SATURDAY MORNING, MARCH 12, 1859.

CANADA, Ho!—A few days since, shortly after a passenger train on the Pennsylvania railroad left Lancaster for Philadelpaia, the conductor observed a small colored boy sitting in one corner of the car, with a bundle under his arm. When the conductor asked him where he was going, the boy replied, "to Canada," but where he came from he didn't exactly know; bethought, however, that he came from Baltimore. The conductor kindly passed the boy over the route towards the "land of the free."

EXPLOSION.—A puddling furnace at the Cambria Works, in Johnstown, exploded on Friday morning, scattering destruction around. The damper having been closed when it should have been opened, there was an accumulation of explosive gases, which resulted as one would expect. The furnace was almost demolished, bricks, etc., scattered in all directions, and five persons employed about the mill were burned and bruised badly, though not fatally. The loss to the company is considerable.

THE Hartford Press says that five thousand skunk skins have been sold in that city during the last and present seasons. The prices vary from fifty to sixty-seven cents, those entirely black being worth the most. One dealer in New York has exported thirty thousand skins within a few weeks. There is hardly a perceptible odor about them, that quality belonging to the fat of the animal. The fur is used in Europe for carpets, articles of dress, &c.

ON Monday night of last week, eleven prisoners escaped from the Adams county jail, by quarrying a hole through the walls of the building and yard. Two of them were recaptured, and two more returned of their own accord and declared that they were willing to serve out their sentences.
