. Had she any mark about her person by which she could be identified?'

'Yes, master, a very strange one. In the middle of her left palm was the perfect image of a crimson hand, about half an inch in length. There was also another.' Herbert, Grayson to please me, marked upon her fore arm in India ink her name and birthday—Capitola, Oct 31st, 1831.'

'Right. Now tell me, my good soul, do you, from what you were enabled to observe, know what house that was where Capitola was born?'

'I am on my oath. No, sir, I do not know; but—

You suspect?'

The woman nodded.

'It was——,' said old Hurricane, stooping and whispering a name that was heard by no one but the sick woman.

She nodded again, with a look of intense meaning.

'Does your old hostess here, Hat, know or suspect anything of this story?' inquired Major Warfield.

'Not a word! No soul but yourself has heard it!'

'That is right! Still be be discreet! If you would have the wicked punished and the innocent protected, be silent and wary. Have no anxiety about the girl. What man can do for her will I do quickly! And now, good creature, day is actually dawning. You must seek repose. And I must call the parson in and return home. I will send Mrs. Condiment over with food, wine medicine, clothing, and every comfort that your condition requires,' said Old Hurricane, rising, and calling in the clergyman, with whom he soon after left the hut for home.

They reached Hurricane Hall in time for an early breakfast, which the astonished housekeeper had prepared, and for which their night's adventures had certainly given them a good appetite.

Major Warfield kept his word, and as soon as breakfast was over he dispatched Mrs. Condiment with a carriage filled with provisions for the sick woman. But they were not needed. In a couple of hours the housekeeper returned with the intelligence that the old nurse was dead. The false strength of mental excitement that had enabled her to tell so long and dreadful a tale, had been the last flaring up of the flame of life, that almost immediately went out.

'I am not sorry, upon the whole, for now I shall have the game in my own hands!' muttered Old Hurricane to himself—'Ah! Gabriel Le Noir! better you had cast yourself down from the highest rock of this range and been dashed to pieces below, than have thus fallen into my power.'

So far we have followed the lovely heroine and her friends; but the foregoing is all that we can publish in our columns. The remainder of the narrative can only be found in the New York Ledger, the great family paper, which can be obtained at all the periodical stores where papers are sold. We presume to ask for the Ledger, dated Febuary 12, and in it you will get the continuation of the narrative from where it leaves off here. If there are no bookstores or news offices convenient to where you reside, the publisher of the Ledger will send you a copy by mail if you will send him five cents in a letter. Address Robert Bonner, Ledger office, 44 Ann street, New York. This story grows more and more interesting as it progresses.
