THE ATTACK OF THE GOVERNOR .- The recent action of the democratic State Convention in regard to Gov. Packer has inspired the whole tionable kind of blustering courage. A large in the controversy previous to last Wednesday, are now-opening on the trail of the Governor like a pack of famished hounds. They have all number that scarcely uttered a word pro or con undenly become oracular, and are given to reading long lectures to their refractory members on the wickedness of opposing "the party," and its recognized idols. The Patriot & Union, which even remained silent under the mortification of having one of its publishers disminated from an effice product of the clear points.

signates arrant cowardice as simple "leniency".

"Our readers will bear witness that up to this moment the Patriot & Union has treated Governor Packer, and all his surroundings, with the utmost leniency. We have abstained from exposing his indidelity with the hope that he would retrace his steps, or do something to remove the steuch of disorganization from his skirts. But his offences against the party, whose welfare should have been his only care, have become so rank, that forbearance cases whose welfare should have been his only care, have become so rank, that forbeatance ceases to be a virtue. The Convention has pronounced him neworthy of the smallest mark of confidence, and we would not perform our duty to the democratic party if we abstained any longer from exposing him as his offences deserve.

"The Convention could not do otherwise than cast him out. Such a load would sink any political organization. Discipline must be preserved, or we forever perish. Governor Packer's offence to the democratic party does not consist in differing with the President upon the Kansas question. No doubt an effort will be made to ampress this conviction upon the public mind, but no sophistry or declamation can make it true."

Mr. Monaghan-a Chester county politician, naturally inclined to do very dirty work-thinks that it consists in his approval of the sale of the capals for the benefit of the Sunbury & Erie Railroad. Another discontented spirit suggests some other version of it, and thus the Governor will be compelled to run the political gauntlet, until the October election, when the people will comfort him by treating his, enemies-great and small-to a Watershould make the most of their triampn; for in a few short months the power which they serve will cease to be regarded as such. It will reach that point of degradation when it will be deprived of followers and apologists—and then these summer friends, now so gallant in trampling these summer friends, now so gallant in trampling these summer friends are to the power political associate.

It turns out that the Judge is the President of a branch, railroad from Connellaville to Uniontown, and that the managers of this little one-horse affair have been flattered into the belief that the road ought to be continued across to Greensburg and that the Pennsylvania Road will furnish the means for building it. Accordingly we find that, bill has been introduced into the legislature authorizing the Pennsylvania Road; and during its pendency the Judge kindly volunteers his altogether disinterested and impartial advice to the legislature to repeat the Tonnage Tax. If the $400,000 subscription is the price of the opinion, it can hardly be as disease. the price of the opinion, it can hardly be as disinterested as the Judge would have us believe.

Close Voting.—From the returns of the New Hampshire election, reported in the Concord Statesman, we find that in thirty-four instances the Republican and Democratic candidates has exactly the number of votes cast at the election in 1858, by the same party. these numer friends, now so gallant in trampling on the reputation of a former political associate, will utter the most earnest cries; for quarter, and will invoke the deepest curses of the man whom hys are now so anxions to crait. All this will be brought about through the destruction of that much-talked of "cochesire power of public plander," which is the life and soul of the democratic organization.

The Pennsylvanian speaks of the convention as if it were the embediment of the genuine popular sentiment of the State, and not a mere creation of official hirelings and hungry office seckers. It talks in lofty language of the "Utility imph of principle"—of the "President being vindicated before the people"—and deals in other political clap-traps, which go far to make up the sum and substance of the speeches and bulletins of its party.

The Underground railway.—It seems that the underground railway is in successful operation just now. On Friday there crossed the river at this point, twelve chattles, all the way from Missouri. Several months ago, during the difficulties in south-eastern Kanass, old John Brown of Ossawattomic, went across the river, into Missouri, with a party of men, and took in a very gentle and kindly manner, eleven slaves from the owner of a plantation, and run them into Kanass. For fear the friends of the slave, holder might learn from the chivalrous southerner of the taking, the owner received a polite invitation from Brown to accompany him over erner of the taking, the owner received a polite invitation from Brown to accompany him over the Kansas river, which he was compelled to accept, and after the freed slaves were placed in eafety, was allowed to depart.

By short stages and under the protection of their deliverer, the slaves were disken through knasas and Nebrasks into Iowa, where Brown bidding them God speed, returned to the sected of his labors. When the deliverance was had, the slaves were but cloven in number, but when they reached Detroit, the numbered twelve, one having been born on the journey. The little darkey was named John Brown, in honor of the deliverer of his mother, and the "flook" in their rude cabin over the river, send up prayers for the welfare of the little and the big Brown.—
