The Annual Report of the officers of the Western Penitentiary for 1858 is published, and a copy of the same is before us. They common by stating that the present system of prison discipline in this State is justified before the world in the practical results of its successful administration in this lestitution. Disease and mental imbecility, so condently predicted as necessarily incident to separate confinement, have resulted in health and intellectual vigor.

The convict has abundant and wholesome food, the best of medical attendance, books, etc., and on each recurring Sabbath, hears the word of God expounded.

Although from the insufficiency of the prison walls there were two escapes last year, there is has been no insubordination or revolt, symptoms of which have been seen in New York, Ohio, It linois, and Massachusetts.

A Work House.—Our Harrisburg correspondent, in his letter printed in another column, suggests some objections to the establishment of a work house, to wit: that it won't pay, etc. Well, the present system of supporting some scores of lary vagrants, don't pay, either. But there is one element in the consideration that "Random" has overlooked. This is it: The present system of "upunishment" is a premium on lasiness and vagranty. About four-fifths, we would say, of those sent to jail now as vagrants, are anxious to be there, and are saway from home as soon as they are turned out. They have no food or shelter outside the walls, and persist in vagrancy because they know its result will be sheller, food, cigar-siumps and idieness. Now a work house, with some rough labor like stone-breaking, working a tread-mill, or, for the more debilitated, wearing, or some such light occupation, would act like a charm on this multitude of public mendicants. The thought, of a work house with its engines and tools of toil, would thin out the growd very rapidly. They would be likely to try to work cutside the wait in.

Dut wans of the bealth and peace that are there sacrificed on the altar of uncontrolled appetite! what of homes desolated and hearts breaking at the sad picture of the husbands and fathers who are there pouring out their life! rushing on to a got that has been reached already by thousands, it to which they, with other thousands, are inevitably pressing on: Though there be no law against this, no law of human enactment, what he can be an appeal here without any dissenting voice! We have said enough now and here, and perhaps more than enough. We trust our unit asked advice will be received in the spirit in which it is given and may have the effect which is intended.
